LATE EDITION. PRICE ONE PENNY.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

No. 24,062. { Registered at the General Post Office, Sydney, for transmission by post as a newspaper.

SYDNEY, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1915.

26 PAGES. PRICE, 1d.

SUMMARY.

The Germans at Rolincourt made five attacks to recapture the trenches, each attempt being repulsed.

Similar efforts to recapture the trenches at Souain, Perthes, and Beau Sejour were driven back by the French with the bayonet.

The Allied troops assaulted and captured the village of Norroy, in Lorraine.

General Joffre personally decorated the Australian airman, Captain Oswald Watt, with the Legion of Honour.

A communique states: "We captured a mortar and 100 bombs in the German trenches north of Arras."

Mr. Donohoe ("Daily Chronicle") says the Russians have beaten off the enemy in the Czernowitz district.

The district, he adds, is now free of the Austro-German forces, who are retiring.

Official accounts at Berlin say that the Germans have taken 3000 prisoners between Plock and Raziaz.

Sixty-four thousand prisoners, 71 cannon, and 100 machine guns are said to have been captured east of the Prussian frontier.

Telegraphing to the Chancellor, the German Emperor described the Mazurian Lakes battle as a "glorious success."

An official "Gazette" from Petrograd says secrecy must be exercised regarding the East Prussian operations.

The German movement was foreseen a fortnight before, and precautionary measures were taken.

In order to tire the enemy the Russians retreated, and occupied a concentrated position.

Sir Edward Grey points out that the war has not interfered with American commerce to Britain and her Allies.

Germany's scattering of mines was more worthy of protest than Britain's seizure of contraband.

The Dutch Government proposes to entrust the mail service to Britain to torpedo-boat destroyers.

Norway threatens to stop its trade with Germany in view of the latter's blockade of the seas adjacent to Britain.

The German Ambassador says that next week will see embittered fighting on the British coast.

The German Emperor, Prince Henry of Prussia, and Admiral von Tirpitz have gone to Wilhelmshaven to direct the blockade.

Shipping in the Channel is normal. Bristol, Glasgow, and Liverpool shipping companies ignore the German threats.

The "Berliner Tageblatt" says Heidelberg municipality is raising a loan of 3,000,000 marks to buy foodstuffs.

"Eyewitness" states that during the bombardment at Violanies the Germans took refuge in dug-outs.

When they emerged the British infantry was on top of them. Those showing fight were immediately bayoneted.

Many discarded their arms and cried for mercy, offering watches, money, fruit, and cigarettes to buy their lives.

Seven officers from Australia or New Zealand, three of whom are dead, are specially mentioned in Sir John French's despatch.

The Zeppelin burnt at Faro Island was one of Germany's best airships.

The Zeppelin AE4 was caught in a snowstorm and destroyed. Zeppelins are said to be patrolling the North Sea.

In the De Wet trial evidence was given as to how the rebellion was planned.

Polling takes place in the Castlereagh electorate to-day.

Speaking at Maryborough (Victoria), Mr. Fisher said the Government was not going to abandon its recruiting policy.

Its business was to go not cautiously, but daringly, and take all risks that were in the public interest.

It was Australia's bounden duty to do something more for the Mother Country than had been done in the past.

Mr. Fisher at Kyneton, Victoria, said a strategic railway could be cheaply built from Adelaide to Brisbane.

It was for the people to say whether they would make this sacrifice to put their house in order.

A warm welcome was accorded the returned troops from German New Guinea by Sydney citizens yesterday.

The march to Victoria Barracks was witnessed by dense crowds, who cheered the soldiers and naval men heartily.

Lunch was provided at the Barracks for the troops, who were given an advance of pay before being dismissed.

The Wheat Acquisition Board yesterday considered the application from Victoria for 300,000 bushels of wheat.

It is understood that the question will not be decided till next week.

Milling circles believe the State will not be able to oblige the other Governments with the quantities they ask for.

The Arbitration Bill, which is to be brought in by the Government next session, will be far-reaching in character.

Transport A48, which left Brisbane with the Island troops, has gone ashore on the North Australian coast.

There is no danger, and the master reports that he expects to get off on the next tide.

The New Zealand Government has decided to invite applications for the position of official New Zealand war correspondent.

His function generally will be to record the history of the part taken by the New Zealand forces in the war.

Sir Gerald Strickland, with Lady Edeline Strickland and family, have been on an unofficial visit to Mount Kosciusko.

The three Australian destroyers have recently been employed in exploring the Sepeke River in German New Guinea.

They also paid visits to several islands in the Pacific, and weathered a couple of cyclones.

Mr. Flowers yesterday said that great progress was being made with the baby clinics.

A letter has been received from a Wollongong lady now residing in a coastal town in England.

Referring to the aerial warfare, she says: "There is no doubt we have men in our midst."

To ensure a pure milk supply, the Wellington (N.Z.) Hospital is considering the purchase of a dairy farm for £10,000.

Mr. Massey, New Zealand Prime Minister, is conferring with regard to the scarcity of refrigerated shipping facilities.

The estate of the late Mr. John Russell, of Albion Park, is valued at nearly £100,000.

As Mr. Russell died intestate, his properties will all be submitted to auction.

Through walking in his sleep, Mr. F. Blaxland, a well-known solicitor at Cooma fell from a balcony and fractured his leg.

Lightning struck a horseman and his horse at Orange yesterday, killing both instantly.

Mr. H. Wyndham, of Inverell, says that the growers are not responsible for the present high price of meat.

Business was brisk on the Sydney Stock Exchange yesterday.

A comparatively large number of sales were recorded at prices which showed an upward tendency.

During the current week a fair volume of business has been transacted at slightly firmer prices.

Quiet ruled in the mining market yesterday. Barriers were steady, but copper was easier, as was also tin.

Cable advices state that caustic soda has advanced £1 per ton, bluestone 10s, white-lead 10s, and red lead £2 per ton.

There was a good demand for eggs in Sussex-street yesterday at the previous day's advanced rates.

Prime quality loaf cheese from the South Coast met with a brisk inquiry, but secondary sorts were dull.

There was no movement in butter. In the forage section, prime dry yellow maize was to be had at 4/6 a bushel.

Forecast.—Warm to hot and sultry throughout, with further scattered thunderstorms, chiefly over southern districts; some good falls; squally northerly winds.

FARMER'S, SYDNEY.

WE FEATURE AT THE GLOVE COUNTER TO-DAY

AMERICAN SILK GLOVES, WITH DOUBLE-TIPPED FINGERS.

Farmer's American Silk Gloves have double-tipped fingers, and yet so skilfully are they woven that there is not the slightest suggestion of clumsiness, and the wear of the gloves is increased without detracting from their smart and elegant appearance. American Silk Gloves are particularly suited for present wear.

"The House of Steel,"
3 HUNTER-STREET, SYDNEY.

BACK FROM RABAUL.

Our soldiers who went away to New Guinea, and whom we welcomed back this week, have many stories to tell of the hard rough roads they encountered in their various marches inland. No one appreciates a good boot more than a soldier, and that is probably why one of those who wore a pair of our "Austral" Military Boots made it his business to come and tell us what wonderful wear he got out of them, and assured us that after he cleaned them up a bit they would be "good as new."

This boot is just as suitable for civil or ordinary wear, as it is for service purposes, and we have numbers of clients who buy it for its natty appearance and wonderful wearing quality alone.

THE MILITARY MODEL

is a boot made from the finest selected Tan Leather. It has the military Plain Front, Whole-cut back, no Seams, Calf Lining and Damp-proof Soles. It is fitted with Double Bellows Tongue, and is practically watertight, light and durable, an ideal boot for Walking or Riding. Dozens of our officers and men are wearing them now.

PRICE 27/6.

CARRIAGE PAID THROUGHOUT AUSTRALIA.

We also stock a splendid whole cut Pigskin Regulation LEGGING, PUTTEE, or SPRING, 30/. Other leathers, 11/6 and 16/6.

SKANDIA. SKANDIA. SKANDIA.
The successful CRUDE or KEROSENE OIL ENGINE.
As a comparison of the cost of running with other Engines, the SKANDIA ENGINE installed in the Schooner ALCAIRO, which supplanted a benzine engine of equal power, shows a saving of 5/ per hour on 8 hours per day, this is equal to £14 per week and £728 for 12 months, practically double the cost of Engine.
Manufactured in from 5 to 600 b.h.p., with special advantages, suitable for every kind of marine craft and cargo winches.
Also for stationary work, pumping, electric lighting, farm machinery, hoists, mining, and industrial sets.
Fuel used costs 6d per gallon.
Intending purchasers before deciding on another engine should look further into the merits of the SKANDIA, as it will do for them what it is doing for others. A better investment never known.
Write to-day for particulars, or, better still, call and have a demonstration.

THE NEW FERRO KEROSENE ENGINES have arrived. These are engines that will run with perfect satisfaction on pure kerosene. They are NOT MAKESHIFTS.
They will use less kerosene than benzine, and give slightly more power than the benzine type.
WHAT MORE CAN YOU WANT?
We have 4, 5½, and 11 h.p. in stock.
We hold large stocks of FERRO Benzine Inboard Motors,
FERRO Benzine Outboard Motors,
FERRO Portable and Stationary Motors,
CAILLE Outboard Motors,
STANDARD Marine Reversing Gears.
We also have a number of second-hand Launches and Engine Outfits at BARGAIN PRICES.
HALL BROS., LTD., 211 George-street North, Sydney.

STANDARD OIL ENGINES
are the highest grade OIL ENGINES on the market. We frequently receive, entirely unsolicited, valuable testimony regarding the exceptional qualities and general efficiency of these famous Engines.
Mr. J. M. Kingwell, of the Bellita Transport Co., Ltd., Mackay, N.Q., to whom we supplied a 12-h.p. "STANDARD" Engine four years ago, writes as follows:—"The Engine is still going good; have carried over twenty-four thousand (24,000) passengers without a miss; pretty good."
WAUGH and JOSEPHSON, Sole Agents,
Goulburn and Brisbane streets, Sydney.

CHEAPER FUEL FOR OIL ENGINES.
In response to many suggestions that we should provide a cheaper fuel for "Standard" and other Benzine Oil Engines, we have pleasure to intimate that we have made arrangements for supplying a high-grade Special Engine Distillate in any quantity at prices which will greatly reduce the running cost of all Benzine Oil Engines. Prices and further information from WAUGH and JOSEPHSON, Goulburn and Brisbane streets, Sydney.

STRONGEST, SPEEDIEST, SAFEST.

PALMER CORD TYRES.
PALMER CORD TYRES.

Strength is built right into the Palmer Cord Tyre—it is durable from tube to tread.

That it is speedy and safe was amply demonstrated in the remarkable speed trials at Brooklands, when the tyres stood up to a speed of over 100 miles in an hour—not PER hour.

No other tyres would hold out—but the Palmers did it.

THE ARMY AND NAVY APPRECIATE THE
"DOUGLAS" MOTOR CYCLES.

British Naval Expeditionary Force, Naval Air Section, 23rd November, 1914.

Dear Sirs,—I am about to carry out the pleasant duty I have been for some time wanting to accomplish, but until the present moment I have had no opportunity. I want to express my very genuine appreciation of the excellent service which my "DOUGLAS" has been giving out here, and is still continuing to do. I go out in all weathers, over paths, fields, and roads—good, bad, and impossible. I go Uhlan-hunting and expeditions with our armoured cars. I drive all out over these appalling roads in the course of my duties as a despatch rider, and, so far, I haven't had cause to touch the machine, save to tighten up nuts, a precaution I take after every ride. Machines never did have, and I hope never again will have, such a gruelling as they are getting here, and yet wherever one goes the story of the "DOUGLAS" rider is always the same—nothing but praise for the gallant little machine. I had a "DOUGLAS" of my own at home, and have had pleasure illimitable from it, but I must confess that when I first came here I was very doubtful as to how the little machine would stand up to this execrable French and Belgian pave. But here I am. I have done over 2500 miles, and not a falter; it is little short of marvellous. It is a most excellent thing for me, too, that I haven't had any trouble, for I was bundled off without a single spare; our machines were not equipped with three tool-bags, as were those you supplied to the army. The other day I had to go to headquarters, and saw there a bevy of despatch riders of the Royal Engineers, mostly mounted on "DOUGLASES." I feel I must write to let you know what a great debt I owe the splendid little machine. We have been in many tight corners together, within an ace of ———, but we've pulled through, thanks to the "DOUGLAS." Once a "DOUGLAS" always a "DOUGLAS."—Yours truly, RONALD B. MORRISON.

The above proves that the "DOUGLAS" is most suitable for our rough country roads. Write for Catalogue, etc.

THE "OVERLAND."

The Overland broke the record from Adelaide to Broken Hill, 325 miles, time 9 hours 48 minutes, averaging over 33 miles an hour, beating previous record by 4 hours 7 minutes, and putting up a better average by 10 miles an hour. Roads in bad condition, mere tracks in part, and sandy at that. Between 70 and 80 gates had to be opened.

THE BEST BY TEST.

This is a remarkable performance, but a better indication of Overland quality are the hundreds of satisfied owners in every part of the State. The Overland is in its glory on the rough roads.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

OPPORTUNITY!

You know the old saw "OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS BUT ONCE" was for generations considered true. The progress the world has made since has rendered it obsolete, for nowadays OPPORTUNITIES COME IN SHOALS to those WHO ARE READY! That's exactly IT. As a matter of fact, it was ever thus, but people WOULD NOT SEE IT SO. It now simply depends upon the individual. Men, and Women, too, hoard up their savings in a Savings Bank—YET PAY RENT. They get 3½ per cent. interest each year, while the Bank lends out your money and often makes a profit from anywhere like twenty-five to hundreds per cent. WHERE DO YOU COME IN?

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS AGAIN FOR YOU! is really persistently knocking for you day after day. RICKARD'S HOMESITES ON EASY TERMS offer those (who WILL pay rent yet put money away in the Bank's care for them to secure with YOUR money what YOU ought to get) opportunities TO SAVE AND MAKE MONEY—either by your taking up a lot or two of land for YOUR OWN HOMESITE, or as an INVESTMENT. Both spell profit in big figures. Not a paltry 3½ per cent. By paying a Small Deposit (£1) and 2/6 a week (or 10/ monthly), which includes principal and interest for each £25 worth purchased—many a poor man and woman have become property owners. They realised that RICKARD'S EASY TERMS is the opportunity for all—and grasped it more than once. WON'T YOU TRY IT ONCE IN YOUR OWN INTERESTS?
Any of the following Estates afford ample opportunities FOR YOU NOW. CALL OR WRITE FOR PLANS.

HURSTVILLE.
HOMEDALE NO. 2 ESTATE.

THERE ARE REASONS
WHY YOU SHOULD LIVE
AT HABERFIELD,
AT HABERFIELD,
"Sydney's Garden Suburb."

HABERFIELD is a triumph of modern Suburb Planning. It has assimilated the best features and ideas of the leading Garden suburbs of the world. Its mission is to offer you a home area the attractiveness of which will remain permanently undiminished.
It is a true Garden suburb. Wide, tree-lined streets and large open spaces, added to the gardens surrounding the handsome houses, make for freedom and fresh air. Moreover, the scheme of the houses is based on the most modern ideas and experience of ventilation and health conditions.
Then there is the matter of personal profit and gain. The wise man will seek to avoid a lifetime of rent-paying by owning his home. If you pay rent for 20 years you are still a tenant at the end of that time. No matter how much a district may have advanced and expanded, the only difference it will make to you will be, usually, an advanced rental.
Purchase your Home now at Haberfield, and as this skilfully and artistically designed Suburb continues to progress watch your own pocket grow.

VILLAS ranging from £650 to £1450 are offered for your selection—Villas that are modern in every way. Each is artistic and distinctive in exterior appearance, whilst the interiors are embellished with appropriate regard to the general scheme.

Haberfield is situated within easy reach of the heart of the city. The city man can be in his own garden within half an hour after he leaves his desk. It is unnecessary, once home, to leave the precincts of this charming suburb to obtain amusement or recreation of whatever kind. A fine park, tennis court, bowling green, swimming baths, and many other amusement areas and institutions are features of Haberfield.

A DEPOSIT OF £50
will place you in immediate possession of a Haberfield Home. The balance of purchase money is payable as rental. You never feel the strain. The rate of repayment is really less than the Property is worth on a rental basis.

Haberfield is reached by Abbotsford or Haberfield Trams from the City in thirty minutes, or by through train to Summer Hill in 10 minutes. Take tram in George-street, and alight at O'Connor-street.

STATIONS, FARMS, AND STOCK.

WHY PAY MORE FOR YOUR FARM?

You can find a LOT of READY-MADE FARMS, and YOU USUALLY PAY A LOT MORE MONEY FOR THEM than they are worth. Then, on top of this, you probably will HAVE TO WORK JOLLY HARD to get the farm going in the way you know it ought to—harder than by starting right on your own, in your own way, from the jump. Then, in some cases, they may be away out a long way from the touch of what's worth while—neighbours, friends, markets, railways, school for the kiddies, and church on Sundays.

RICKARD'S FARM SITES BETTER, AND COST LESS.

We have the choicest Farming Estates, which are a revelation in good value, and, combined with RICKARD'S EASIEST OF TERMS of payment, are absolutely HEAD AND SHOULDERS ABOVE ANYTHING YET OFFERED IN FARM LANDS, either in VALUE, QUALITY, ACCESSIBILITY, and reach of RAILWAYS, MARKETS, and centres of POPULATION.

ONE MAN AND FAMILY FARMLETS

are the Farms of the future—the Farms that pay bigger profits with least labour and expense. These we have in plenty, although you can secure large areas on any of them if you desire. All your need is to express what you want, and Rickard's Easy Terms will put you right on the spot you seek. Then you can go right on and become another instance among the big successes which numerous clients have attained by starting their own Farm in their own way, and SAVE BIG MONEY into the bargain.

ALWAYS READ RICKARD'S ADS.

For if you are after a Farm or a Home Site you could not better the values offered, and you will see for yourself that every possible advantage to you will justify your inquiry to us on any point of any property. Should you desire plan and further information, these we ALWAYS send by RETURN OF POST.

EASIEST OF TERMS. TORRENS TITLE.

Unequalled in simplicity or liberality of treatment—our terms afford the poorest man the chance of a lifetime. Only £1 down, and 10/ a month (2/6 a week), which includes principal and interest, at 5 per cent. per annum, for each £25 worth purchased. With such terms ready to your hand, why spend YOUR capital; use OURS instead.

CALL OR WRITE FOR PLANS AT ONCE

While you are thinking of what we've said; the happiest moment of a man's life is when he has done something which is another step up the ladder of success. Getting in touch with us is another.

FLUSHCOMBE FARMLETS (BLACKTOWN).—Here you have a superb fruit-growing property. Orchards all round. Poultry-raising and bee-keeping and market gardening can be carried on at the same time. Not half an hour's walk of Blacktown Railway Station. Public School, Post-office, and Stores, under an hour of city. The estate is like an immense park, absolutely clear, no stumps, rocks, or rough ground; first-rate soil. Blocks from an acre upwards, and choice value at only £20 an acre.

MAYVILLE ESTATE (Punchbowl).—Owing to its unusually central position, in a rapidly-growing district, this is one of the soundest and most profitable poultry and fruit properties on the market. Vegetables can also be grown in addition. Only 12 minutes of Punchbowl Station, next station this side of Bankstown, the future railway centre, and just over half an hour's run of the city. First-rate train service. Acre Blocks from £70 an acre. Larger areas can be secured by taking up adjoining blocks.

WENTWORTHVILLE FARMLETS.—At Wentworthville, within easy walking distance of two stations, a particularly good poultry and fruit property, that is selling rapidly, and every block left good as those already sold. This is an immensely popular and progressive district, and land values are on the up-grade. Wentworthville is on the Sydney-to-Penrith Line. Blocks from an acre upwards, £20 an acre. Splendid value.

RABY ACRES ESTATE (via Ingleburn or Liverpool).—Fine, undulating, park-like property, eight miles from Liverpool Station, four miles of Ingleburn Station. Splendid soil for mixed farming, fruit, poultry, market gardening, etc. Blocks from ten to thirty-three acres, one mile of Post-office, Public School, and Store. Close to city water-supply canal. This is an excellent opportunity and rare value from £5 10s an acre.

WYEE FARMS ESTATE, WYEE, 2 miles from Wyee Station, on the Sydney-Newcastle Line, three and a half hours' run of Sydney, and 1½ hours of Newcastle. Excellent soil and permanent water supply. Splendid mixed farming, dairying, orchard, etc., property. There are eight farms ranging from 25½ acres to nearly 44 acres each. This is a remarkably keen opportunity from £3/17/6 an acre.

TOMAH ESTATE, CARLINGFORD.—This is a very fine property, with rich, deep soil, with a gentle slope, affording excellent drainage. Fruit-growing is the staple production of this district, while Poultry and Vegetables make profitable side lines. Lovely country, and magnificent views. Very healthy situation (327ft above sea-level), under an hour's run of Sydney, via Clyde Junction, or just over half an hour via Eastwood and Strathfield. Only one block left, just over an acre, £62/10/.

We have also many other Farming Properties for Mixed Farming, Dairying, Fruit-growing, Market Gardening, and Poultry-raising, each of first-rate quality, and remarkably good value. These Farms and Farmlets are at Bankstown, Eastwood, Thornleigh, Riverstone, Springwood, Lawson, Fairfield, Woy Woy, etc. Call or write for plans, etc.

THE CREAM OF THE LAND FOR THE DAIRY FARMER.

In these days, when the demand for export butter is so keen, when the profits made in dairying are stirring every ambitious man and farmer, when the demand of the American Market for Australian butter is so great, it will pay handsomely to investigate,

FERODALE,

SITUATE IN THE FERTILE LOWER HUNTER.

Ferodale is absolutely the best subdivision ever offered by us. The Estate, formerly swamp land, has, by an extensive drainage system, been converted into a verdant stretch of wonderfully productive land. For dairy farming it is unequalled. The rainfall is 50 inches, the Raymond Terrace Butter Factory is within 3 miles, the Steamer's Wharf only 3½ miles. Very easy terms and low prices, in areas to suit purchasers.

Deposit of 10 per cent. gives possession, balance of purchase money over 15 years, but no payment for the first year.

ANOTHER PREMIER TRIUMPH.
GLORIOUS PULLETS AND UTILITY HENS.
100 White Leghorn Pullets and 300 White Leghorn and B.O. Hens.
From Mrs. L. B. Gresson's celebrated Koorong Poultry Farm, Killara. Mrs. Gresson's White Leghorns stand high as record egg-producers. Her successive wins in the "Test of Judgment" competitions stamps her as a breeder with inside knowledge of the poultry industry, which is reflected in the character of her stock.
100 White Leg. Pullets, on account of Mr. Bert Dayman, Eastwood, bred from Waite hens mated with Hillcrest cockerels, a combination with great possibilities.
Also on account of "JUDGE" GODLEY, of North Ryde, another choice consignment of W. Leg. and Blk. Orp. Pullets, which created such a favourable impression at last Thursday's sale.
Come and see Thomas Reid in his element selling the above choice birds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

RATEPAYERS of the MUNICIPALITY OF WILLOUGHBY

having very emphatically declared by Resolution at two Public Meetings their want of confidence in the present Council are advised by the Chatswood-Willoughby Progress Association to REFUSE SUPPLY, and NOT to pay their RATES until the Aldermen obey the mandate calling upon them to resign, and opportunity has been afforded to replace the present body by a combination in which the ratepayers will have confidence, and feel they can trust to manage the business of the Municipality in reasonable manner.

The earliest batch of Rate Notices served do not become due and payable until on or about the 20th February, and six months' grace is allowed by the Act from that date within which the amount may be paid free of any penalty or legal process for recovery.

Therefore the earliest issued Notices NEED NOT BE PAID BEFORE THE 20th AUGUST, and PAYMENT CANNOT BE ENFORCED till after that date.

If the Aldermen still continue to ignore the wishes of the ratepayers, and persist in refusal to tender their resignation as requested, the circumstances justify enforcing respect of the electors' demands by withholding supply and creating a crisis.

Your Baby's Health is too precious to be experimented with

If he is given a food that fails to nourish him, every day is a day of starvation, and leads to indigestion, weakness, and wasting. It takes weeks, sometimes months, to get a wrongly-fed baby back to good health, and whilst one food after another is tried, baby gets weaker and weaker, and the mother is consumed with perpetual anxiety and worry.

That is why the breast-fed baby is so fortunate: if the mother is healthy and the breast-milk is plentiful and rich enough to satisfy him, he rarely has a set-back.

Nearly every mother can feed her baby, now that she has Glaxo to help her; for, if the breast-milk is absent, a mother need not give up all hope until she has tried taking Glaxo herself regularly for a time. The Glaxo should be made rich and strong, and she should take a cupful or two every day—or she can have milk puddings made with Glaxo.

If the breast-milk is present, but deficient in quantity or poor in quality, it can usually be improved by the mother taking Glaxo herself, as suggested above. But should this not be entirely successful she can still partly feed baby, for she can give him a bottle of Glaxo in turn with the breast without fear of upsetting him, and only a mother who has fed her baby on Glaxo in this way can tell what a comfort it is. Should she have to go away suddenly, should she become sick, or from any cause be delayed and prevented from getting home at baby's regular feeding time—she does not have to hurry, get excited, over-heated, or tired (all of which are bad for a nursing mother)—for she knows that baby will have his bottle of Glaxo, will be satisfied and happy, and that his next feed can be breast-milk.

Glaxo can be given in turn with or take the place of breast-milk, because it is not an artificial food—there is nothing artificial about it—it is simply the solids of pure milk with extra cream and milk-sugar added. Glaxo is in dry form, because the superfluous water (the germ-carrier of milk) has been driven off by the Glaxo process, which prevents the risk of milk-borne disease, and makes the nourishing curd of the milk easily and quickly digestible by every baby from birth.

Doctors and nurses recommend Glaxo as a complete food for baby because they know it is the purest form of milk obtainable, and because it is free from all risk of milk-conveyed tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and other milk-borne diseases.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS

THE HEALTHY CHILD

The happy child is always a healthy child but the health of children depends greatly upon keeping their bowels regular and their stomach in good order.

Seeming stupidity at lessons and many an exhibition of temper can be traced to constipation, and anxious mothers often call in the doctor only to find that the child has some simple stomach trouble which could have been set right by Chamberlain's Tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets are a perfect laxative and stomach regulator and are safe and sure. They quickly relieve disorders of the stomach, indigestion, constipation or biliousness, and soothe the child's unnatural crossness and feverishness. The dose is small—half a tablet is sufficient for children from six to twelve years old.

If your child is bilious, its appetite poor, is fretful and "nattering," or restless in its sleep, all it needs is a dose of

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY SIR HENRY LUCY.)

Fresh Armies for War—A Phantom Battleship—Re-opening of the Stock Exchange—Criticising Lloyd George—A General of the Boer War.

WESTMINSTER, Jan. 9.

When the war started, Sir John French found himself in command of an Expeditionary Force, the numerical strength of which moved to expression of contempt the War Lord whose armies are mustered by the million men. In the spring we shall have in the field not less than six armies, each consisting of three Army Corps, and each commanded by famous fighting generals. Before the House of Commons adjourned for the recess, it had voted estimates providing for addition to the army, amounting to 1,126,400 men. Within little more than three months from the present time the odd million, fully trained, splendidly equipped, burning with desire and determination to equal if not excel the record of comrades earlier in the field, many of them alas, asleep under the sod, will be in the fighting line.

Nor does this levy, representing the finest manhood of the country, complete the ordered plan. Since fighting began the ranks of the Expeditionary Force have been filled up by reinforcements at the rate of 10,000 a month. It is obvious that to maintain that proportion with a million men in arms will require far larger resources in the way of home reserve. It is accordingly intended as soon as the first million are completed to raise another, to be forthwith trained and equipped ready to reinforce the six armies in the field. A question urgently asked by men in what is known as Kitchener's Army, a curiosity shared by the public, is, when will they begin to remove into the fighting line? Lord Kitchener is prone to keep his own secrets. I have, however, good reason to believe that before April is many days old, there will be a British army a million strong, allied with the augmented force of France, grimly setting about the task of driving the Germans over their frontier, bent on keeping tryst at Berlin with the Russians advancing from the east.

The destruction of the Formidable in the early hours of the New Year created a profoundly painful sensation. Had the ship gone down with her gallant crew fighting, there would be a certain sense of consolation. To be struck in the dead of the night by a bolt slung by an unseen enemy, to topple over and disappear in the stormy deep, is the kind of disaster that brings home to every battleship's messroom a sense of abject helplessness. The story is relieved by the heroism of the officers and men, notably of the captain, who, as one of the crew reports, suddenly faced by peril, gave his orders as calmly as if the ship had been in harbour with anchors down. Having seen embarked as many of the crew as the boats would hold, he, cigarette in mouth, went down with his ship. The incident goes someway to support the opinion expressed before the war by so high an authority as Sir Percy Scott, that, with submarines peopling the sea, the day of the Dreadnought is done.

The Formidable foundered between 3 and 3.30 in the morning. Before noon a communication from the Secretary of the Admiralty reached the newspaper offices, giving the fullest particulars to hand. This fact has close bearing upon an incident that for more than two months has mystified the public. Whilst it has been the topic of conversation wherever two or three Englishmen have met together, the supervision of the Censor has hitherto prevented its being recorded and commented upon in the press. The spell has been broken in no less unexpected quarter than the pages of the "Quarterly Review," and it may therefore be presumed that the ban has been removed. In the pages of the "Quarterly" it is related in detail how the first-class battleship Audacious, cruising off the coast of Ireland, foundered after contact either with a mine or a torpedo. The incident was, it is alleged, witnessed by the crews of several passing vessels, including an American liner bound for New York. On her arrival at that port the news was published in all the papers, the "Tribune," amongst others, having circumstantial accounts contributed by eyewitnesses. The German papers eagerly snapped up the news, whilst the English papers made no sign.

As the "Quarterly" says, attempt to conceal serious loss has lamentably ill-effect upon the public mind. It is not open criticism which sows distrust and want of confidence. It is the feeling that matters which the public ought to be acquainted with are painstakingly withheld from their knowledge. But are the Admiralty guilty of the charge brought against them? Is the Audacious at the bottom of the sea, or is she at this moment in Belfast undergoing repairs? There are people who aver that within their personal knowledge the latter is the fact. The promptitude with which the Admiralty communicated to the public the loss of the Formidable, indicates that either they were innocent of effort to hush up disaster on the Irish Coast, or that, profiting by experience, they have abandoned a foolish and futile policy of concealment.

The reopening of the Stock Exchange this week marks a notable episode in the story of a grave crisis. Declaration of war with Germany precipitated a panic which threatened the stability of financial fabrics not only in this country but throughout two hemispheres. Had British credit broken down, a prospect which for some anxious hours darkened the city, the crash would have been followed by a general debacle. The London market had for some weeks been undermined by the action of sellers from Berlin and Vienna. Secretly informed of the imminence of the war, which the unblushing German Emperor to-day laments was forced upon him by perfidious England, German and Austrian financiers unloaded on the London market huge quantities of stock. This conspiracy served a double purpose. It enabled them to fleece the hated English, whilst the natural effect upon the market would so far weaken it that it must topple over on the declaration of war.

Fortunately for England and the world at large, the supreme control of the situation was in the hands of a strong, resolute man, unhampered by slavish submission to precedent. Instantly realising the near approach of financial earthquake, Mr. Lloyd George summoned to Downing-street the heads of the great banks and the principal leaders of the Stock Exchange. Assisted by the Lord Chief Justice, who served apprenticeship on the Stock Exchange, he took counsel with these authorities. The result was edicts closing the Stock Exchange, temporarily raising the bank rate to 10 per cent., establishing a moratorium for debts, and authorising a lavish issue of one pound and ten shilling notes.

The influence of this prompt action was immediate. Thousands of long-established firms, which had suddenly found themselves on the brink of destruction, regained their equilibrium. General credit was restored, and trade, for the moment paralysed, revived, and is to-day in a condition that varies surprisingly little from that established in normal times. It is one of the larger ironies of life that two short years ago Mr. Lloyd George and the Lord Chief Justice, known at the time as Mr. Rufus Isaacs, objects of the city's profoundest distrust and dislike, find themselves on the opening of the New Year enthroned in its highest esteem, its profoundest gratitude. So predominant is the feeling that no one need be surprised to find Gog and Magog, legendary deities of the city, removed from their places in Guildhall, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Lord Chief Justice being installed on their pedestals.

The death of General Kelly-Kenny revives memories of the Boer war. I made his acquaintance some five or six years ago under the favourable circumstances attendant upon a three-weeks' "cure" at Homburg. It is the general custom of the place to take the first of the canonical three glasses of water at half-past 7 in the morning, the others at intervals through an hour's marching up and down the tree-shaded alleys. Having met Kelly-Kenny at a little dinner given by the Speaker of the House of Commons, a fellow-patient, we foregathered morning after morning, he talking with instructive freedom about the general muddle of matters in South Africa during the war.

A WOMAN'S LETTER.

Winter Sales.

LONDON W., Jan. 8.

London is awaking from the brief holiday people allowed themselves at Christmas. The streets are fuller, and the crowds of happy faced children with their mothers throng the shops. London has given itself up during this week to the attractions of the winter sales, which are in full blast, and will so continue until the end of January. I notice the Belgian ladies are very enthusiastic spectators, at any of the bargains offered at the moment. The chief bargains are, outside house and table linen, black silks and satins, and indeed all black materials, as well as black furs. There is a veritable craze for black; it is very smart, and women look their best in it. This, in addition to blue serges, comprises the Alpha and Omega of women's toilettes. How enough blue serge is woven and dyed to keep pace with the demand for this delightful material I know not. It is certainly true that the skirts of gowns are getting wider, though when a tunic is worn, the underskirt seems merely to be wrapped round the feet. But things are really wider. The tunics are nearly all of them pleated into knife pleats, and give, as woman walk, with the elan of a Highlander's kilt. The basques of the long coats are pleated, and even the very thin materials are now accordion pleated.

I saw some days ago a group of smart demi toilette gowns, mainly black or black mixed with white. One that I particularly admired was a white charmeuse gown covered with an accordion pleated overskirt of fine chiffon, edged with some black Chantilly lace. The bodice corresponded, and had drapings of the chiffon pleated material with pleatings of tulle and black lace near the neck. All bodices without exception have an open front, and the line from throat to waist is unbroken. These fronts come together on their way down. It is a fashion I shall be sorry to say good-bye to, for it is so becoming to all ages of women. One of the demi toilettes that I admired in my "reconnaissance" was of the very softest black charmeuse, draped and hanging closely to the figure with some deep fringes of handsome cut jet.

Mourning and the Troops.

Jet, now that mourning is a sad necessity, figures largely on the handsomest toilettes. As for crepe, I do not remember seeing one Englishwoman wearing crepe on her clothes since the outbreak of war. The Belgian and French ladies wear crepe mostly in the form of very long veils falling to their feet. They occasionally put some crepe as a trimming here and there. But our own people seem with one voice to have discarded this terrible emblem of sorrow. Widows more often than not wear a simple black hat, with a long black gauze veil floating from the back. They still stick to the neat lawn collar, and occasionally one sees cuffs. All this kind of thing has been wonderfully modified, and is much less formal than a few years ago. No one is wearing full evening dress just now, there are no dinner parties or dances. Life is very simple, and given up to good works of many kinds. The working parties still go on, and the Queen still issues lists each week of the things most wanted for the different nursing centres. The tale of wounded goes on, though less in numbers since the operations are more or less confined to the trenches.

Each Saturday my son goes to the London Hospital to see wounded soldiers, and takes with him copies of the "Sydney Mail," that are sent me each week. These papers are eagerly read by the soldiers, who take a kind of "'busman's holiday," and look carefully into the drawings of the uniforms and equipment of the Australian and New Zealand troops. The wonderful pictures of tropical scenery appeal to those men who have served abroad, while the recent pictures of the havoc wrought in France and Belgium by the German army recall events of which they themselves have had ocular proof. You meet the wounded "Tommy" everywhere. Ladies call for them at hospitals, and take them for drives; you meet them at picture palaces. They take their women-folk with them, and point out the special points of each film. In short, they seem to like to live their battles over again. I asked a Grenadier Guardsman the other night if the pictures were really like the life at the front. He said they were "terribly" like them.

A nephew of mine in a Ghurka regiment has come back wounded, and has been in hospital in Colonel Hall Walker's beautiful house, Sussex Lodge, Regent's Park, which has been turned into a hospital for wounded officials. It is wonderful to see men who have been living as he was for ten and twelve days at a time in the trenches throwing off all their war stain and fatigue in this beautiful, luxurious home. Their wives are allowed to spend a great portion of the day with them, and my niece actually arrived from the Isle of Wight in time to eat her Christmas dinner at the bedside of her husband. The food and attendance at Sussex Lodge are splendid. Colonel and Mrs. Hall Walker devote their entire staff of servants to the care of the house and cuisine. Hospital nurses and orderlies do the actual nursing. The food is absolutely "de luxe."

Mrs. W. A. Horn and her husband are Australians, and have a hospital for wounded officers in their beautiful house at Wimbledon Park. This Mrs. Horn runs with the usual help of competent nurses and men servants. No more delightful spot than the broad terrace in front of the house could be imagined; an ideal place for invalid men. All Mrs. Horn's sons are in one service or the other, and every male relation she has is fighting. This is only one of many examples of the way people with money are doing their "bit" during this awful time of trouble.

Theatres and Entertainments.

I need hardly tell you that this has been a very distressing time for actors and actresses. Few people go to the theatre at all, an exception has been made during the Christmas holidays on behalf of the children. It is very difficult to know how to amuse children during a long vacation in London. Therefore, the theatres which cater more or less for children are doing better than was expected.

Sir Herbert Tree's wonderful production of "David Copperfield" is drawing fine houses. I saw the play the evening after its first production, and came away delighted with the whole rendering of a story which presents great difficulties.

Mr. Louis Napoleon Parker has, in "David Copperfield," attained a success quite as far-reaching as any one could have attained. The play, needless to say, centres round Micawber, played by Sir Herbert Tree with inimitable humour and discrimination.

He is the actual Micawber as you see him illustrated in the old Cruikshank or Hablot K. Browne's illustrations. The swelling front, the rolling eye, the egotism of the man. It is all faithfully rendered. Sir Herbert has never done anything finer in comedy than his Micawber. He was, if you remember it, a fine, the finest, Malvolio of our age. And there are in Micawber certain elements which recall the pompous Elizabethan. His making of Punch has set the fashion for hot Punch in a season of influenza. Could there be a finer tribute. From first to last he was irresistible, the house was in a roar of unaffected laughter, and you have only to live in London at this time to realise what a wonderful thing it is to see men and women laughing till their sides are sore.

But Sir Herbert has another feather in his cap. He doubles Micawber with Daniel Peggotty. He plays the latter part with wonderful tenderness and feeling. He is the old, rough early Victorian sailor-man to the life, the sailor as I knew him intimately during my young life in Port Adelaide during the early 'Sixties. He brought the tears to my eyes several times, for it recalled to my mind many tender touches and kindnesses I received as a child during the time my father, Captain Bloomfield Douglas, was president of the Marine Board and Collector of Customs in Adelaide. He ran his marine affairs upon the lines of the navy, and in this way, as children, we knew the different "hands" at the boat yard, at the semaphore on Lefevre's Peninsula, as well as the crews of the Government vessels. I think of many of these old friends now when at various periods of sorrow in my family they were the tenderest of men in their proffered sympathy and little practical kindnesses. This is why Sir Herbert's Peggotty touched me so closely. It was so unexpectedly delicate and true. I shall not forget the pathos of his scene when Little Em'ly is brought back to him at David's lodgings. "I thank God that He has given me back my little darling in His own way." It was quite beautifully said.

WAR TIME IN LONDON

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

H.M.S. Formidable.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

The loss of the Formidable was undoubtedly a shock to us. We had only just made an end of welcoming in the New Year. We had given it hail as the auspicious year of deliverance. We looked to it to give us greater and more decisive successes than any we had known. On all sides the prospect of that consummation was favourable, and then the tragic news fell upon us. A battleship, no less, and fearful toll of human life. Thereafter London took its New Year's Day with ill grace. This was a scurvy beginning. Indeed, if London were at all given to search for omens in the events of the hour, it had found this sad business of New Year's morning a shatteringly gloomy forecasting of the months to come. But, as it happens, London recks not of omens, and London has borne sea losses before this. So it comes to pass that now, when the first shock of it is spent, we sorrow after the Formidable and her men, if at all, with the old proud restraint and reticence of London. The loss is added unto our other losses. We grieve at the thought of a Chatham with its widows and orphans by the hundred. We thrill at the story of the sinking Formidable and its commander's signal to the near-at-hand cruiser to stand off as there were submarines about. We stare at the page which tells us of the fearful voyage in those stormy seas of two hundred sailors out in open boats. We mourn the deaths of yet another gallant company, and then we put by thought of the Formidable and set ourselves to think of the still great and still unchallenged array of ships in the Channel and north of it. They are yet afloat. Their active work for us has hardly begun. Their passive work is beyond calculation. We can afford to be calm over the Formidable—especially in this week, when the New Year is fulfilling itself, is bringing us good news all round.

The Turkish Rout.

Our west front operations remain a matter of inches, but they are inches gained. Out eastward, though, what a havoc is this the Russians have wrought upon the Turks! We guessed it was something out of the ordinary when the Grand Duke and General Joffre exchanged messages of congratulation. They are silent men, both of them. They say as little as possible. If they should seem to be speaking to each other the soft words meet for things done, we may be sure that those things have been done. In this case it would appear that two Turkish army corps have been practically annihilated, and that fearful slaughter is marking the headlong retreat of the remnant through snow-bound mountainous country. This will be an irretrievable disaster to the unhappy Turkish army, and the already serious dissension in Constantinople will in no wise be appeased by it. The Austrians are in little better case, and in Poland the German advance upon Warsaw appears to be held up. We are looking east this week with satisfaction.

Stock Exchange and Prize Ships.

The upward tendency of our prospects was suggested in two minor regards in London this week. The Stock Exchange is once more open, certainly with carefully restricted activities, but full of energy after its months of closed doors. Once again Capel Court swarms with the hurrying financiers, upon whom the merely ordinary citizen gazes with awe as they go calmly to their bewildering and multitudinous transactions. Once again Throgmorton-street piles itself up in the afternoons, and all the mysterious manoeuvrings of its historic kerbstones are pleasantly in evidence. In the hardly less historic saleroom of the Baltic, too, German prize ships have been sold amid scenes of enthusiasm. The place was crowded, and the bidding for the steamers seemed to reveal a most determined intention to sacrifice hard cash on the altar of patriotism. Only so, at any rate, can we account for the prices cheerfully paid for the booty—one steamer, the N.D.L.'s Schliessen, topping £60,000 before it was finally knocked down. We do not quite know what is the new Admiralty scheme of bounties, which is to replace the old arrangement of prize money, but we understand that the men of the navy will not lose anything by it. And there is not an Englishman alive who would grudge the handy men a penny of their so richly deserved spoils of the sea.

Kitchener and Curzon.

For the time being the House of Lords is the British Parliament—in view of not long past events, an ironically merry quip by the jade Fortune. And the House of Lords is amply justifying its renascence. There are able men in the House of Lords—plenty of them—and more than a few brilliant men. And in these days hardly any but the able and the brilliant men take part in the debates. For another thing, both their positions and their reputations are assured in a measure that only very few of the commoners can boast, and the axes they grind are correspondingly less in evidence. In the House of Lords, thus, you may take unstinted joy in the delightfully easy and graceful fencing of the Marquis of Crewe, who has to represent the Government in all sorts of capacities, and must in consequence stand up to and parry the whole armory of Opposition assault. You may hear there, also, Lord Selborne, whom, as befits an eminent man, it is never less than a pleasure to hear, and Lord Haldane, who is as erudite and as philosophically calm as ever for all the attack upon his former Germanic tendencies,—and other peers of high renown. Most of all, Lord Kitchener makes war statements there, and Lord Curzon, in the absence of Lord Lansdowne, leader of the Opposition, replies to them. No one seems to have passed a remark on this curious juxtaposition of Kitchener and Curzon—though I rather suspect Sir Henry Lucy will. Their relations when the one was Viceroy of India and the other was engaged in reorganising the Indian Army, are a vivid memory. Now they face each other in the Lords, both big men and resolute men. Kitchener reads his carefully reticent statements; and the eloquent Curzon, brimful of knowledge of the affairs of most of the Empire, rolls out voluminous replies, criticises and praises the Secretary for War with equal fluency and fearlessness. This week's war statement to the Lords found Kitchener as uncommunicative as ever, and Curzon as mercilessly out for information. When the Commons meet, no doubt we shall find the Opposition eager to fulfil its function of reasonable criticism of and reasonable objection to Government measures. Meanwhile we are glad of the House of Lords.

Mr. Dyson's Cartoons.

Mr. Will Dyson, the ex-Melbourne black-and-white artist, long since established himself in London as an exponent of the grotesque. But that fame was limited to the pages and the readers of a not too prosperous Labour journal, which, in truth, survived its daily struggle largely by reason of Mr. Dyson's prolific talent. His success as a pictorial critic of the forces which the "workers" feel called upon to fight, was immensely helped by the fact that he brought to London a novelty in the shape of Australian humour as applied to the Labour versus Capital problem. London's Labour supporters, indeed, were overjoyed with the Australian humorist's way of disposing of that problem, and Mr. Dyson's great talent did the rest. Now, however, he has appealed to a wider field, and one does not doubt that his exhibition of war cartoons at the Leicester Galleries will greatly extend his reputation. They are amazingly clever, grotesque, and ferocious. Their skill of design and draughtsmanship is often astonishing, and their pungent commentary on the German attitude towards the world takes rank among the most damaging attacks on militarism.

There is nothing very extraordinary in the fact that kangaroos have been so numerous on the island of Herm, near Guernsey, as to drive the partridges into the sea. There have been places in England where these picturesque marsupials have bred freely, and not long ago a resident of Dinard, in Brittany, who stocked them on his land, was so overrun with the creatures that he was obliged to organise a series of shoots to keep their numbers down.

KOSCIUSKO.

(BY R. M.)

There are many descriptions of Kosciusko, but this is a description from another point of view. There is a beaten path to the point of view from which he is generally observed, but the writer travelled along an unbeaten bush track. There are two sides by which to climb towards the giant's crest; one possesses a decent grade for motor cars, but the other possesses a grade that for motor cars would be positively the reverse.

The advance began at Khancoban, the uppermost settlement on the Murray River, and consisted of five pack-horses and a regiment of 15 thoroughbreds, though a few were only thoroughbred ponies. Anyhow, they were dashingly high-born mountaineers in this noted region of horses, some having narrowly missed a turf record by the turn of the dice of Fate. The first item of interest was Geehi Wall, the famous steep descent to the Geehi Valley. There are current stories of the number of equine skeletons to be found at its foot, mostly pack-horses done to death in days of old through a stumble that could not possibly be redeemed. There were also riders who met a similar fate, but a better grade has since been found, which robs the wall of much of its excitability. All the same, it was upright enough in places, and the track was jagged with a dark shale, said to be richly oil-bearing, whilst tree ferns lined the route we followed along a narrow creek. Timber shut out the view, and the party did not make a detour to the old track to seek for skeletons, but descended abruptly to the Geehi River.

The Geehi River is a poet's, as are all rushing mountain streams. Its bed is composed of rounded pebbles of granite of varying size and hue, colourful through the transparency of water. This is the sole Australian region of snow-born streams, and after a warm ride it was good to brandish the pannikin on the saddle strap and quaff deep. The horses picked their way across gingerly, and a few yards later came to the Murray River once more, in full view of the impressive Murray gates. The largest torrent in the land has its source in two channels, one of which is known as the Indi, and unites again at these gates, formed by mountains of wonderfully similar size and shape, only divided by the current. Looking down-stream they loom very darkly, very mathematically placed by the Great Designer; it is as though Nature here threw open some of her plans to order mountains and rivers.

After three fords, plus their emerald reflections, the Geehi Valley opens, hemmed by mountains. The horizon is a study in outlines, and one of the outlines is Kosciusko, so close that each rocky outcrop is distinct, and each snowy crevasse defined. The Ram's Head particularly outstands; there is no view of it as fine apart from the setting. All eyes turn to Kosciusko, whose crest we are yet to reach. Certainly it stands apart, in the subtle atmosphere of height, the lucid ethereal worn like a halo. The practical know the valley as Behr's Flat, where cattle by the hundreds and sheep by the thousands graze in the summer; whatever the season elsewhere it is always green and glorious in this fastness. Here we pitch our camp, and partake of the evening meal, racing the darkness, with a candle stuck in a forked stick as table-centre, till a young moon peers over the hill, a coming event that casts, not a shadow, but a gleam before her, on the opposite mountain. The pack horses shed their burden of blankets, and the mattresses are made of ferns, cut on the spot, most springy and comfortable, whilst two huge log fires burn in front of the tents, chiefly for ornamentation.

The delightfully fresh morning was devoted to river-dips and the chasing of horses; then the party wound on its twisting way, leaving the valley behind. Twenty ferny bush miles, and up and down into frequent creeks, and Groggan is reached, a well-known summer stock refuge, identified by a stock-hut on the once more discovered Murray. The clumpy snow-grass grew here in plenty, and horses and cattle revelled in its midst. The contrast from the parched country beyond the coastal radius was remarkable; no wonder the Government is in future restricting the expense of snow-lease held by one individual. Our next adventure was Leather-barrel, or Little Mick, a combined descent and ascent that dwarfed the claims of Geehi. Imagine the sunlit scrub in the rocky creek at the bottom and the dense bush foliage at a perilous angle. Some of the pack-horses became fractious at the very sight, and chose pleasant by-ways rather than stick to the steep and narrow path of a pack-horse's righteousness. There were shouts from the drivers to those in front to keep clear of them, with their waddling burdens, for should they happen to roll they would force others to follow their bad example, with possibly tragic results. There is an excuse for pack-horses, but the riders have such faith in their sure-footed steeds that they take them for granted, though most dismounted where the track degenerated to a slither. At the bottom there was much splashing and drinking and indulgence in wild raspberries, that grew among the brush, then the steep upward climb, to the accompaniment of the horses' puffing, and the sound of blows being showered on the laziest pack-horse. At the top a spell; then on beneath the upright mountain ash, till we begin the climb of the Long Spur, which leads to a paradise of emerald snow-grass at the top of the Watershed. About here the first views begin; the Watershed overlooks a circle of mountains, with a mighty gorge between; their scale is all their glory, save for a smoke-haze that still reveals it.

Perhaps it is unromantic to think of the perpetual presence of cattle, yet we catch glimpses of fit-looking young stock, proving they are drawing well on these distant green resources. The watershed itself is a remarkable plateau summit, and separates the rainfall on either side of its giant slopes. Not far beyond, when the grey-green masses of granite visible from Geehi Valley are close under observation, we turn off on a rocky track under thick-growing snow-gums, whose growth is eternally twisted and stunted by the weight of the snow, and begin the descent to the Thredbo River. The sun is setting, and from the turn-off we overlook the river winding miles and miles, a slim and distinctive thread between naked vast-sloped hills, with an array of Alps flaming aside, crested, not with snow, but fire, and based in fathomless shade.

It is almost dark when we unsaddle, and the camps are pitched, with snow-grass for a bed, and the insistent music of Wombat Creek beside us to lure us to sleep with a song struck out of granite. The night and morning are divinely cool; the day is devoted to fishing the Thredbo for trout, delicious covered with damp mud and cooked in the ashes.

The third day we scale Kosciusko's summit, six miles ahead. The vegetation ceases, but smoke somewhat blurs the most classical outlines in Australia, and the three historical peaks, Clarke, Townsend, and Twynam, are but dimly limned. It is the luck of the sightseer that the landscape, a circle with a radius of 100 miles, is this time not fully visible, but the season is the dryest on record elsewhere, and the bush is seizing the opportunity to purge herself with fire; Kosciusko himself is burning below. A perfect day for this outlook has to be courted, for the wind is always high, and rain or snow eternal possibilities. Six miles down the civilised slope, we reach the bottomless Blue Lake, nested in its leafless eyrie, surrounded by the stark rock ridges that make its originality acute, and atone for its lack of foliage. Very lonely, very unique, and vast; one of the outposts at the edge of the world, appointed a special mission for the study of proportions, which may be said to include the science of meteorology. This is the goal; we have climbed 60 rugged miles to attain it, and as we breathe the rare air and look back on the green bush journey, we decide every instant has been its own reward. Besides, some of us wonder if, next time we see Groggan, it may not be an inland sea, for a proposal is on foot to form the great dam on the Murray in the system of locking the rivers, at this mountain site, instead of flooding the rich and precious valley of the Upper Murray, now standing a severe strain as relief country during the south-western and Riverina drought. Levels have been taken, and the promoters of the scheme are pointing out the advantages of a deep basin between the hills, instead of a lake lower down. On our return journey we will say a conditional farewell to Groggan; if it is to be obliterated, it is for a noble cause.

MISSION STUDY.

The Mission Study Council held its first meeting for the year on Monday afternoon last. There was a good attendance, and several important matters relative to the year's work were discussed. The main features of the council's work are the training of leaders, and the holding of inspirational conferences. Much interest therefore attaches to the forthcoming summer school, to be held at Springwood at Easter, and to various suburban conferences now being arranged. Two of these have been held this week—one at Annandale on Monday evening, when addresses were given by Mr. J. W. Dovey and Rev. J. T. Lawton; and one at Lakemba on Thursday evening, where the speakers were Rev. F. C. Hall and Miss Fraser. Several circles will be formed as the result of these gatherings.

NORTH COAST RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—My answer to Mr. John MacFarlane, M.L.A., who writes that "I have quoted from some printed document that an error of £100,000 has been made, and that it is on my side, etc." Well, we shall see. In reply to question No. 6337, Mr. Hutchinson, engineer in chief, giving evidence before the Decentralisation committee, said:—"The cost of the 8th section of the North Coast Railway was £247,899, in 1911. In May, 1913, Mr. Hutchinson increased his estimate from £247,899 to £415,846, an increase of £168,000. In September, 1914, there was laid on the table of the Legislative Assembly, report No. 4, dated September 11, 1913, printed by authority of the printing committee of the House, and containing the agreement made with the Norton Griffiths Corporation, and attached was Mr. Hutchinson's estimate for all the works covered by the agreement, and to be constructed by the Norton Griffiths Corporation. Amongst them are the 8th section of the North Coast Railway at a cost of £415,846. Now, this agreement only awaits the ratification of Parliament for the work to be started next November. All the authorities quoted can be purchased at the Government Printing Office. Mr MacFarlane now states that on the authority of the Director-General the cost has been further increased by £100,000. Well, it is certainly an enormous increase from £247,899, in 1911, to £574,846, in January, 1915, an increase of £267,846, or £20,000 more than Mr. Hutchinson's total estimate in 1911. Whilst the Norton Griffiths Corporation have entered into a contract to do the work for £415,846, I hope some member of Parliament will ask for an explanation for the difference in the three sets of figures, and until that explanation is given, my figures, quoted from official documents, are just as good as the figures quoted by Mr. MacFarlane, and are not to be disposed of by Mr. MacFarlane's reference to a printed document, quoted by me. Mr. MacFarlane then goes on and writes "Another misleading statement, etc." Well, let us examine this alleged misleading statement. I stated that the Public Works Committee took evidence at Grafton, Woolgoolga, Coff's Harbour, Bellingen, and Nambucca, and recommended that £190,000 be spent in harbour improvements at Coff's Harbour, and this after the chairman of the Works Committee constituted that body into a regular decentralisation committee. It is true, the same body recommended that some money be spent on extending the northern wall at Clarence Heads, but he did not tell your readers how many times previously the Public Works Committee had turned down the further expenditure of money at the Clarence Heads, where already half a million has been spent, and all to be shown for it is 16ft at high tide on the bar. Compare this with 30 feet at low tide for £190,000 at Coff's Harbour. Mr. MacFarlane then goes on to say that the work was commenced at Coff's Harbour before the committee reported on it. Yes, a few thousands were spent in testing the stone to see if it were suitable, a matter entirely within the authority of the Minister for Works, as your correspondent very well knows. Sufficient to say that the committee recommended the work. Parliament has authorised the expenditure of £190,000, of which £6800 has already been spent, vide the Auditor-General's report, and for Mr. MacFarlane's information it is proposed to go on with the work, primarily because it is the only way to give any relief to the Bellingen and Nambucca people when their bars are bad, which is very often. It is certainly amusing to have Mr. John MacFarlane now condemning the line via Coramba and Glenreagh, which was the route he advocated when he was chairman of the Public Works Committee. I am, etc.,

P. J. MACNAMARA, hon. secretary,
Chamber of Commerce.
Coff's Harbour, Feb. 8.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

A LORD CHIEF JUSTICE.

All who have seen Lord Alverstone on the Bench, particularly in the scarlet and ermine of a criminal Judge, must have realised how many of the qualities of an ideal Lord Chief Justice he possessed. True, he was by no means the greatest lawyer who has occupied that position. His success at the Bar had depended upon his powers of advocacy, his shrewd common sense, and his infinite capacity for taking pains rather than upon any supreme legal faculty. But he had a plan for getting to the heart of a case, and discarding irrelevancies which made his court famous for the rapid despatch of business. His force of character made him most emphatically master in that court, as bullying and brawling barristers soon found to their cost, and, like the late Sir Frederick Darley, to whom he bore a distinct remembrance, he "looked the part" to perfection. His "Recollections of Bench and Bar" is the record of 50 years' services to the law which proved a generous if an exacting mistress. "Dicky" Webster was spared the disappointments of his profession, and success came rapidly. "Looking back at my life," he writes, "that which strikes me most is the extent to which I was favoured by good fortune." But this was not the only factor in his success. Luck would have been of small advantage had he not been able to make the most of the opportunities it brought him, and no one ever laid the foundations of a brilliant career on a surer basis of hard work than did Richard Webster. His father had wisely advised him to spend some time first in a city solicitor's office, and then in a surveyor's office, his experience in which stood him in good stead afterwards. After he was called he became the industrious apprentice with a vengeance. At Cambridge he had been an athlete of distinction and a musician of more than amateur talent, but now he permitted himself to indulge in these distractions but rarely. He came to his chambers early, and left them late. He was assiduous in his attendance at court, "in case Sergeant Parry, Mr. Murphy, or Mr. Day, or anyone else wanted assistance, and I never lost a chance of holding a brief that was offered me." He became known as a painstaking and efficient "devil," and after he had successfully conducted several difficult cases during the absence of his leaders, he was regarded in legal circles as a young man with a future.

Briefs began to flock in rapidly, and less than 10 years after his call to the Bar he took silk. This, by the way, was a record at the time, though it has since been eclipsed. He attributes his success to a habit of acquainting himself at first-hand with everything connected with his case. Thus he once spent a day in the screw shaft and engine-room of a liner to see for himself the details of certain machinery, the patent rights of which were in dispute. Another time he crawled about for hours in the tunnels of a coal mine, and, with the knowledge he had thus gained, he was able to confound opponents who relied upon the promptings of "experts" for their material. He became the counsel whom everyone briefed in heavy cases requiring technical knowledge—resumptions, rating, patent, and scientific cases—and established his position in his profession so firmly that, in 1885, when standing as a candidate for Parliament in the Conservative interest, he was appointed Attorney-General by Lord Salisbury. This, he observes, was "a great and almost unprecedented honour," as he had been neither Solicitor-General nor even a member.

After he became Attorney-General his work assumed a more "popular" character. While in private practice he had consistently "avoided what are called 'causes celebres.' They diverted one's time and attention from the ordinary work of dealing with the heavy cases in which I was engaged." But this was no longer possible, and Sir Richard found himself, almost for the first time, engaged in "sensational" cases of every description. He appeared, for instance, at one time and another, in the Parnell Commission, the trial of Jabez Balfour, the Jamieson Raid prosecutions, and other notable affairs. He was responsible for the rescue by the authorities of a certain Chinese law student who was imprisoned at the Chinese Embassy. Here the author displays a delightful touch of "judicial ignorance." "I lost sight of him afterwards," he remarks, "but I remember seeing his name occupying a prominent position in connection with some political proceedings in China." The man was Sun Yat Sen, and the "political proceedings" were the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty and the establishment of the Chinese Republic! Sir Richard also represented Great Britain in the Venezuela boundary arbitration and the Behring Sea fisheries dispute, and was one of the arbitrators in the Alaska boundary. In 1900 his translation to the calmer spheres of the Bench set the seal on a brilliant and busy career.

Lord Alverstone's reminiscences are for the most part written in a serious vein, but occasionally he permits himself to tell amusing anecdotes; those, for instance, which illustrate the Olympian dignity and importance of barristers' clerks. On one occasion Lord—then Mr.—Herschell returned to chambers from his vacation, and asked his clerk what was going on. The clerk said "Nothing in particular." "Well," said Herschell, "but haven't they been asking you anything?" "Oh, yes," he replied, "they have asked me whether we're going to take a puisne Judgeship. I said, 'thank heaven we haven't fallen as low as that.'" His confidence that greater things were in store was fully justified. But circumstances alter cases. When Lord Bowen, never a strong man in health, was offered a Judgeship, his clerk said laconically, "Our voice is weak, and the sooner we get on the Bench the better." And this story of Chief Justice Jervis must have struck a sympathetic chord in the mind of the author, who was extremely impatient of delay, and abhorred circumlocution. Jervis, when a slow pleader remarked "I beg your Lordship's pardon, but I apprehend that my arguments cannot proceed with as much rapidity as your Lordship's mind," retorted, "For heaven's sake don't stop to tell me that."

There is no space to deal with Lord Alverstone's reminiscences of celebrities of the Bench, Bar, and politics, or his comparisons of the forensic methods of to-day and yesterday, or his impressions of American courts and pleaders. The book is full of interesting matter, and, though the author dwells chiefly upon the professional side of his experiences, it by no means follows that the layman will find that this prejudices his enjoyment. (Edward Arnold.)

MR. ROOSEVELT'S RIVER.

Last year the world was edified by a violent controversy between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Savage Landor, a controversy which rivalled in acrimony that between Cook and Peary. Each challenged the genuineness of the other's discoveries in South America; but whatever may be the case with those of Mr. Landor, Mr. Roosevelt's explorations are thoroughly authenticated. They are described in "Through the Brazilian Wilderness," by the versatile Mr. Roosevelt himself. The expedition was despatched under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History. Its original object was zoological research; but the Brazilian Government suggested that it should co-operate with a Brazilian expedition which, under the command of Colonel Ronalon, was exploring the unknown tributaries of the Amazon. Mr. Roosevelt willingly agreed to this; and in point of fact the geographical results of his journey proved to be of greater importance than the scientific. Also to the layman, at least, they are more interesting.

The party left Buenos Ayres and steamed up the River Paraguay to the Brazilian border. Here they transferred themselves to a motor launch, which took them to their "jumping-off place" at the Central Brazilian plateau forming the watershed between the basins of the Amazon on the north and the Paraguay and the Parana on the south. They crossed the plateau on foot and reached their immediate objective—the "River of Doubt." This was a broad stream flowing no one knew where. It might join the Madeira or the Amazon or one of the smaller tributaries of the latter. The purpose of this expedition was to ascertain which. Its real difficulties now began. Hitherto its route had lain through country known to the Telegraph Commission, and inhabited by numbers of cheerful, easy-going Indians, who were friendly to the travellers. But henceforth they must commit themselves to the mercies of trackless jungle and uncharted river. They soon realised that they were in for a strenuous time. Continually dangerous rapids necessitated portages; paths had to be cleared through the forest, and the heavy dug-out canoes dragged laboriously to the next navigable water. Progress was very slow; "shipwrecks" became quite commonplace incidents, and fresh canoes had to be hewed out of a tree trunk. One of the party was drowned, another was shot by a rebellious porter, who then bolted into the jungle. Everyone suffered from fever and insect bites, but they dared not stop, as supplies were running short. Little by little their equipment was shed down to the barest necessaries, and it was a very miserable and way-worn band of scarecrows who with rejoicing at last saw here and there on the banks the huts of rubber collectors, and eventually paddled out on to the Madeira. However, their labours were not in vain. "We put on the map," says the author, "a river some 1500 kilometres in length, of which no geographer in any map published in Europe or the United States or Brazil had even admitted the possibility of the existence; for the place actually occupied by it was filled on the maps by other—imaginary—streams, or by mountain ranges." This river will be known to future cartographers as the Rio Roosevelt.

The author explodes some popular superstitions about the South American jungle. It does not "teem with life"; it is generally rather silent and empty of birds and animals. Moreover, it is so impenetrably thick that it is difficult to get even what little game exists. Again, "men unused to the South American wilderness speak with awe of the danger therein from jaguars, crocodiles, and poisonous snakes. In reality the danger from these sources is trivial, much less than the danger of being run down by an automobile at home. But at times the torment of insect plagues can hardly be exaggerated." There are mosquitoes which carry fever, and ants which devour anything and everything, and stinging flies and gnats, and others which deposit loathsome parasites in the flesh. The rivers teem with the piranha, a fish quite small, but a confirmed man-eater. It is quite a common thing for an incautious bather to lose some fingers or toes from this cause, and woe betide him if he is attacked by a shoal of them. Three weeks before the expedition reached Coimbra, near the head-waters of the Paraguay, a swimmer had been literally devoured alive by them. A much more agreeable inhabitant of the jungle is the mussurama, a harmless snake, that makes war on all venomous varieties, and in particular upon the deadly jararaca. The author witnessed a fight between these two inveterate foes. The mussurama had recently had a meal, but his martial ardour was undiminished. He flung his coils round the jararaca, broke its back, crushed its head, and "after this proceeded deliberately, but with unbroken speed, to devour his opponent by the simple process of crawling outside it, the body and tail of the jararaca writhing and struggling to the last." Considering that the jararaca was four feet long, and the mussurama only nine inches longer, this was rather a noteworthy achievement. (John Murray; G. Robertson.)

THE COMPLETE REVIEWER.

In Britain there is a traditional alliance between public life and letters which has endured from the time of Sir Thomas More down to the present. The only nation to approach Britain in this respect has been France, and even in France the association has not been so intimate. It is a remarkable generation and a remarkable country, that can produce such figures as Balfour, Bryce, Birrell, Haldane, Morley, to name only a few of them, all men busily engaged in affairs of state, yet sufficiently devoted to the amenities of life to choose literature for their serious hobby, and to make contributions to the literature of their country which possess a genuine and permanent value. To their names must be added that of Lord Cromer, whose "Political and Literary Essays" stamp him as the reviewer in excelsis.

Each of these essays is a review in the sense that it is inspired by a book. Lord Cromer discusses the book, giving it its due meed of appreciation or depreciation, and this serves him as a text for a wider discussion of the subject concerned. The book itself is merely the starting point, the open sesame to those stores of wisdom which his ripe experience of men and affairs has brought him. Thus, Prince von Bulow's "Imperial Germany," to take a case of peculiar contemporary interest, is an excellent illustration of Lord Cromer's method. It furnishes him with material for two essays. He describes Bulow's conception of the role which Germany proposed at that time to play in Weltpolitik, and goes on to review German national aspirations in the light of her past actions, and of the expressions of her intellectual and national leaders. While he does not doubt the sincerity of Bulow's own utterances, he hesitates to accept them.

accept them as a declaration of pacific intentions on the part of Germany likely to be endorsed by Bulow's fellow countrymen as a whole. There is one prophetic comment which deserves quotation. "The reader," he says, "rises from a perusal of Prince Bulow's pages without any strong conviction that should the necessity arise Germany would not readily trample on others. It is, at all events, abundantly clear that whenever any German interest is involved no moral obstacle will be allowed to stand in the way of furthering German views by all the resources of a diplomacy which is not over-scrupulous, supported by prodigious force in the background."

Lord Cromer shows the same moderation and common sense in his other essays. Thus he overwhelms with urbane ridicule Dr. Starr Jordan, that arch-pacifist in whom desire far outruns performance. Lord Cromer very reasonably objects to the audacious statement that democracies have never willingly gone to war, and cannot bring himself to agree with the contention that if a nation possesses a navy "it is of vital interest" that that navy "should never be ready for war." However, it is not only with current controversial issues that Lord Cromer deals. He writes on Imperial topics, on history, British, Continental, and ancient, on the lives of men who have deserved badly or well of their country; in fact, the easiest way to gather an idea of the range of his essays is to remember the names of the most notable books of this description which have appeared in the last two years. In each case a review is enlarged into an illuminating monograph. (Macmillan and Co.)

THE HOME UNIVERSITY LIBRARY.

The Home University Library, of which a fresh instalment has lately appeared, contains, as usual, several books of unusual interest. In "Russian Literature" Mr. Maurice Baring's attitude is significant of the times. He passes lightly over the "dark ages" which closed at the beginning of last century. He has something, but not very much, to say of the poets who flourished since that date. From Poushkin, "the greatest and most national of Russian poets," down to Alexis Tolstoy (1817-1875), their works are sealed books to the average Briton, and Mr. Baring apparently is quite willing that we should forego their acquaintance, provided that we read the Russian novel. Russian poetry, he says, is primarily romantic and lyrical, but the novel is the Russian writer's chief medium of expression. It has a much greater earnestness of purpose, and hence a much greater dignity than the usual novel of Western Europe; it is neither written for nor read in the idle hours consecrated to mere amusement, and it has influenced the English novel to the same degree that Ibsen has influenced the Western drama. Mr. Baring devotes special attention to Tolstoy, Gogol (whom he compares to Dickens), Turgenev (who is considered the greatest novelist outside of Russia), and Dostoyevsky (who is regarded as far superior by native critics), while Gorky and Chekhov illustrate new tendencies whose force is not yet spent. The author's analysis disentangles two characteristic features which stand out in the prose literature of Russia. In the first place it is essentially realistic; the study of life as such is more considered than the creation of beauty. In the second place it is intensely democratic in the sense that it has made articulate that large charity and humanity which are characteristic of the Russian people.

Other volumes in this instalment of the series is "Wars Between England and America," by Professor T. C. Smith, the appearance of which is peculiarly appropriate now that these two nations are celebrating their centenary of peace. The author shows how social, economic, and political causes led to a period of almost continuous antagonism from 1763 to the ratification of the Treaty of Ghent, in 1815, and how that antagonism was ended. The War of American Independence and the war of 1812-1815 give their names to the book, not because of their military or naval importance, but "because they mark in each case the outcome of successive years of unavailing efforts on the part of each country to avoid bloodshed." The "History of Scotland," by Professor R. S. Rait, covers a wide range of topics illustrating the constitutional and economic development of the ancient kingdom up to the time of the union; and "Political Thought in England from Bacon to Halifax," by Mr. E. C. Gooch, describes the views and aspirations of the leaders of the movements of the seventeenth century, showing the foundations of the development of the modern relations of the State to religion, monarchy, liberty, and trade. Lastly, "The Ancient East," by Professor D. G. Hogarth, gives a clear view of the evolution of the history of those races who are the parents of civilised thought. The fates of Babylon, Assyria, Persia, Cilicea, and Macedonia are described in dramatic perspective, and in the relations of Greece to Egypt and Africa we are shown how the centre of gravity of political importance and of social culture begins to swing westward. (Williams and Norgate.)

SOME NEW NOVELS.

"Broken Shackles," by Mr. John Oxenham, opens in the final disastrous phases of the Franco-Prussian war. Captain Patrice de Valle is a staff officer in General Bourbaki's army of the east, that army which represented France's last supreme effort to repel the invader. It was launched against the Prussian lines of communication in Alsace, and had it succeeded it would have delayed, even if it could not have averted, the humiliation of France. But, badly led and badly equipped, it was doomed to failure from the very beginning. De Valle has to look on at the gradual demoralisation of this ragged army, powerless to save it from its fate. He sees it decimated by cold, starvation, and disease, before it even comes into touch with the enemy. He shares the horrors of the retreat, which so soon became a rout, and sees his best friends fall one by one in a vain attempt to stem the Prussian pursuit, so that the others may escape. The end of this procession of horrors is reached only when the disorganised mob pours over the frontier, and is interned by the Swiss authorities. Up to this point Mr. Oxenham has drawn his material from recorded history, but the remainder of the story makes no pretence of being anything but fiction. Life has become a hollow affair to his hero; he wishes to cut himself wholly free from his past, and to forget his own loveless marriage and the tragedies of the campaign. In a remote Alpine village he finds a sanctuary. Here, amidst the simple folk of the valley, he gradually tastes happiness again. He marries, and then when all danger of recognition seems over the spectre of the past rises to betray him. But De Valle is not the man to be beaten without a struggle, and, taking the law into his own hands, he destroys the last link which binds him to his earlier existence. It is an interesting book, especially the first part, in which Mr. Oxenham gives a most graphic description of the last hopeless blow which France struck in defence of her country. (Methuen and Co.).

Mr. D. H. Lawrence has already made a reputation for himself by two or three novels, in which he has painted with unsparing realism the lives of the miners in the coalfields of the Midlands. In the "Prussian Officer," however, he has turned to the short story. The first two possess some topical interest, describing, as they do, the revolt of a German private against the tyranny of his superiors; but they are by no means the most effective in the book. Mr. Lawrence is at his best when he is back at his coal mines. The stories in this vein are genuine "fragments of life"; little etchings, in which there is not a superfluous line. He takes some simple episode, some unsensational tragedy, some romance which illuminates the dull monotony of existence for the actors therein, and relates it with a fidelity and an absence of effort which are very effective. "The Christening," "A Sick Collier," "Daughters of the Vicar," are typical of his method at his best; but there are other stories in the book which run them close. (Duckworth; G. Robertson.)

When Madeleine Hammond, the heroine of "The Light of Western Stars," by Lane Grey, goes to visit her brother in Arizona, she is prepared to find the manners and customs of the Westerners a trifle more crude than they are in the effete and fashionable east. But the reality outstrips her wildest imaginings. No sooner does she alight on the little wayside platform of El Cajon then she encounters a large and slightly inebriated cowboy, who forthwith proposes to marry her. Protests are useless; he rounds up a terrified Spanish priest and compels him at pistol point to agree to perform the ceremony. It is only by sheer good luck that Madeleine is not forced to enter the bonds of matrimony. Next day her impetuous wooer is properly ashamed, and, after making his humble apologies, crosses the border to Mexico, where the revolution offers more scope to his peculiar talents. Madeleine becomes uncrowned queen of the country side, buys a ranch, and gradually succumbs to the fascination and colour of the wide spaces of the west; but, woman-like, she often thinks of her midnight encounter with Gene Stewart, and, outrageous as was his behaviour, her thoughts of him are by no means unfriendly. In point of fact, eventually she does marry a thoroughly reformed and amenable Gene Stewart, and we therefore feel that Mr. Grey, with more economy of effort, might as well have permitted the wedding to take place on the first occasion. However, if he had we would have been the poorer for the loss of quite an entertaining story. (Harper and Co.; G. Robertson.).

Week by week Mr. A. A. Milne enlivens the pages of "Punch," and periodically his jeux d'esprit are collected and given to the public in book form. This time the name is appropriately "Once a Week." Mr. Milne is one of the very few professional humorists whose work bears re-reading. We confess that we are not tired of the conversation of that agreeable group who have either married each other or are going to marry each other or wish very much to marry each other. These young people have a gift for persiflage which enables them to bear up in the most tragic circumstances, even, for instance, when Simpson is not asked to be godfather to Dahlia's baby. The British are always accused of lacking a sense of humour because they prefer to find their humour in legitimate relationships. We are afraid that Mr. Milne has given further gravamen to the charge. On his head be it. (Methuen.)

CONCENTRATION CAMP RIOTS.

On Christmas night a fracas occurred between Austrians and Germans (reports a Reuter message from Pietermaritzburg), in the camp occupied by the prisoners of war. The latter twitted the Austrians upon the poor stand made by their compatriots against the Russians, and thus aroused the ire of the Austrians. A free fight resulted, and several men on both sides were severely handled. The guard was called out to quell the disturbance.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

The stay of Fred. Niblo and Josephine Cohan has been extended five weeks more, so that they will sail for America on June 5 instead of May 1. Their original six months' engagement will thus have lasted three years, and must be recorded as the most successful comedy tour in the history of the Australian stage. "The Travelling Salesman" will easily run out the remainder of the Sydney season, as the Melbourne farewell is to last 10 weeks. The whole tour has been founded on the success of new American plays, of which only eight have been called into requisition. In this connection, according to the actor-manager, the only serious deficiency as compared with production in the United States has been the absence of "trying out towns" near the metropolitan centres. Such places as Parramatta or Goulburn are not big enough or reliable enough for dramatic experiment. New York managers annually rehearse their new pieces in August for production in September, and generally do so at important summer resorts, such as Atlantic City and Newhaven. Mr. Niblo has been in companies which "tried it on the dog" at Buffalo and Rochester. Mr. George M. Cohan regularly tried out his new plays at Hartford (Conn.), and the people there loved to have it so, and regarded themselves as a Court of First Appeal. "Seven Keys to Baldpate" was taken there, and whilst Mr. Cohan and his star, Wallace Eddinger, were on the road the motor turned over, killed a little girl of the party, rendered the principal actor unconscious, and injured the author. On reaching Hartford Mr. Cohan had to play the star part, and discovered after an agonising "first night" that his collarbone was broken! The author had his arm in a sling on the second night, but was soothed by the extraordinary enthusiasm of his Hartford friends, and their verdict was endorsed a little later in New York.

It is almost impossible to gain any clear idea of the musical condition of Berlin during the war. The avowedly pro-German correspondent of the New York "Musical Courier" gives a list of operatic and concert entertainments to prove that up to December 4 the great opera-houses were open nightly, and all the big concert halls crowded. The London "Daily Telegraph" of December 31, on the other hand, states that "the Royal theatres have been used as ambulance stations for many weeks." At first all went well, but at last the Berlin population became dismayed by the appalling casualty lists. Meanwhile William II. ordered a Royal opera gala night, and the building was bright with uniforms and jewels. "But hardly had the orchestra finished the overture to 'Lohengrin' than a wave almost of hysteria swept over the auditorium, and when the stage monarch appeared with his heralds there broke out a storm, not of cheering, but of tears, and terrible hysteric laughter. The house was in disorder, and many women fainted. The performance had to be closed, and the Emperor, with his suite, hastily left the Royal box. Next day both the Royal theatres were closed."

Mme. Marie Narelle-Currie, a Sydney soprano, whose last visit here was in 1906 with Chester Fentress, a Franco-American tenor, was singing at some fine concerts in Canada last month, and forwards a snap-picture of herself in a sleigh, "for the whole country is covered in feet of snow, and the temperature 13 deg. below zero." "For all that," writes the artist, "it is wonderfully bracing, and makes an Australian feel like a two-year-old. Mr. and Mrs. Shipman are over here, and blame me because during their management of Paul Dufault's long tour last year, they read no news of me in my own home papers. The fact is, I have been absorbed in concert work, and arduous study, the latter for three years, with Mme. Abbie Fridenborg. I am no longer a simple balladist. My voice, at one time a high mezzo, is now a dramatic soprano, and I sing all the great operatic arias with success, and am on the B. E. Johnston Agency, one of the best known and most exclusive on this side. I enclose you a number of programmes, and you will see that my daughter, Kathleen, who won an Associated Board Scholarship in Sydney, and afterwards studied in London at the R.A.M., has now joined me as solo pianist, and accompanist. She has made a splendid impression, and is going to tour right through America with Mr. Alfred Robyn's concert party. Australians in New York were so electrified, and drawn together, by H.M.A.S. Sydney's adventure, that we formed an Australian Club, and are to give our first dinner on January 26. The Americans are all in sympathy with England, and her Allies. Don't believe anything else. There is a noisy minority; but the real backbone of the nation has sent millions and millions to Belgium. As soon as the war settles I shall again visit Australia." Mme. Marie Narelle's programmes include a concert at the Trent Theatre, Trenton, N.Y., given by the British Isles Relief Society. Besides Mme. Narelle and her daughter, two other artists on the list are known here, namely, May Mukle, the English 'cellist, of a decade past, and A. B. Kaufmann, one of the two bassos of the Melba Opera Company. Mme. Narelle, who has frequently toured the States as co-star with John MacCormack, lately gave a classic song recital with the Newport Philharmonic Society.

The Christmas pantomimes number 18 in London and suburbs, with twice as many more in the provinces; so that "business as usual" applies as much to the output of fun as anything else. The only unseasonable contretemps occurred at Drury Lane, where the aggressive German sympathies of the principal girl led to her return to New York as the result of a unanimous deputation to the management headed by Mr. George Graves. In this show "The Sleeping Beauty Beautified," the "principal boy" is a baritone, Mr. Bertram Wallis. At the Aldwych Theatre the Prince Charming is Lily Iris, who played the same role here a few years back. Probably, because Mr. Robert Courtneidge, a former Sydney favourite, who is now lessee of the London Shaftesbury Theatre, produced "Aladdin" in Birmingham (Prince of Wales' Theatre), several of the artists are known on this side. Thus Mr. Howard Carr is directing the music, Mr. George Miller is in his accustomed role as the Dame, and Miss Ivy Shilling (as the name is now spelt) joins, as Pekoe, with Mr. Fred. Leslie (who sings "Sister Susie's Sewing Shirts for Soldiers") in a Ju-Jitsu dance, which is pronounced "a novel and admirable exhibition."

There still seems to be an immense amount of minor concert-work for capable artists in London. One of the Australian singers, who is continuing a remunerative career there in spite of the war, is Miss Eileen Boyd, of this city. The young contralto forwards ten programmes of concerts at which she appeared between Saturday, November 28, and Saturday, December 19—a highly-satisfactory three-weeks' record. The first of these was given by the Fawcett Association, in aid of the Post Office Relief Fund, at King's Hall, Holborn Restaurant, London. Mr. C. Budden Morris, Sydney pianist, is also announced on this programme. The hall seats 1200 people. At the West Hampstead Town Hall the list of artists also included our recent visitor, Sibyl Arundale, whilst the violinist of the evening was Miss Eileen Beattie, a talented Sydney girl, whose scholarship at the Royal College of Music has just been extended another year. Miss Boyd sang "Land of Hope and Glory" at the Chough Musical Society's concert at Cannon-street Hotel, and "My Ships" at the Saturday Orchestral Promenade concerts. On December 12 Miss Boyd filled one of her regular engagements at the Glasgow City Hall, but a few days later she was back again for the concert of the 20th Service Battalion Royal Fusiliers. The list includes two engagements at the Hampstead Town Hall, both of them in aid of war funds, and under the direct approval of Queen Alexandra. Very few of these concerts would be reviewed by the daily press, but they are of a kind which supports hundreds of artists all over England.

The distinction of being the largest unit in the British Army is at present held by the Northumberland Fusiliers. At the beginning of December the "Fighting Fifth" consisted of 26 battalions, compared with the seven which it possessed before the war, including the four Territorial battalions.

THE CHURCHES.

STUDENTS' UNIVERSAL DAY OF PRAYER.

The officers of the World's Student Christian Federation have issued a call to Christians of every name and of every nation, particularly to those who are members of universities, colleges, and higher schools, to observe Sunday, February 28, as a universal day of prayer for students.

"Never in the history of universities and colleges," says the call, "has there been such need for united intercession on the part of Christian students and all other Christians who recognise the boundless spiritual possibilities of these centres of learning as in this fateful moment in the life of the world. In the vast and transcendentally important work of repair and reconstruction the Christian student movements of the world, with their branches in 2500 different universities and colleges in over 40 nations (including all the nations now at war) and their combined membership of over 155,000 students and professors, are destined to have a significant part. This is because their ranks embrace so largely the coming leaders of the most vital, the most potent, the most hopeful forces—the Christian forces—of all the countries and of all the races. What can be more important for the Kingdom of God in the coming age than that the work of Christ be carried forward with wisdom, unselfish devotion, and consuming zeal among those who more than any others are to guide Christian thought and action in each nation! It would be difficult also to overstate the value of this world-wide federation of Christian students as a unifying force at a time of unparalleled strain and strife. How much hinges on the preservation of its solidarity! Only the prayer of our Lord 'that they all may be one' can ensure this wonder work."

In the observance of this universal day of prayer, the committee of the Sydney University Christian Union is seeking the co-operation of members of all Christian churches by joining with the students of the whole world in private devotions and united intercessions; and it has been decided that a meeting for intercession be held at the University, in the Lecture Theatre of the Geology School, commencing at 3.30 p.m. on that day. Dr. L. B. Radford, M.A., warden of St. Paul's College, will deliver an introductory address.

St. Thomas' Church, North Sydney, has recently been entirely reseated, and the floor newly boarded and tiled, and an important addition has been made to the sanctuary in a new oaken holy table. In spite of the depression caused by the war, substantial financial support is being given, and the enthusiasm of the voluntary choir under Mr. Robinson adds greatly to the beauty and brightness of the services at this important parish church. The solemn services for the season of Lent were begun on Ash Wednesday by a celebration of Holy Communion at 7 a.m., and were continued through the day, closing with evensong at 8 p.m., with an address by the Rev. Horace Crotty, "The Way of the Cross."

The Rev. G. Scares, rector of Lake Bathurst, the oldest clergyman in the Diocese of Goulburn, will be retiring from active ministerial work at the end of the month. Mr. Soares has a long record in the diocese. He commenced work as a lay reader, to assist the late Canon Soares, in 1860, and, at Bishop Thomas's request, proceeded to Moore College, and received deacon's orders in 1868. He held the following incumbencies in the Diocese of Goulburn:—Berridale, 1879-81; Adelong, 1881-90; Temora, 1890-93; Cobargo, 1893-04; Lake Bathurst, 1904-15.

The Rev. A. K. Chignell, who for seven years was a member of the staff of the New Guinea Mission, and who recently returned to England, has been appointed organising secretary of the New Guinea Association in England.

Canon Martin, rector of St. Clement's, Marrickville, Sydney, will conduct an eight days' mission at St. John's, Launceston, Tasmania, during the month of March. Careful preparation for the mission is now being made in the parish.

The Archbishop of Sydney and Mrs. Wright have been staying at Cooma, as the guests of Archdeacon Ward. From Cooma they went on last Saturday to Mount Kosciusko.

The Rev. H. S. D. Portus will act as locum tenens at Denman, New South Wales, until the return of the rector in May. Rev. Garnet Portus will supply his brother's place at Mayfield.

Harvest festival thanksgiving services for the present bountiful season were held by Rev. A. R. Rix in St. John's Church of England, Moruya, on Sunday last, the Rev. Canon McDonald, of Goulburn Cathedral, being the preacher in the evening. The gifts of fruit, flowers, vegetables, grain, etc., used at the festival were given to the local hospital.

A harvest festival service was held at St. John's Church, Camden, on Sunday. Fruits and vegetables, besides farm products, formed a good representation of the district's production. Camden Cottage Hospital benefited by the display.

The Rev. S. C. Wiseman, who has been acting as curate of St. Andrew's, Grimsby, for the past two years, returned to Sydney by the Medina on Thursday, after two years' absence from Australia.

Canon Garland, who has been conducting the Bible-in-schools campaign in New Zealand, during the past 12 months, arrived by the Manuka on Tuesday, and will next Friday go on to Brisbane, where he was formerly settled. He intends returning to the Dominion in about a month's time.

The Rev. H. R. and Mrs. Martin left on Thursday by the Levuka for Fiji.

The Bishop of Carpentaria (Dr. Gilbert White) will leave by the Nikko Maru on Monday for Thursday Island.

Archdeacon and Mrs. Boyce are returning from a tour abroad by the Orsova, due in Sydney next Thursday.

The death occurred in Hereford, England, last month of the Rev. William Selwyn, M.A., eldest son of the first Bishop of New Zealand. Mr. Selwyn was for many years secretary and treasurer to the Melanesian Mission.

A triangular exchange is being arranged between the Rev. Howell Price (Balmain), the Rev. F. J. Dillon (Waterloo), and the Rev. Stanley Best (Richmond).

The Papal Delegate, Archbishop Cerretti, has stated that it is his intention to have a permanent residence in Sydney. It now transpires that he has favourably considered the splendid mansion of the late Mr. John Hughes, Rockleigh Grange, North Sydney, for his future home here. The site is probably the most picturesque one in the northern suburbs.

Father J. Lowe, who has been connected with St. Stanislaus' College, Bathurst, for a number of years, has been appointed to the position of president, vice Father O'Reilly, who left last week for Castleknock College, Dublin. Father J. Hall takes Father Lowe's position as vice-president.

Father P. J. M'Curtin, principal of St. Aloysius' College, North Sydney, has been appointed a member of the Bursary Endowment Board in place of Father O'Reilly.

Brother T. B. Duggan, formerly principal of the Christian Brothers' College at Nudgee, in Queensland, died at Lewisham on Thursday, in his 49th year.

Father Lawton, of Grafton, who was recently operated upon at the Lewisham Hospital for appendicitis, has so far progressed toward recovery that he will soon be able to leave the institution.

Monsignor Cerretti, the Papal Delegate, accompanied by Monsignor O'Haran, the Rev. Dr. Kaldewey, and the Rev. Father Sherin, paid a visit to the Sacred Heart Hospice at Darlinghurst on Thursday last. Dr. Cerretti was received by the Mother Rectress and the sisters, and after seeing though the wards he expressed his surprise and pleasure at seeing such a beautiful institution for the dying poor. On leaving, he gave his blessing to the sisters.

Father Ormond, of Auckland, who is to act as secretary to Archbishop Cerretti, the Papal Delegate, is expected to arrive from New Zealand by the Wimmera to-day.

Monsignor O'Haran, accompanied by Fathers J. J. O'Driscoll (Kogarah), W. Barry (Chatswood), and Rohan (Pymble), will leave Sydney by the Nikko Maru on Monday on a tour abroad. After visiting the East, they will go on to Rome and Ireland.

Bishop Carroll, of Lismore, who has been on a holiday trip to America and New Zealand, arrived in Sydney by the Manuka on Tuesday, and has since been spending a few days in the Mountains. He will return to his diocese on Monday.

Archbishop Kelly, accompanied by Father Murphy, left for Tasmania on Tuesday. He will be away for about four weeks.

Mr. Ivan Trevor-Jones, a new singer who has been heard a good deal in the concert-room since last winter, has been appointed tenor soloist at St. Patrick's Church, Church-hill.

The Presbyterian and other military chaplains are doing good work in the camps at Liverpool and elsewhere. On the morning of February 7 the Rev. R. Scott West, of Burwood, preached to a large congregation of men, and at the close a copy of the booklet which has been issued by the Presbyterian Church was handed to every man belonging to that denomination. The gifts were much appreciated.

Dr. Angus will be ordained and inducted to the professorship of Exegetical Theology of the New Testament and Historical Theology on Tuesday, March 2. The service will be held in St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street. This will be the first public appearance of Dr. Angus in New South Wales. On Tuesday, March 9, Dr. Angus will deliver the opening lecture of the Theological Hall in the same place.

The Rev. J. F. Binns, formerly of Redfern, is at present supplying the Presbyterian Church at Young, pending settlement taking place.

The Rev. A. E. MacAlister, moderator of the Toowoomba Presbytery, who has been minister of the Presbyterian Church in Goondiwindi for the past three years, has accepted a call from the Greenmount Presbyterian Church.

The Theological Hall of the Presbyterian Church opens early next month, and the students who are at present at work will then require to return, thus putting a great pressure upon the home mission committee for supply.

The Rev. Richard Glaister, M.A., B.D., the new principal of Emmanuel College, Brisbane, and who for 20 years has been minister of St. Cuthbert's Church, Kirkcudbright, will arrive from London by the Orsova on Thursday next.

The Rev. John Dixon Robertson, who was on a visit to Hobart, died there on Monday evening. In 1861 he became the minister of the Presbyterian Church at Wangaratta, Victoria. While there he rode along the Murray as far as Swan Hill, visiting the stations and preaching in the shearing sheds. Later the Horsham Church called Mr. Robertson. From Horsham Mr. Robertson went to the Ryrie-street Church, Geelong, and after three years there was attracted by the needs of a part of his first parish, the Yarrawonga district, which was rapidly being settled. He founded the Presbyterian cause there. The Victorian Church showed the honour in which it held him by electing him moderator after 18 years. He leaves five daughters. The Rev. Hume Robertson, of Brighton Beach, is his only son. Deceased was in his 84th year.

The Methodist Conference will open on Tuesday evening next, in connection with which all the ministers in the State are expected to be present, and a corresponding number of laymen. There is considerable speculation as to who will be elected president. But there is no doubt in the minds of many that the man second on the list in the voting last year, and who in every other respect is believed to fill the bill, will be put in the chair of the conference, viz., Rev. Jos. Woodhouse. A very lengthy agenda has been prepared, and the business will, it is expected, run into the third week, as is generally the case. Preparations will be completed for the forthcoming centenary celebrations, and a large amount of routine work will be done.

The Rev. John Bowran, in charge of the Methodist circuit at Culcairn, is still on sick leave though he is now convalescent in Sydney. He is being relieved by the Rev. W. Clements from the North Coast.

The Rev. Principal Frazer, who is coming from Ceylon to conduct meetings in the universities of Australia, and to advocate generally the missionary cause, is a son of Sir D. Fraser, at one time Lieut.-Governor of Bengal. Mr. Fraser is to be the chief speaker at the C.M.A. annual meeting.

The Rev. P. J. Stephen, who for some time past has been superintendent of the Central Methodist Mission, Sydney, acting on doctor's orders, has tendered his resignation. He has been connected with the institution for over six years. It is understood that the Rev. S. J. Hoban, of Geelong, Victoria, has been invited to fill his place.

The Rev. Dr. Brown left for Wellington by the Moeraki yesterday, to attend the New Zealand Methodist Conference. He will remain in the Dominion for a couple of months.

At a well-attended public meeting last Tuesday, at which the chairman of the Congregational Union presided, Mr. F. E. Pulsford was welcomed to the pastorate of the Waterloo Congregational Church. Among those present were the Revs. Principal Thatcher, R. B. S. Hammond (Church of England), and R. A. Thompson.

The Rev. E. W. Crawford has resigned the pastorate of the Congregational Church, Leichhardt, having accepted a call to the churches at Willoughby and Roseville. He will begin his ministry at Willoughby next month.

The Rev. J. J. Willings, one of the chaplains to the troops, visited the camp at Liverpool on Saturday evening last, in company with a concert party under the auspices of the W.C.T.U. Captain Dart was also present, and addressed the men in the Y.M.C.A. tent. After an enjoyable concert programme had been presented the visiting chaplain made an appeal for signatures to the total abstinence pledge. Five hundred cards were distributed, and most of these were signed by the lads.

An address on the Life and Work of Moses was given by Mr. John Hawley at the men's service and Bible circle study meeting on Wednesday evening at St. John's Mission Hall, Darlinghurst.

Miss Maud McIntosh is leaving by the Empire on March 10 for the Chekiang province of China, where she is to work under the auspices of the Church Missionary Association. She is a daughter of the Rev. Geo. McIntosh, of Chatswood, and a niece of the Rev. Robert McKeown, of Waverley.

Miss M'Kee, of Bathurst, who has been working as a missionary in the Islands for some time, is leaving in a couple of weeks' time for China, where she is to take charge of one of the stations of the China Inland Mission.

Mrs. Clarson left by the Kulambangra a few days ago for the Solomon Islands, to engage in work under the auspices of the South Sea Evangelical Mission.

The China Inland Mission will celebrate its jubilee this year. The work is supported entirely by voluntary donations, and since its establishment a sum of £2,000,000 has been contributed. Fifty thousand Chinese have been received into Church fellowship, and it is estimated that the adherents of the mission total about 200,000.

Pastor J. E. Fulton, president of the Australasian Union Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, and Pastor J. M. Johansen, of Warburton, Victoria, will leave by the Nikko Maru on Monday to attend a conference of Seventh Day Adventist workers in Japan, China, the Malay Archipelago, and the Philippines, with respect to mission work.

A strong effort is to be made this year to increase the number of Bible Circles in the Sydney Y.M.C.A. Trained leaders will conduct the circles, which will study specially prepared Bible study text books.

Mr. Harry Lang, secretary of the Foreign Work Department of the Australian and New Zealand Y.M.C.A.'s, is at present in New Zealand, rousing interest in the work in Hyderabad.

The general secretary of the Sydney Y.M.C.A. has received several letters from soldiers in Egypt thanking the association for the splendid provision made in the Y.M.C.A. building in the Mena camp, and paying special tribute to the strong, helpful influence of Mr. William Owens, the Sydney Y.M.C.A. special secretary with the Expeditionary Forces. Letters have also come to hand expressing appreciation of Trooper Harry Bowser's work on the troopship carrying the 6th Light Horse.

Mr. H. G. Payne, who has done successful work as Evangelist during the last three or four years for the Church of Christ, Hornsby, is leaving, having accepted an engagement with the Church of Christ, North Sydney. To-morrow will be his last Sunday at Hornsby.

Mr. Linley Gordon will commence his ministry with the Hornsby Church of Christ on February 28. Mr. Gordon has two brothers in the ministry of the Churches of Christ—Mr. Clifford Gordon, of Prahan, Victoria, and Mr. Con. Gordon, until recently a professor in the College of the Bible, Glen Iris, Victoria. Mr. Linley Gordon is reputed to be a preacher of exceptional pulpit power and ability.

Mr. W. J. Crossman has been temporarily stationed at North Auburn, under the direction of the Home Missionary Committee of the Churches of Christ.

The Rev. James Buchan, M.A., speaking at the annual meeting of the Evangelical Council of N.S.W. on Thursday afternoon, said their work had to be very much like that of a vigilance organisation. They should, above all, emphasise the strengthening of the spiritual life. He would like to see a united and simultaneous mission throughout the State. Reference was also made by the speaker to the subject of re-marriage. The following elections for the year were made:—President, the Rev. James Buchan, M.A.; vice-presidents, Revs. W. H. Beale, A. R. Shaw, Messrs. W. Gillanders, B.A., and Wm. Cooper; treasurer, Mr. G. Patten.

£50 for nothing in Lipton's Tea Cash Competition. Save the Wrappers. £850 in prizes.—Advt.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Continued.

It was a very unenjoyable ride, and as she was returning, tired and listless, she was stopped by old Fleming, who was standing by his gate and had evidently been waiting for her. He was a very old man, with a bent figure and red-rimmed eyes, and the hand he raised to his forehead was trembling with weakness and nervousness. Nora had spoken to him once or twice before, and she pulled up the mare and greeted him in a friendly way.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Fleming. I hope you are well? Do you want to speak to me?"

"Axin' your pardon, Miss Norton, I am rather," he quavered. "No, I bean't so well as I might be. You see, I'm comin' on in years and growin' a bit feeble. And I'm summut troubled in my mind about my boy, Stephen."

"I'm sorry to hear that, Mr. Fleming," said Nora; and she frowned involuntarily; for here it was again, at every step, something cropped up to remind her of Jack. "Nothing has happened to your son, I hope?"

"Well, I dunno," responded the old man, shaking his head; "that's just it. I ain't heard nothing of him. He went away quite sudden like, without sending more than good-bye, or telling me where he was goin'. And that weren't like him; for though Steve was a bit wild, as young men are given to sometimes, he was always a good son to me; yes, I'll say that for un, allus good, even when he'd got a drop of liquor in him. I 'ad an idea as he'd gone to the Colonies; but lately, thinkin' things over, it's been borne in on me that he hasn't."

"What makes you think that?" asked Nora.

"Well, you see, miss, he didn't take no luggage with him, no outfit, as you might call it, nothing proper for the voyage. And there was no reason as he should go empty-'anded; we're not so poor as he couldn't 'a gone well provided for." With an effort he drew himself up with a little show of pride. "No, miss, I'm thinking as he hasn't left England, and I'm afeared he's gone up to Lunnon an' may be in trouble there. Lunnon's a terrible place for young men, 'specially when they're a bit wild like my Steve."

"He hasn't written?" said Nora, somewhat absently; for she could not help thinking of the similarity between Jack's silence and Stephen Fleming's.

"No, miss," replied old Fleming, shaking his head. "Not a word, not even a postcard. You see, miss, when he went away, he warn't altogether what you might call in 'is right mind. Not luny, aggeactly, but all topsy-turvy. Beggin' your pardon, miss, Steve was upset about a young gel in the village here. My experience is that it's generally some young gel as is to blame, when a young man goes wild. I dessay you may 'ave heard of her—but, of course, you have—Maud Delmar, the glove-maker."

"I have—heard of her," said Nora, almost laconically, and looking straight before her.

"Yes, miss. A decent kind of gel, and one as would have suited Steve right enough. As a matter of fac', I did think as they'd make a match of it; but there was someone else"—he paused, in a confused and bewildered way, as if he had remembered suddenly that Mr. Chalfonte was Miss Norton's agent, and therefore a kind of personage of whom it would not be proper for him to speak ill. "Well, there it is, miss; there ain't no trying to go agin natur; gels will be gels, and they'll make their own choice and follow their own whimsies. All the same, it was a bit hard on Steve, and I do make so bold as to maintain that she's the cause of his trouble."

There was a silence for a moment; then his thin, shrill voice went on, still more quaveringly.

"I was wonderin', miss, if you could 'elp me to find Steve. You big and mighty ones o' the airth have ways and means of larnin' things which is denied to us low and ignorant ones. You see, miss, I want him back," he went on plaintively. "I ain't no good at the farm here without him; and very soon I should have to give up; and where I'm to go to, 'cept the workus, the Lord knows. If I could get Steve back—Lord bless 'ee, miss, do 'ee help me, if 'ee can."

Not a little touched by the old man's misery and helplessness, Nora nodded; then turned her head away, as she said

"I understand, Mr. Fleming; you want me to find out where your son is? Well, I'll try. I should think it would not be difficult to discover whether he has gone to the Colonies or whether he is in London. And you mustn't think of giving up the farm. Why, your family has held it for many years."

"Nigh upon two hundred, miss," said the old man, again trying to draw himself erect. "And nothing but a yearly agreement. Mr. Chalfonte—I mean, young Mr. Chalfonte—said as we shouldn't be turned out while we paid the rent. Them's his very words; he was a kind-hearted gentleman—wi' all his faults—not as he's many, 'ceptin'—ah, well,—all of us considered his word as good as his bond."

"Yes," said Nora, with a sudden pang at her heart. "Mr. Chalfonte was quite right. You shall not be turned out. I'll try to find your son, and he'll come back and everything will be right. Don't worry."

The old man raised his blurred eyes with the tears standing in them. "God bless 'ee, miss, you've got a good heart," he faltered. "And I do believe as you'll get Steve back to me. I ax your pardon for speaking to 'ee, miss."

"That's all right," said Nora; and as she spoke the words, she remembered how often she had heard them on Jack's lips, and the colour, almost that of shame, rose to her face.

When she got back to the Hall, she found Mr. Horton in the library, and, with an abruptness which startled the lawyer, if anything could have startled him, she said,

"I have just had a talk with old Mr. Fleming at the Upper Farm. He is in trouble about his son, Stephen."

"I know," said Mr. Horton, with a nod. "He has disappeared—rather a good thing for the village."

"But a bad thing for his father," said Nora quickly. "He needs him—is worrying about him. Would it not be possible to find him?"

"Oh, quite possible," assented Mr. Horton, "or, at any rate, not impossible. We have only to set a good detective on his track; he would soon be run to earth. But I should think he's left the country—for his country's good."

"His father thinks not," said Nora, gravely, and conscious of a determination to bring back the old mans' son. "I wish you would find him, or, at any rate, find out where he has gone."

"Certainly," said Mr. Horton. "I'll see about it at once. Oh, by the way, do you by chance to know where the plans of the alterations at the Moor Farm are? I can't find them amongst the papers Mr. Chalfonte gave me."

"No, I don't," she replied; and, for the life of her, she could not help adding, "Why not write and ask him where it is?"

"Just so," returned Mr. Horton, with a slight frown; "but I don't happen to know Mr. Chalfonte's address. do you?"

"No," said Nora shortly, and she left the room.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Later on in the afternoon, Nora saw Ferndale coming up the drive. He was on horseback, and presented so striking a picture of the "perfect gentleman" that Nora grew furious with herself because her heart would not leap with love and pride at sight of him. Here was a man whom every right-minded girl must admire and be ready to fall in love with: and yet his presence failed to stir within her a single warm impulse. Full of remorse, she ran down to him, with a touch of colour in her cheeks and a tenderness constrained by conscience, not by love, in her eyes. She held out both hands to him; and Ferndale, his olive-pale face suffused by an unwonted colour, bent over and kissed one hand, and held them until, with a sudden sense of coldness, she drew them away. They passed through the hall into the garden; and Ferndale proceeded to tell her of a certain architect whom—at Nora's bidding, by the way—he had consulted in regard to the restoration of the Abbey, which was to be done while they were on their honeymoon. Of course, Ferndale was deeply interested in the subject, and she tried to compel herself to share the interest; succeeding so well in persuading him that she did, that, with an unusual display of feeling, he took her hand and pressed it to his heart.

"Of course, all this gives me great pleasure, Nora," he said; "but I beg you to believe that it is not on my own account only. I am fond of the Abbey; but this restoration of the old place—which we owe to you, dearest, to you alone—is a delight to me because you are going to adorn it with your presence. No shrine could be too beautiful for my queen."

She blushed, with guilty remorse, as she said, almost reproachfully, "That's far too good a word for me, Edward. I'm not in the least like a queen. Sometimes, when you are glorifying me, and exalting me above my place, I wonder what you would have thought of me if you had met me when I was out in Australia, a wild—what you would have called, I am sure, quite a 'common' girl amongst a lot of rough miners; or, if you had come upon me, a poor, shabbily-dressed girl in a back street in one of the poorest parts of London!"

THE QUESTION OF THE DAY.

The question of to-day, of to-morrow, and of every succeeding day, is

HAVE YOU USED PEARS' SOAP. If you have not, you have not done your duty by your skin and complexion. If, on the other hand—that is, on both hands, and on the face, and on the skin generally—you HAVE used PEARS', you can feel happy, for you will have done the best that possibly can be done for the skin's health and beauty. There can be no question about that.

PEARS' has been making beautiful complexions for nearly 120 years.

IN THE GARDEN.

CONCERNING SWEET PEAS.

Both the winter and spring flowering varieties of sweet pea are becoming increasingly popular. This is principally due to the great improvement in the different types, particularly the Spencer strain, whose large, perfumed flowers include almost every colour and shade. The self-coloured varieties having bright blue, crimson, orange, scarlet, and white flowers, produce an exceedingly fine effect in bloom when grown in parallel rows. The flowers of many kinds show a charming combination of colour, while the blooms of other varieties are flaked, mottled, and striped in a curious manner.

The seedlings raised from seeds of the winter flowering sweet pea sown in December last, that have received ordinary attention, are now sufficiently advanced to need supports. These may consist of either wide meshed wire netting or twiggy pea sticks, fixed near them to keep their stems upright, for in that position they display their flowers to greater advantage than when allowed to grow as they like. Although this type is known as the winter flowering sweet pea, it must not be inferred that the plants will produce flowers in winter in the cold districts.

In the more favoured parts the season has arrived for making the first sowing of seeds of the spring-flowering varieties. In the colder districts, July or August will be early enough, unless the situation is exceptionally favourable, and then the sowing may be made a little earlier. Sweet peas thrive in an open, sunny, but sheltered situation, and in a deeply and thoroughly worked, rich, sandy loam, though the plants do well and produce flowers freely in any fertile, friable soil that has been brought to a good tilth. Should it be necessary to enrich the ground, use only decomposed manure from the cowyard, and thoroughly incorporate it with the soil. On the prepared ground strike out a shallow drill for the tall-growing varieties, and sow the seeds very thinly and evenly in the drill, leaving them covered with soil to the depth of about half an inch. If more than one drill is required make a parallel one at a distance according to the vigour of the variety. For instance, those kinds that attain a height of three feet should be grown in drills three feet apart. Should the resulting seedlings grow too thickly, thin the weaker ones liberally out, for that will result in the remaining plants developing into fine flowering specimens. The Cupid type of sweet pea and similar dwarf varieties produce the prettiest effect in bloom when growing in masses, as they require no supports for their stems.

BUDDING ROSES.

It is the season for budding roses, and rarely has it happened that plants have been in better condition for budding than at the present time, for there is an abundance of sap in the branches, and the risk of failure is reduced to a minimum. It sometimes happens that healthy rose plants of some particular variety or varieties do not bloom satisfactorily in the soil and position where they are growing. But the plants may be made to produce a profusion of beautiful flowers by skilfully inserting on their principal young branches buds taken from varieties that give every satisfaction in the locality. Calm, cloudy weather is the most favourable time for budding. On wet days the work should not be attempted, for water in the new wound would decompose the sap and imperil the chances of a healthy union. Shield budding, in which any amateur can become proficient after a little practice, is the most simple and expeditious method to adopt. For scions select only those growths with the best formed buds, and with a sharp knife remove each one with a piece of the bark in the form of a shield. Then carefully take out the woody portion without injuring the base of the bud. Make a longitudinal slit through the bark of the stock, and under the gently raised edges insert the shield, leaving the bud uncovered. The barks of the shield and stock should fit with the utmost nicety, and be then tied firmly to keep the shield in position, leaving the bud quite free. When the bud has "taken" the bark will begin to swell, and then the tie should be loosened to allow a healthy and perfect union. After a few inches of growth have developed from the inserted bud the branch to which it is united should be cut off just above the union. Buds that are inserted this month or next on healthy stocks will, under ordinary conditions, produce vigorous growth and fine flowers next spring.

NOTES.

Amaryllis belladonna, the belladonna lily, is now flowering profusely and producing a very fine effect. The flowers are most variable both as regards size and colour; in one variety they are white, and in others they vary from red to purple; but all of them are perfumed. The belladonna lily is a native of the West Indies, and attains perfection in the coast districts. It is easily cultivated, thriving in any ordinary well-drained, friable, fertile soil, and showing to the best advantage in bloom when growing in groups of three or five at intervals in mixed borders. The best time to plant the bulbs is from March to May, inclusive. The larger ones should be planted six inches apart and be covered with soil to the depth of quite three inches.

The Chinese and Japanese chrysanthemums are growing vigorously, and should occasionally be attended to. If not already done, the leading stems should be tied to neat stakes to keep them upright, and the tops of the too exuberant shoots should be pinched off, so as to ensure an even growth. Should the rust fungus, which is sometimes prevalent in humid weather, attack the foliage and young stems, syringe them occasionally with a weak solution of permanganate of potash. If caterpillars become troublesome, syringe the plants with arsenate of lead solution, in the proportion of half a pound of arsenate to 20 gallons of water, or if less is required one ounce of arsenate to two and a half gallons of water. Repeat the operation in the course of a week or 10 days should it be necessary.

Red spider is the worst enemy of the violet in summer, and any plants that are infested with this insect should receive prompt attention. If this pest is allowed to multiply to any extent it will weaken the plants and jeopardise the crop of flowers in winter and early spring. A simple and efficacious remedy is flowers of sulphur, which should be applied to both sides of the leaves whilst wet with dew with a pair of sulphur bellows, or through a fine muslin bag. When this insect has been exterminated, or at least kept in subjection, lightly loosen the surface soil between the violets in established beds, and give the plants a liberal top-dressing of well-decayed natural manure. That will result in a large crop of fine flowers in due season.

VEGETABLE GARDEN.

All vacant land intended for immediate cropping should, if not naturally fertile, be heavily manured and then deeply and thoroughly worked, so that it will be in excellent condition for growing vegetables of high-class quality.

Seedlings raised from cabbage, cauliflower, and broccoli seeds sown in seed beds in December last should now be in fine condition for transplanting. Such dwarf varieties of cabbage as St. John's Day should be planted in rows 20 inches apart, and the plants 15 inches apart in the rows, but the more robust varieties, as, for example, Succession, should be allowed more room. Cauliflower and broccoli seedlings should be planted in rows 3ft apart, and 2ft apart in the rows. When transplanting these seedlings care must be taken to place their roots in the ground in as natural a position as possible, and leave the soil firm about them.

In the warmer districts sets for the autumn crop of potatoes may now be planted. In small gardens preference should be given to the dwarf growing varieties, such as the Improved Early Rose, for they do not take up nearly as much room as the taller kinds, and they yield abundantly. The best and heaviest crops of potatoes are produced on land that is rich in potash, and contains a fair percentage of phosphate. When selecting potato sets for planting, choose medium-sized tubers in preference to very small ones, for, all other things being equal, the former will produce a much heavier crop. The sets should be planted six inches deep, in rows two feet apart, and ten inches apart in the rows.

In trenches that have been thoroughly prepared and enriched with well-decomposed farmyard manure, or similar rich material, plant seedlings of celery for the winter crop. Set the young plants twelve inches apart in the centre of each trench, and water them copiously in dry weather. Celery that is being grown for early supplies will now be ready for earthing-up, but before doing that loosely tie the tops of each plant together, and take care when placing the soil in the trench that none of it falls into the hearts of the plants.

If fine leeks are desired plant the seedlings in shallow trenches eighteen inches apart, and twelve inches apart in the trenches, and water them freely in dry weather.

A large sowing of culinary peas may now be made in the more favoured districts for early supplies.

In drills sow dwarf beans, butter beans, broad beans, beet, carrot, parsnip, parsley, spinach, swede, and white turnip.

In prepared seed beds sow borecole, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, celery, endive, Kohl-rabi, leek, and savoy cabbage.

In order to keep up a continuous supply of fresh crisp salad plants make occasional small sowings of cress, lettuce, onion, mustard, and radish seeds in damp, rich soil, or in that which can be kept moist by artificial watering.

SOCIAL.

All contributions and accounts of weddings or other social entertainments intended for the "Social" Column in Saturday's issue should reach this office not later than Friday morning, and be fully endorsed.

St. Philip's Church, Church-hill, Sydney, on January 16, was the scene of an evening wedding, when the Rev. L. J. Macdonald, B.A. (Lindfield) officiated at the marriage of Elsie Mahood, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Mahood, of Kanimbla, Roseville, and Alexander Forrester Hardie, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hardie, Bannockburn, Roseville. The church was decorated, and Mr. William Monk presided at the organ. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of soft white satin charmeuse, with bodice of crepe ninon and Brussels lace and pipings of satin. The long court train, which fell from the shoulders, was lined with silver tissue, veiled in ninon and edged with fine ninon frilling. A wreath of orange blossom was worn on her hair, keeping in place her lace veil, lent by Mrs. John Dykes, of Lindfield. She carried a bouquet of white roses, and wore a necklet of aquamarines and pearls, and a gold bangle, the gifts of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were Misses Pearl, Bessie, and Jennie Mahood (sisters of the bride). They were dressed alike in frocks of crepe de Chine in the new peach shade, the skirts having scalloped tunics, under which fell accordion pleated ninon frills, and the bodices composed of ninon and Brussels lace. The hats to match were of the French sailor shape, trimmed with black wheat, and one large pink silk rose, and finished with streamers of black velvet. They carried bouquets of deep cream gladiolus. Their presents from the bridegroom were a silver jewel-case to Miss Pearl Mahood, and pearl and aquamarine pendants to Misses Bessie and Jennie Mahood. Little Flora Mahood (bride's sister) acted as train-bearer, and wore cream ninon and Malines lace, hat of lace, with streamers of peach-shaded ribbon. She wore a gold bangle, her gift from the bridegroom. Mr. Bruce Reid acted as best man, and Mr. Morris Drummond and Lieutenant Horace M'Keown were groomsmen. Dr. Arthur Lyall and Mr. Clive Flannery were the ushers. Mr. and Mrs. W. Mahood afterwards entertained about 100 guests at Petty's Hotel. Musical selections were played by an orchestra, and songs were rendered. Mrs. W. Mahood wore a gown of black cashmere de soie, with long tunic of black ninon and aluminium lace. The bodice was composed of black ninon over aluminium lace, and finished with vieux rose hand embroidery, and black crepe de Chine hat with white plumes, and white feather boa. She carried a pink posy, the bridegroom's gift. Mrs. J. Hardie (mother of the bridegroom) wore black crepe de Chine, with touches of mauve, and carried a mauve posy. Later Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hardie left for Mount Victoria and the Jenolan Caves, the bride wearing royal navy silk poplin de soie, with touches of tartan, smart white crepe de Chine hat, trimmed with black wheat and a pale pink rose, and a handsome white feather boa. Mr. and Mrs. A. Hardie sail by the Orsova on March 10 for England.

Prior to her departure from Deniliquin, Mrs. H. L. Cronin, whose husband has been transferred to the management of the Goulburn branch of the London Bank of Australia, was entertained by her friends at Deniliquin, and was presented with some table silver. The Lawn Tennis Club also made a presentation.

The Mayoress of Junee (Mrs. W. J. Hiscock) was entertained at a social evening by the ladies of the Red Cross Society, of which the Mayoress was president. During an interval the Mayoress-Elect (Mrs. T. C. Humphrys) presented Mrs. Hiscock with an album with the autographs of those present. Whilst Mrs. Hiscock was president of the Red Cross Society £200 was raised by the workers.

On Saturday night a concert was given by the Women's Christian Temperance Union to the soldiers now in encampment at Liverpool. It was organised by Miss Catts, of Marrickville, and the tent, which was lent by the Y.M.C.A., was full to overflowing. On the platform were Miss Catts, Captain Dart, Rev. Mr. Willings, and Mr. Horne. The contributions included songs by Miss Porter, and duets and vocal solos by Messrs. Hall, Gordon, Robson, and Private Arnold, the soldiers adding much to the swing of the entertainment by singing the choruses. Mrs. Clubbe and Master Cleary also contributed.

A wedding was celebrated at St. Thomas's, Lewisham, on December 19, by the Rev. Father M'Guvie, between Hector, youngest son of Mrs. H. M'Phail, Cobar, and Irene Muriel, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rudd, Avonside, Fraser-street, Dulwich Hill. The bride wore a frock of ivory crepe de Chine, trimmed with silk shadow lace, seed pearl trimming, and court train, and a wreath of orange blossoms, embroidered veil, and also carried a bouquet. Miss Sylvia Rudd (sister) and Miss Ettie Buckingham (cousin) acted as bridesmaids. They wore frocks of white embroidered voile, with pink satin splash bows, and lace mob caps, trimmed with pink bebe roses, and black velvet streamers. They carried bouquets of pink cactus dahlias, and wore gold crescent brooches, gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Samuel M'Phail, of Cobar, was best man, and Mr. Alfred Hyde groomsman. The reception was held at Baumann's Red Room, where about 50 guests were received by the bride's mother. She wore a grey paillette silk frock, trimmed with silk lace and floral silk trimmings, black Tagal hat, with Lancer plumes. The happy couple left for the honeymoon at the South Coast, the bride wearing apricot silk crepe, trimmed with floral trimmings, white Tagal hat with Lancer plume.

An evening wedding was celebrated at St. Phillip's, Church Hill, Sydney, on Thursday, January 21, when Ida, daughter of the late Mr. W. Carr-Boyd and Mrs. Boyd, of Newcastle, was married to Chas. C. Pile, son of the late Mr. C. C. Pile and Mrs. Pile, of Bulahdelah. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. W. Carr-Boyd, wore a gown of ivory charmeuse satin, veiled in shadow lace, and ornamented with pearl trimmings, the corsage and long "fish" train being lined with shell-pink ninon. Her Brussels lace veil was lent by the bridegroom's mother. Miss Eileen Rancland, of Newcastle, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a frock of white crepe de Chine and Juliet cap of chiffon to match. The bridegroom's gifts to the bride were a bouquet, wristlet watch, and ivory-bound Prayer Book; and to the bridesmaid a bouquet of pink roses and a gold bangle. Mr. H. Carr-Boyd was best man. As the bridal party left the church Mr. A. Rancland played the "Wedding March." A reception was afterwards held at the A.B.C. Cafe, only immediate relations of both parties being present. The bride's mother received the guests, and was gowned in a dress of black duchess satin, and hat to match, and the bridegroom's mother wore a floral silk with silk lace overdress. Later Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pile left for their honeymoon, the bride travelling in navy crepe de Chine—hat to match.

A wedding was celebrated at the Presbyterian Church, Marrickville, on January 20, the Rev. Dr. Burgess officiating, when Francis Charles, eldest son of Mrs. S. A. Wymer, of Owendale, Edward-street, Marrickville, was married to Elsie, fifth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Ewin, Kelvin Grove, Fifield. The bride, who was given away by her uncle (Mr. W. Ewin), wore a gown of white satin charmeuse, trimmed with Limerick lace and orange blossoms. She wore the customary wreath and veil, and carried a bouquet, and wore pearl and amethyst earrings, gifts of the bridegroom. Miss Marian Ewin (sister of the bride), and Mrs. Dorothy Wymer (sister of the bridegroom), acted as bridesmaids, in pretty frocks of apricot crepe de Chine, with mob caps to match, and carried pale pink bouquets, which, with gold brooch and silver bag, were the bridegroom's gifts. Mr. J. O. Cranfield was best man. The reception was held at Owendale, after which the happy couple left by motor for Katoomba and Jenolan Caves, the bride travelling in a dress of nattier blue, with hat to match. Prior to her marriage the bride was given a linen tea by her friends, and presented with a silver teapot by the members of the Fifield Church, of which she had been organist.

The wedding of Reuben W. Thomas, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Thomas, late of 44 York-street, city, with Doris Emily, youngest daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. Peters, of Gulgong, was celebrated at St. Andrew's Cathedral on January 30. The bride, who was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Cicognani, was dressed in white crepe de Chine coat and skirt, with hat to match. The reception was held at the residence of the bridegroom's parents, where a very enjoyable evening was spent, the bride and bridegroom leaving shortly afterwards on their honeymoon.

At the Presbyterian Church, Petersham, on January 30, a wedding was celebrated, when Leah, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davies, of Stanmore, was married to John Sydney Nestor, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. W. Wheeler, of Wahroonga. The Rev. G. A. Gordon, B.A., officiated, and Mr. R. Moon presided at the organ. The church was decorated with palms. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore ivory crepe de Chine and lace frock, the court train being lined with shell pink crepe de Chine, trimmed with pearls. She also wore a Limerick lace veil, with orange blossoms and heather, and carried a bouquet, which, with aquamarine earrings, was the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Gwladys Davies acted as bridesmaid, wearing salmon pink crepe de Chine, and hat to match, with black ribbon streamers; and Miss Muriel Davies as train-bearer, wearing shadow lace dress and mob cap. They both carried bouquets, and wore pendants, gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. R. L. Brown acted as best man. A reception was held at the Town Hall, Petersham. Later Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler left for Lake Macquarie, the bride travelling in a navy crepe de Chine coat and skirt, and black hat with blue ostrich feather.

ENGAGEMENT.

The engagement is announced of Florence, second daughter of A. Champion, Esq., Bellcura, Camberwell, Melbourne, and Charles Bernard, eldest son of Frank Cockett, Esq., Hunting Tower, Rockdale, Sydney, and late of Wisbech, England.

REAL ESTATE.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The real estate market had an improved tone this week. In fact, there seemed to be a general desire to do business. Both buyers and sellers were in a good mood, with the result that quite a number of properties changed hands. The confidence the public are showing in real estate as a channel for investing their money has astonished many of the experts who were inclined to view the picture from the shady side created by a war cloud. The public, too, wavered at first, but confidence has been restored, and slowly but surely the market is returning to the position of activity which it enjoyed prior to the declaration of war.

The indoor sales this week were all well attended, but in no case were the auctioneers overburdened with lengthy lists of properties for sale. In fact, sellers nowadays are comparatively few in number. Owners are in no hurry to sell. Certainly they will not part with their properties for any sum below the market value at the outbreak of war. Buyers, on the other hand, are gradually becoming resigned to pay prices equal to those ruling before July last, and business as a consequence is improving; but even this week there were several deadlocks, due to buyers offering a price from 5 to 10 per cent. below the reserve, and refusing to advance one penny on that amount, while the vendors, on the other hand, sat tight on the reserves. However, in most cases of this nature compromises were effected, and contracts were then signed.

An excellent illustration, however, of this position was forthcoming at the weekly sale of Messrs. Richardson and Wrench yesterday. Mr. A. Gregg, who occupied the rostrum, had a fair list of suburban properties to offer, and he received bidding for every property which he submitted, and yet the highest bid in several cases was within a few pounds of the reserve, and the property had to be passed in for private treaty. The old Savings Bank premises on the Parramatta-road, on the Petersham side of the business portion of Leichhardt, was the first property submitted by Mr. Gregg. There was spirited competition for this property, and three prospective buyers ran the price up to £2000, but no one would advance on that amount. Mr. Gregg proposed to knock it down at £2000, subject to the approval of the Commissioners, but the man who bid this amount objected. He was prepared to take the property at once or not at all, and so the auctioneer, although the bid was within a couple of hundred pounds of the reserve, had to pass the property in for private treaty. It is likely, however, to be sold. Mr. Gregg then submitted two houses at Lewisham. These he sold for £1000. He also sold a cottage at Willoughby for £650; a cottage at Mosman was passed in at £1250. For two cottages at Rozelle £850 was refused; for an allotment at Leichhardt £2 10s per foot was rejected. For land at Mascot 22s per foot was refused, while £875 was offered for a cottage and furniture at Lawson, known as Clydesdale, situated in Mary-street, but Mr. Gregg announced that he was prepared to sell at a little over £900. Buyers would not advance. Messrs. Richardson and Wrench also sold by private contract this week a block of land in Millar-street, Drummoyne, for £1025, a residence in Florence-street, Killara, for £1100, a cottage in Wardell-road, Marrickville, for £460, an allotment in Parramatta-road, Homebush, for £204, and two lots in Troy's Orchard Subdivision at Eastwood for 17s 6d per foot.

Messrs. Raine and Horne had a full house at their indoor sale this week, and keen competition was forthcoming for several of the items submitted. Mr. Rabett disposed of a residential site in Wallaroy-crescent, between Edgecliff and Double Bay, at £7/10/ per foot, and he also sold a building lot at Little Coogee at £3 per foot. In private sale work this firm had a successful week. They sold store premises fronting Macquarie-street and Circular Quay, and known as 61 and 63, for £7000. They disposed of business premises at Pyrmont for £1300. A block of land of four acres at Middle Harbour realised £60 per acre. The following freehold reversions were also sold, viz., property at Woollahra £250, property at Waterloo £1050, and property at Alexandria £900.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman included in their sales this week two blocks at Concord West, £375, a block of land fronting Concord-avenue, Concord West, £500, a block in Catherine-street, Lilyfield, at £6 per foot, and a terrace (leasehold) property known as Montrose-terrace, Cleveland-street, city, for £1250.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., report one of the best weeks they have had in the homesites section for a long while. This is a sure indication of the return of confidence among the workers, as well as the people generally.

Cooper's and Kambala Heights estates, Bellevue Hill, Plateau Estate, Lindfield, occupy prominent positions in the sales list of the week, the lastnamed estate now being almost sold out. The homesites properties at Five Dock, Bankstown, Clyde, Auburn, etc., controlled by this firm, were also well up in the sales list.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd.'s, farming estates were more in demand: Flushcombe farmlets (Blacktown), Rossmore farms (via Liverpool), Greenacre Park, Bankstown, heading the lists in this section.

Messrs. Stanton and Son included in their sales for the week a block of land 264 feet to Jersey-street, Turramurra, for £170, ten acres at Baumann's-road, Peakhurst, for £300, also a cottage at Haberfield garden suburb, and an allotment at Barrenjoey at satisfactory prices.

Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. also had a busy week. They sold a cottage in Malvern-avenue, Chatswood, for £840; a cottage in Roseville for £925, and a block of land 198 feet frontage to Addison-road, Manly, £2000, a residence and grounds in William-street, Roseville for £2350, a block of land in Burwood-road, Burwood, for £140, and a cottage at Campsie for £425.

There is still a good deal of activity in the direction of Cronulla, as far as allotments and larger-sized blocks are concerned. This week Messrs. H. Priestman and Co. report the sale of various blocks, including nine lots of the Cronulla Beach Hotel Estate, for £1907; also two and a quarter acres Gunnamatta Bay, for £650; and two cottages Kurnell-road, Cronulla, £875.

Messrs. Wood, Gale, and Company, of Castlereagh-street, have since the New Year, disposed of nearly £10,000 worth of suburban residential property. They experience difficulty in getting properties to suit their clients. Their sales include a pair of cottages in Hawthorne-parade, Haberfield, £1125; a pair cottages in Parramatta-road, Summer Hill, £1150; two pairs of cottages Lamrock-avenue, Bondi Beach, £2260; a block of land Stanley-road, Epping, £310; a pair brick cottages, Rickard-avenue, Bondi, £1150; and a pair semi-detached cottages in Birrell-street, Waverley, £1050.

Messrs. Walter Hardie and Co. included in their sales for the week a pair cottages in Benclong-street, Neutral Bay, for £1175; a cottage in Edwin-street, North Sydney, £550; a cottage in Young-street, Croydon, £700, and a building block in Burwood, at £4 per foot.

SUBDIVISION WORK.

PORT KEMBLA LAND.

An exciting episode occurred in connection with subdivision work this week. The Minister for Public Instruction is anxious to obtain for school purposes about three acres on the corner of a subdivision which is to come under the hammer next Saturday at Port Kembla, but because he could not purchase this land at the price he valued it at, he launched out with a tirade of abuse against what he termed a wealthy land company. But Mr. Carmichael was altogether at sea regarding the ownership of this land, and the market value of the same. The land in question is amongst the best in the district. Last year the local council assessed inferior land alongside this subdivision at £2 per foot, but Mr. Carmichael thought this supposed land company, who are simply the trustees in the estate of the late W. C. Wentworth, ought to have given him three acres of the pick of the district as a present, or at the most the price should not exceed £1 per foot. As a matter of fact, the trustees of this estate are simply acting under the terms of the will of the late Mr. Wentworth, and the guidance of the Master in Equity, who directs everything under this will. The Master fixes the prices after he has appointed the auctioneer, and according to the terms of the will he directs also that all subdivisions must be submitted to auction. The trustees are only there to carry out the directions of the Master in Equity. So that after all it was the trustees under a will and the Master in Equity that Mr. Carmichael was (in ignorance) attacking, and not a supposed wealthy land company. Those controlling the estate wisely pointed out that a Minister of the Crown before he rushes into the limelight, and without reason abuses men who are simply doing their duty, should be sure of his facts. What is proposed to be done with this land is to withdraw the portion said to be required for Public school purposes from public competition at the auction, and offer it to the Minister at the same price obtained for the adjoining allotments under the hammer. Nothing could be fairer than that, and it will then be seen whether Mr. Carmichael's idea of values or those of the Master in Equity, and the firm of Richardson and Wrench, who fixed the values, are correct.

OUTDOOR SALES.

There were few sales last Saturday, but one by Messrs. Raine and Horne proved successful. It was the Miriam Hill Estate at Ryde. Thirteen lots were sold, at prices from 32s to 45s per foot. This produced a total for the afternoon of £1813.

There are quite a number of sales for this afternoon, and buyers of a building allotment will have a choice of district as well as easy terms.

Messrs. Stanton and Son will this afternoon offer absolute water frontages and charming home sites on the Claire Estate, Wharf-road, Concord-Burwood. The electric tram from Burwood runs close to the land on the penny section. There are large blocks, and they are to be offered on liberal terms.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench have two sales fixed for this afternoon. One is the Wattle Hill Estate, at Hurlstone Park, which is near the Canterbury Racecourse, and the other comprises water frontages at Middle Harbour, at a place known as Shellbank, Mosman. There is a stone and brick residence on the ground to be offered. The land is about eight minutes' easy walking from the tram.

The favourite suburb of Coogee will provide a sale for to-day, when Messrs. Raine and Horne will submit the Cliffbrook Estate, overlooking Gordon Bay, between Coogee and Little Coogee, which has an ocean view which cannot be blocked out.

Messrs. Watkin and Watkin have a sale this afternoon at Lakemba, when the second subdivision of Dr. Tucker's Estate will be submitted. There are 76 choice home sites. The terms are easy.

To-day Aurthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., will offer their latest subdivision at Hornsby. The Meteor Estate is a home site property, situated within 20 minutes of Hornsby station. Conveyances will meet trains to-day to take intending buyers to the ground.

March 27 has been fixed as the date on which St. Patrick's College Estate at Manly will be offered by Messrs. Stanton and Son.

Next Saturday Bruntnell and Bannerman, Ltd., will offer without reserve the Abbotsleigh Estate at Carlingford. This subdivision comprises building blocks, situated only three minutes from Carlingford station. This is desirable land, commanding a panoramic view of Sydney.

Next Saturday the Cooper Freehold, No. 3, at North Sydney, will be submitted to auction by Messrs. Raine and Horne. This fine estate comprises 95 choice building lots in an elevated position, and within a few minutes' walk from the tram, and only 20 minutes from the city.

The same firm also have a sale next Saturday of water frontages at Rose Bay, where the Miramar Estate right at Dover-road tram terminus will be offered. The third subdivision of the Five Islands Estate at Port Kembla will be offered by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench next Saturday. In view of what the Minister for Public Instruction said this week the result of this sale will be watched with interest.

Pitt's subdivision at Wentworth Falls will be offered under the hammer by Messrs. J. T. Wall and Co. on March 27. This land faces the Bathurst-road, and is a few minutes from the railway station.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman will offer the Bundarra Estate at Wahroonga next Saturday. These are good building sites.

Next Saturday Messrs. James Edwards and Co. will submit the Edol Estate at St. Ives. These are liberally subdivided blocks in a good position on the North Shore line.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench will next Saturday offer Mason's Estate at Beecroft. This is good building land.

CARE OF BABIES.

The Minister for Public Health stated yesterday that great progress is being made with the baby clinics.

"The pressure," Mr. Flowers said, "has become so great in the case of the Newtown clinic that an enlargement in some way will be necessary at an early date. No less than 348 babies were attended to at the Newtown clinic during the fortnight, and 74 new-born babies were visited. At Alexandria also the nurses are taxed to their utmost capacity. They attended 86 mothers with unborn babies during the fortnight, and gave attention at the clinic to 217 others. In the Alexandria district a number of very sick children are receiving home treatment.

"The new clinic at Woolloomooloo has started well, 387 babies having received attention during the fortnight. Balmain has also made a start with 73 babies under supervision. Figures are not yet available from the clinics at North Sydney, Glebe, and Newcastle.

"It is most gratifying to me to know that four clinics during the fortnight exercised supervision over 1185 babies. At this rate of progress in course of time there should be an appreciable decrease in the infant mortality rate of the metropolis. A thing I am very pleased to know also is that during the fortnight 18 expectant mothers went to the clinics for advice. This phase of the clinic work I am most anxious to encourage."

SHADE FOR CAB HORSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Referring to the letter of Mr. O. Lindsay Thompson in your issue of to-day, rightly lamenting the lack of provision made for protecting standing cab horses in the severe summer weather, I merely wish to point out to him and to your readers that for many years past a "shelter" on the cantilever principle has been in existence at the Summer Hill railway station on the southern side of the line, within the Municipality of Ashfield. This latter provides adequate space for some six or eight cabs to stand, and is an imposing but inexpensive structure. It is needless to say that this shade, which is owned and maintained by the Ashfield Municipal Council, has proved a boon to the cab owner, protecting both his vehicle and horse against the excessive heat of the summer and the bad weather in the winter. It is further a great convenience to the public using the cabs, enabling them either to enter or leave the vehicles comfortably in good weather and bad.

I therefore claim that the Ashfield Municipality has long since filled the requirement of the "up-to-date civic authority" referred to in this connection by your correspondent, much to the satisfaction of the public and the comfort of the cab owner and his hard-working horse.

I am, etc.,
ARTHUR J. R. YARSLEY,
Alderman, Ashfield.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

A BAD EXPERIENCE MAY BE AVOIDED
BY USING ONLY
HARDIE'S GENUINE "FIBRO-CEMENT."
British Made. Beware of Imitations.
"Fibro-Cement" Sheets for Interior and Exterior Walls, Ceilings, and Partitions. Unaffected by climatic conditions. Proof against ants, rot, and fire. Reduce insurance 25 per cent. against wood. Used by British Military Authorities for housing troops at Aldershot, Murrumbidgee Irrigation Commission for Settlers' Homes, etc.
ERECTED COST SAME AS WEATHERBOARD.
Sizes:—
8ft x 4ft, 10ft x 4ft, 4ft x 4ft, 3ft x 4ft.
6ft x 3ft, 12ft x 4ft, 4ft x 3ft, 4ft x 2ft.
"Fibro-Cement" SLATES MAKE THE PERFECT watertight roof—no rendering or heavy roof timbers required. Fixed diagonally, and riveted together with copper crampons.
A FEW OF THE LARGE ROOFS JUST COMPLETED, and in course of completion:—

	sq. ft.
Conservatorium of Music, Botanic Gardens	10,540
Tooth's Malthouse, Mittagong	23,290
Grafton Engine Sheds	16,000
Factory (Chamberlain's), Surry Hills	12,000
Sydney Railway Yards (new building)	40,000
Railway Running Shed	70,000
Homesteads, Dubbo, Gilgandra, and Gunnedah, each	6,000

And many public and private buildings, too numerous to mention.
Our staff of specially trained experts ensure a roof proof against all weathers.
Send plan for estimate of roof, walls, and ceilings of HARDIE'S GENUINE BRITISH-MADE "FIBRO-CEMENT."

GENUINE "MARSEILLES" TILES.
WUNDERLICH, LIMITED,
Sole Agents.
There's no doubt about the efficiency of the tile roof. It has all the advantages of other roofing material, and some of its own.
Marseilles Tiles—the genuine tiles for which we are Agents—are the highest development of tile manufacturers. The roofing tiles are burnt the correct terra-cotta colour, are burnt extra hard, have small power of water absorption, will not fade, and are proof against any kind of weather, snow, hail, or rain.
The same kind of quality is found in the flooring and verandah tiles. They are extremely hard, of mathematical accuracy, and available in squares, hexagons, etc.
If you have a tiling job in mind, just use the following coupon, and let us send you quotations for supplying the best tiles you can get—Genuine Marseilles Tiles, in France by our gallant allies.

BELTING USERS will appreciate the economy which such a result as the following proves by using the Genuine Balata, manufactured by Messrs. Dick, of Glasgow. Not only is economy in belting to be considered, but the absence of loss usually occasioned by stoppages to machinery, etc.
"The Dick's Balata Belt I showed your representative when last here has been running in these works as a main driving belt for the last 16 years. During the greater part of that time it has been running night and day on three shifts.
"Originally it was a 7in x 4-ply. I have just taken off one ply and put in driving a box mill. The belt being so well preserved, it was butt joined in the usual way."

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

TRADING WITH ENEMY ACT.

The hearing of the application made by the Minister for Trade and Customs for the appointment of a controller for the firm of Alexander and Co. was concluded.

His Honor intimated that if it were possible he would return to Sydney and deliver his judgment before he left for England. If, however, it were impossible to come to Sydney, he would deliver his judgment in Melbourne.

(Before Mr. Justice Rich.)

ASSESSMENT APPEAL.

The appeal of John William Fisher in regard to the assessment of his property near Coonamble is part heard.

SUPREME COURT.

IN BANCO.

(Before Sir William Cullen, C.J., Mr. Justice Street, and Mr. Justice Harvey.)

GORDON NEIGHBOURS' DISPUTE.

Cheffins v Laing.

Argument was concluded in this case. The Court reserved judgment.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring, Mr. Justice Gordon, and Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

Ryan v Street.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. J. H. Frawley, appeared for Patrick Vincent Ryan, trading as P. V. Ryan and Co., hotel brokers and agents, to appeal from the verdict of the jury in an action brought last term. The action was brought by Ryan to recover the sum of 120 15s, for commission on the sale of the New York Hotel, in George-street, from Harold L. Street, late licensee of the hotel. The issue was tried before the Chief Justice, Sir William Cullen, and a jury, and the jury found for the defendant. Plaintiff Ryan now appealed on the grounds that his Honor was in error in refusing to direct the jury that, notwithstanding the letter of withdrawal of November 22, the jury were still entitled to find for the plaintiff if they found that the defendant had, before then, employed the plaintiff. A further ground of appeal was that it was not necessary for the plaintiff's case that he should have had defendant's authority to sell on December 12, and that his Honor should have directed the jury to that effect.

Mr. Loxton, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Messrs. Harold T. Morgan and Morgan, appeared for defendant Street.

Argument was concluded, and the Court reserved judgment.

VERDICT REDUCED.

Andrews v Southan.

Mr. Loxton, K.C., and Mr. Armstrong, instructed by Messrs. Arnott and Connah, appeared for H. M. Southan, to appeal against the decision of a jury in an action brought against him in December last for a breach of a warranty to sell a motor car.

The action was heard before the Chief Justice, Sir William Cullen, and a jury. It was brought by Joseph Vincent Andrews, a carrier, at Nambucca, who alleged that Southan, a garage proprietor, warranted to sell him a motor car which could be easily converted into a motor lorry capable of carrying two-ton loads. Plaintiff paid the price asked, £375, and then found that the lorry would not do the work stipulated. The jury gave a verdict for £200.

Defendant Southan now appealed against the verdict on the grounds that no evidence or not sufficient evidence of damage was given; that his Honor refused to direct the jury that on the evidence the plaintiff was not entitled to more than nominal damages, and that his Honor did not correctly direct the jury on the question of damages. Mr. M'Keown, instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail, appeared for respondent (plaintiff) Andrews.

At the suggestion of Mr. Justice Pring the parties retired to consider a proposal to reduce the verdict to £175. Later on it was announced that the suggestion had been accepted.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

MOTION FOR A DECREE.

Chadwick v Russell.

Mr. Lingen, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared on behalf of James Joseph Chadwick and Lily Chadwick (both out of the jurisdiction of the Court), in an originating summons arising out of the estate of Nicholas Chadwick, deceased, the New South Wales portion of which estate consisted of certain lands at Balranald and Canally.

Mr. R. K. Manning, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., appeared for the defendants, William Marcus Russell and Sir Edward Walter Greene (who are also out of the jurisdiction).

The testator, Nicholas Chadwick, by his will dated July 14, 1863, bequeathed his estate to the use of his sister, Rebecca (long since deceased), who was to receive an annuity of £1000 during her life, and subject thereto, as to one-half of the estate to the use of her brother, the late James Chadwick, for life; after his death the share to pass to his children in equal shares. The other half was devised to his brother, William, for life, and after his death to his children in equal shares. Testator died on December 31, 1864. The annuitant and life tenants mentioned in the will were Rebecca Chadwick, who died in January, 1888; James Chadwick, who died in August, 1875; and William Chadwick, who died in April, 1874. James Chadwick had four children, who were entitled to a one-eighth interest each in the lands, viz., James Joseph Chadwick, the late Richard Chadwick, William Nicholas Chadwick, and the late Alice Margaret Chadwick, who married Philip Glover Ievers.

Plaintiffs prayed that an inquiry be directed as to who were the persons now interested in the lands, and for which estates, and in what proportions, and that any person interested to the extent of one moiety or otherwise might apply in chambers for the sale of the lands.

By consent, his Honor made a decree as asked.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before the Registrar, Mr. F. H. Salusbury.)

HEARING OF CREDITOR'S PETITION.

Brown and Company v Edward Pulbrook. Mr. A. C. Ebsworth appeared for the petitioning creditors; and Mr. Moffitt, of Messrs. McDonell and Moffitt, for the respondent. Adjourned to February 22.

SINGLE MEETING AND PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

Re Sydney Holland Cabban. Bankrupt was examined by the official assignee, and the meeting was closed, and the public examination declared concluded.

VOLUNTARY SEQUESTRATION.

John Joseph Geary, butcher, of 211 St. John's-road, Forest Lodge. Mr. W. H. Palmer, official assignee.

INDUSTRIAL.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

APPLICATION TO VARY AWARD.

The Stove and Piano Frame Moulders and the Stovemakers' Employees' Union applied for a variation of the award of the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group (No. 21 Board). Mr. W. Henwood appeared for the union, and Mr. F. Wegg Horne for the employers. After hearing arguments, which were mainly based on the cost of living, his Honor reserved his decision.

PROBATE COURT.

The following probates and letters of administration were granted by the Registrar of Probates during the past week:—

Probates:—Emma Hinds, M. McKee, R. H. Reardon, B. McGuinn, Isabel Noad, J. H. Morgan, William Irving, R. Condon, A. N. Wilson, James Woolnough, J. Somervaille, George Thorn, Thomas Murray, E. J. Administrations: Susannah Black, George Peirson, John Laffey, Sarah Mahony, W. J. Michell, A. E. Read, Patrick Noonan, Louis Harris, Emma Broghall, A. Robertson, Frank Guest, Henry Isaacs, A. L. Shedden, S. H. McGuire, Elizabeth Lunn, Alice May Johnston.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Murray.)

ALLEGED BREACH OF AGREEMENT.

Fulton v Douglass.

Further evidence was given, and the matter was allowed to stand over generally.

CLAIM FOR ALLEGED DETENTION.

Marcus Clark and Co., Ltd., v Haydock.

Marcus Clark and Company, Ltd., trading as the "Bon Marche," at George-street, Sydney, proceeded against Cecilia Haydock, widow, of Llewellyn-street, Rhodes, for the alleged detention of a Becker piano and a phonograph, of a total value of £50. Plaintiffs claimed the return of the goods, or their value, and £5 for the alleged detention.

Mr. Curtis, instructed by Mr. J. J. Ja[illegible]nan, appeared for the plaintiff company; and Mr. Hodgson, instructed by Mr. H. E. M'Intosh, for the defendant, who denied the alleged detention, and pleaded that the goods did not belong to the plaintiffs.

The case stands part heard.

(Before Judge Docker.)

CLAIM FOR EXTRADITION COSTS.

The Attorney-General v Farbstein.

This was a case in which the State Attorney-General sued Benjamin Farbstein, of 443 Kent-street, Sydney, for the recovery of £100 alleged to be the amount due by the defendant to the Crown under a bond in respect of expenses, etc., incurred in the arrest and extradition of one, Zipporah Cohen.

Mr. Boyce, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Alec Thomson, instructed by Mr. W. D. McMahon, for the defendant.

Plaintiff's case was, that the defendant, by a bond, dated June 5 last, became bound to the Inspector-General of Police on behalf of the Crown in the sum of £100, subject to the condition that if the defendant should pay to the Inspector-General the amount of the costs, charges, and expenses incidental to the arrest, and extradition of Zipporah Cohen, upon receipt of a certificate signed by the Inspector-General, expressing the amount found to be due, the bond should be void. The sum of £25 3s 9d became due by defendant, and was certified to remain still unpaid, and the Attorney-General claimed the amount due under the bond.

It appeared that Cohen, who had been in the employ of Farbstein, embezzled certain moneys, and left the State. She was arrested at Colombo, and brought back to Sydney. It was in connection with the arrest and extradition expenses that Farbstein entered into the bond.

The defence was that Farbstein had paid over £70 in respect of the expenses, etc. As to the sum of £25 3s 9d now claimed, he pleaded that the amount was not due by him, nor had the same been certified as alleged.

His Honor found a verdict for the plaintiff for £25 3s 9d.

ROZELLE BUILDING CONTRACT.

Weller v Caminiti.

Henry Weller, of 22 New-street, Annandale, builder, proceeded against Clara Caminiti, widow, of 40 Denison-street, Rozelle, for the recovery of £34 5s 10d alleged to be the balance due to plaintiff by the defendant in respect of a building contract at Rozelle.

Mr. E. J. Peterson, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. O'Reilly, instructed by Mr. R. Thornton, for the defendant.

The defendant pleaded never indebted, and in a cross-action by way of a set-off stated that plaintiff agreed to build a certain house for her for £172 5s 10d. She alleged that he did not complete the building, although she had paid him £152 10s in respect of the contract, and she was put to the expense of £29 17s 6d to finish the structure. She claimed to recover the amount she had so expended.

Plaintiff was nonsuited.

SYDNEY AIRMAN HONOURED.

CAPTAIN OSWALD WATT,

WHO HAS BEEN PERSONALLY DECORATED BY GENERAL JOFFRE WITH THE LEGION OF HONOUR.

Captain Oswald Watt, of Sydney, is a son of the late Mr. J. B. Watt, M.L.C., and a nephew of Mr. Walter C. Watt, director of the firm of Messrs. Gilchrist, Watt, and Sanderson. He went home to England about two years ago and studied aviation, afterwards returning to Australia. When the war broke out he proceeded to France and joined the French flying corps.

The "Echo de Paris" recently published the following account of an adventure by Captain Watt:—

"On Sunday afternoon one of our aeroplanes, piloted by Captain Watt, who had Captain Chapitrel as his observer, came to grief near B——, when at an altitude of 1800 metres, and at a distance of five or six kilometres from our trenches. Thanks to the coolness of the aviators they succeeded in landing without further ado, between the French and German trenches; but, as these trenches were not more than 100 metres apart, they were forced to submit to a pitiless hail of bullets and shells. The aeroplane was destroyed, but the two aviators found shelter behind a hayrick, and in this perilous situation they awaited the cessation of the enemy's fire. In course of time the hayrick caught fire, and thanks to the cover which the smoke gave them they were able to find their way back to our lines."

CRIMINAL APPEAL COURT.

(Before Sir William Cullen, C.J., Mr. Justice Street, and Mr. Justice Sly.)

LEAVE TO APPEAL REFUSED.

John Pagini made application for leave to appeal against his conviction before Judge Docker and a jury at the July, 1914, sittings of the Sydney Quarter Sessions, at Darlinghurst, on a charge of false pretences, on which he was sentenced to four years' penal servitude. Pagini was not represented by counsel. The grounds of appeal were that the prisoner was not in a fit condition to defend himself, and it was alleged that the evidence given against him that he never worked was not true.

Their Honors said no grounds of appeal had been made out, and dismissed the application. Mr. C. A. White, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Crown.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

Mr. H. Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

NOT GUILTY.

Royston Brown, a wharf-labourer, was charged with stealing a quantity of wearing apparel from the steamer Burringbar, at Darling Harbour, on December 31. Evidence was given to the effect that the articles supposed to be stolen were purchased at different times by the accused's wife. The jury without leaving the box, found Brown not guilty, and he was discharged.

Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for accused.

UNSATISFACTORY EVIDENCE.

Alfred Daly was charged with entering a dwelling-house, with intent to commit a felony on the night of December 4. After hearing the evidence, his Honor expressed the opinion that it was most unsatisfactory. The jury, without leaving the box, found the accused not guilty, and he was discharged. His Honor said that, in his opinion, the previous good character which the accused had borne, was in no way impaired by the proceedings.

Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for the defence.

ACQUITTED.

William Murray was charged with assaulting Frederick Davis, and robbing him of £5 17s, on December 25 last.

The accused, who was represented by Mr. M'Intosh, was acquitted.

POLICE COURTS.

THEFT OF NEWSPAPERS.

At the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Barnett, S.M., Thos. Allaron, aged 20, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, for having stolen between, February 9 and 17, seventeen dozen newspapers, valued at 17s, the property of Wm. C. Crebbin.

FALSE PRETENCES.

At the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Barnett, S.M., Thos. Long, 45, was fined £8 and costs, or in default three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, and William Wild, 50, was fined £12, or four months' hard labour, for having falsely represented themselves as officers of the Taxation Department, filling in income tax returns, and having alleged that the fee of furnishing a return was 5s.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Certificates of qualification as clerk under the Local Government Act, 1906, have been issued to the following candidates, who sat for examination on December 16:—T. Carson, E. R. H. Gyllies, T. C. Jago, J. W. New Campbell, G. D. O'Hanlon, H. E. Perry, H. C. Rourke, A. M. Shepherd, F. C. Taylor, J. J. Thirlwell.

LORRY-DRIVER KILLED.

About midday on Thursday, Timothy Parker, 33, was unloading cordials from a lorry in Botany-road, Waterloo. The two horses attached to it suddenly bolted. Parker, whilst trying to stop them, was knocked down, and two wheels passed over him, fracturing his left leg and right thigh. He was taken to the South Sydney Hospital, where he died from his injuries eight hours later.

MENTIONED IN DESPATCHES

CAPT. CECIL BODDAM-WHETHAM.

Captain Cecil Boddam-Whetham, who was mentioned in Sir John French's despatches published in Thursday's "Herald," is a son of the late Colonel A. T. Boddam-Whetham, of Folkestone, England, and is a cousin of Captain A. Boddam-Whetham, who was sometime A.D.C. to Sir George Le Hunte in South Australia, and well known in Sydney.

Captain Cecil Boddam-Whetham's brother, who is well known in shipping circles, and is now with the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., received letters last mail enclosing the report of Colonel Baird (Gordon Highlanders) on the action to which reference is made by Sir John French. Colonel Baird writes:—"Captain Boddam-Whetham was in command of the two leading companies, and so splendidly did he push on that in spite of the tremendous fire, through which he passed unscathed, he reached the German trenches and was last seen followed by four men (the remnant of his companies) jumping down into it. What happened there no one can say—the fire from the German trenches was so heavy that the last of our attacking line could not carry them, and Captain Boddam-Whetham, who had pushed on so splendidly with those four men, was with his small following the only man to reach them alive. My hope is that he was overpowered and disarmed. Of course this is only conjecture."

Captain C. Boddam-Whetham has been recommended for the V.C.

UNEMPLOYED CARPENTERS.

BRISBANE, Friday.

Two parties of unemployed men waited on the Minister for Works (Mr. Barnes). Seven members of the Australian Progressive Carpenters' Society said there was not a carpenter's job within 12 miles of the city that had not been canvassed. Out of 500 men in the Brisbane branch it was said that 82 were on the books as unemployed.

Mr. Barnes promised to see what could be done.

Another party of six young men stated they represented between 600 and 700 men, and Mr. Barnes said preference should be given to married men. The department would look around and see what work was available. It was mentioned that men were coming from Melbourne and Sydney to Brisbane to look for work.

STRIKE OF FEMALE WORKERS.

A strike occurred among female workers at an hotel at Charleville. The organiser of the Woman Workers' Union, it appears, objected to unionists working with non-unionists. A girl employed at the hotel in question refused to join the union. The proprietor declined to dismiss her, consequently the others left. They all returned next morning, however, notwithstanding the non-unionist girl, who was standing firm.

MR. J. C. WATSON'S DEPARTURE.

Members of the Institute of Journalists assembled at the Hotel Australia yesterday to bid farewell to Mr. J. C. Watson, on the eve of his departure for London.

Mr. T. W. Heney, president of the institute, who presided, in wishing Mr. Watson Godspeed and bon voyage, described him as a friend of the entire community.

Mr. R. M'Millan, one of the vice-presidents of the institute, and Mr. Percy Hunter, supported the toast of Mr. Watson's health.

Mr. Watson thanked the members of the institute for honouring him in this way. He mentioned that this would be his first visit to the old country, and he expected to find Britain, particularly now in her serious mood, of absorbing interest to any student of political and sociological questions. The effect of the war on the future relations of the Empire was bound to be far-reaching. That the Empire would continue as an entity hardly needed assertion, but there would arise many problems from the war that would demand serious attention.

Mr. Watson proposed the toast of "The Chairman."

NEW MUSIC.

Messrs. Enoch and Sons forward new songs. "The Rank and File" is one of the best war songs amongst the many issued. It is composed by Herbert Bunning to a march refrain that is tuneful, taking, and full of animation, exactly reflecting the virile and breezy character of Henry Hamilton's lyrics. "Land of the Red, Red Rose," words and music by Sylvia Lind, depends chiefly upon a spirited march refrain that gives an uplift to the ballad as a whole.

Messrs. W. H. Paling and Co. publish "The Land We Love" (Australia), words by Henry C. de Witt, music by Percy Dixon, already known for his melodious song, "Goodbye, Dear Heart," introduced last year by Miss Daisy Sweet. The new patriotic song, which is dedicated to the Naval and Military Forces of the Commonwealth, provides a simple and symmetrically balanced melody of an anthem-like character which gives serious intention and significance to the verses.

SWIMMING FATALITY.

WAGGA, Thursday.

Herbert Dobney, aged 21, son of Alderman Thos. Dobney, was drowned in the Murrumbidgee River at Wagga last evening. Dobney was subject to fits, and it is believed he was seized with one while in the water.

BIRDS AND NATURE STUDENTS.

(BY W.M.S.)

A press correspondent recently protested against what he regarded as the barbarous methods of bird study in this country; and, incidentally, quoted John Burroughs, the celebrated American naturalist and nature lover, as saying that "ornithology cannot be satisfactorily learnt from books. The satisfaction is in learning it from nature. One must have an original acquaintance with the birds." This is, of course, the point of view of the man who is impelled to study primarily because of his innate love of the wild and his sense of what Ruskin called their "mateship with humanity." Burroughs, it may be pointed out, is himself a striking example of the difference between the mere scientific observer and the lover of the wild. Like his famous countryman, Thoreau, and the charming English nature student Richardson, Burroughs was in the first place not drawn into a study of wild creatures by a conscious desire for knowledge, but by sympathy and curiosity. As is the case with the great majority of the most learned of students of nature they doubtless began to make their observations unconsciously, and without any clear idea as to their purpose, if any, in doing so.

There is a vital difference between the bird lover and the mere "collector." The two are as opposite as the poles. It is a common thing to have collectors (who are little else) posing as authorities, and being accepted in that role by the public. The truth is that there never has been a really sound or valuable authority on wild birds and animals in this country who was not, primarily and essentially, a lover of nature in the protective and the mateship sense of the term. The only people who can get into touch with the wild, who can obtain a comprehensive view of their normal habits of life, and who are able to surprise the closest secrets from nature, are those who, in the beginning at all events, are unconscious students impelled by love and sympathetic curiosity and the delight which they derive from their sense of companionship with the birds and the animals of their country. The man or woman of this type, the boy who has the leisure and the opportunity, will learn more of the habits and the nature of birds in a year or two without any conscious effort or direction of intelligence than the ordinary deliberate student will learn in the course of a long lifetime. In this connection it may be said that there is a vast amount of more or less futile effort among people who sincerely desire to acquire a knowledge of the wild. One needs to be endowed with certain special faculties to be a successful bird lover and student, just as does the poet to see things in a light which is not apparent to the uninspirable mind of ordinary humanity. Study of the wild demands a combination of mental and moral attributes—sympathy, insight, rare powers of observation, tireless curiosity, patience, and, above all, love of nature in all its moods and phases. Professor Alfred Russel Wallace (whose great reputation as a scientist and the co-discoverer with Darwin of the principle of natural selection overshadows his reputation as an authority on and lover of birds) spent about nine years in the wilds of the Malay Archipelago studying birds, beetles, insects, etc. During the greater part of that time this big-souled, broad-visioned lover of nature endured hardships and perils which would have broken the heart, the courage, and the health of anyone not impelled and inspired by his enthusiasm and his insatiable desire for knowledge of wild life. Darwin devoted 40 years to the study of one genus of insects before committing himself to a definite opinion on their habits. In tropical Africa the late Professor Drummond remained lying on the ground on one occasion for nine hours without changing his position. Why? Because a microscopic insect, which pretended to be an inanimate speck of dust on a rock, was suspected of being alive, and it needed all those hours of immobility on the part of the observer to satisfy the creature that it was not being watched. By lying perfectly still in this manner Drummond demonstrated his possession of the true faculty of the nature lover and student. The incident touches the kernel of the question.

Like the majority of human beings, birds and animals are different under observation from what they are when confident of absolute privacy. Someone has smartly said that "character is what a man is when no one is looking at him." It is the same with birds to a very great extent. If the student would learn all there is to learn of the habits of birds, he must be able to observe them without their knowledge of his presence. Few people have the leisure, the opportunity, or the innate faculty required to enable them to do this. It is an interesting fact, as far as the writer has been able to arrive at anything like a definite conclusion in the matter, that the combination of faculties for successful study of nature almost invariably goes together, that is, say, the person who has the will to study the wild will usually be found also to possess the necessary qualifications—sympathetic insight, observation, and the sense of companionship. The real bird-lover is the man, boy, girl, or woman who regards them as friends, as one of the fundamental spirits of the beauty, the charm, and the music of the bush. People of this temperament would just as soon illtreat a child as illtreat a bird. They would deem it a gross act of cruelty and vandalism to tear down the nest of mated birds. To these lovers of the wild such an act is equivalent to raiding and violating the home of a human family. The birds instinctively know their friends, and quickly respond to kindly treatment. This is the whole explanation of the fact that only one person in ten thousand, even where the opportunities are equal, ever succeeds in wresting original knowledge first hand from the jealously guarded and secret citadels of nature. Scores of ordinarily intelligent and observant people will live in the bush, with wild life all about them, for the greater part of their days, and yet fail to acquire any real knowledge of nature. The reason is that they lack insight and sympathy and the sense of kinship which would make them unconscious and skilful observers. The boy who lives in the bush, and has the natural faculty, will, without purposeful study, learn more of the innermost secrets of the wild in a year or two than would be learned by the conscious, deliberate efforts of a whole school of scientists and collectors in a lifetime. If we would know what are the real habits of birds we must come into friendly contact with them, and be able to see them in their feeding, their playing, and their nesting and mating, without being seen or heard. If we had more observation of this kind we should have less haphazard generalisation from insufficient data, and, therefore, less confusion and conflict of opinion among quasi-authorities on the subject.

THE WOOL TRADE.

A STRONG MARKET.

In spite of the war and some of its drawbacks, a strong demand has been in force during the week, resulting in a hardening in values for some classes of the staple, good clearances at auction, and odd record prices. While the offerings on one or two sale days included a good showing of super wools, the catalogues generally comprised a larger proportion of skirtings, of medium and faulty sorts, with a diminishing quantity of crossbred. These features of the offerings tend to become more pronounced as the selling season advances, and doubtless accounted for the excited demand for best merinos and good, free crossbreds. The limit continues at an aggregate of 25,000 bales per week, and the special war conditions of auctioneers, refusing the accept bids from any would-be buyer acting on behalf of any principal in Germany or Austria, continues in force. The embargo on the export of merino wool to America has also been operative, but there has been an undercurrent of feeling that the embargo may be lifted at an early date. With strong buying power, however, by Yorkshire and Japan, the securing of a proportion on American account, in the expectation of being able to export later, and operations to a moderate extent by France, Italy, Belgium, the local mills and scourers, the market closed for the week with sales for all free, well-grown wools, as well as all classes of skirtings, at the best rates of the season, the only descriptions dull of sale being burry and short-stapled merinos.

COMING INTO LINE.

Seeing the excellent recovery of the Sydney market last week, after the re-enactment of the embargo by the Federal authorities, on the export of merino wool to America on February 5, the Victorian selling brokers decided to hold auctions this week. Catalogues were submitted in Melbourne from Monday to Wednesday, and in Geelong on Thursday. Much credit is claimed for the hasty Victorian action in suspending auctions last week, and holding off till there was some prospect of permission to ship to America being renewed. So far as the actual export position to the United States was concerned, it was precisely the same on Monday last as on Monday, February 8. The actual buying strength, notwithstanding the embargo, was shown by the continuation of the sales in Sydney. It was assumed in Melbourne that the market would fall to pieces through the embargo. At the most there was some irregularity and weakening on one or two days; while on other days the sales proceeded as merrily as a peal of wedding bells; indeed, some buyers from Melbourne helped the business along. On the very first sale day in Sydney, after the embargo, merino wool sold equal to the previous record price; and certainly fully up to the best value of the previous week, when America was all the vogue. The news of withdrawing permission for the present to export wool to America was unwelcome, but there was no ground for any panic. It was regretted that necessity had apparently arisen for the Federal authorities to strengthen the safeguards against assisting the enemy; and what was done by Sydney was to show that good, solid business in wool could go on with our own kith and kin, as well as with our allies, and some neutral countries that do not blow hot and cold, according to its fluctuations of trade through the war.

SOME VICTORIAN CLAIMS.

After commenting on the sales in Sydney last week, and making some remarks about the "reasonable" prices some so-called "American" wools were sold at in Sydney compared to similar wools in Victoria, the "Argus" of Wednesday last said:—"Conditions throughout wool-selling circles in the parent State, however, are widely different from those in Melbourne. Rightly or wrongly, the embargo is mainly attributed to the action of the Sydney buyers, which, if correct, it can well be understood, any postponement of sales is the last thing they would tolerate. Moreover, with so many conflicting interests embodied in the ranks of selling brokers, any postponement of sales when so much wool awaits realisation was sure to have met with opposition, and entailed a good deal of discussion. This is just where the Melbourne brokers scored, and are to be commended for the prompt manner in which both buyers and growers were apprised of their decision to suspend sales, a decision, by the way, which met with the approval of buyers, sellers, and the commercial world in general, and, further, one which, from the growers' point of view, has been attended by the happiest results." With reference to the assumption that the embargo was due to the action of Sydney buyers, it surely cannot be contended, if it were so, that it was through an ulterior motive and not as a patriotic act on their part. If the embargo has in the slightest degree disconcerted enemy agents in America, it was good. Any and every obstacle that can be placed in the way of filtering supplies through to the enemy is equal to winning battles. Sydney has always loyally supported, and never criticised or grumbled at, any action taken by the authorities in that regard. The trade here, too, has seen that because regulations disturbed market conditions temporarily in one direction that was no valid reason for stopping supplies to the United Kingdom, Japan, France, Belgium, and Italy. There was no shutting down on American buying so long as there was no suspicion of buyers acting as enemy agents. On the contrary, their competition was most welcome, and storing facilities provided. But there is a difference between welcoming American support and being dependent on it. Neither Australian wool growers nor the rest of the Empire are in such a predicament yet. It was having all these facts in view that prompted the Sydney trade to proceed as usual last week, and results justified the action taken.

FUTURE SALES.

Auctions will proceed as usual next week, after which public sales will be held in Brisbane, opening on March 2. Thereafter, catalogues will be submitted in Sydney up to Easter, when a recess will take place till towards the end of April, when auctions will probably be resumed and continued without any lengthened break to the close of the statistical year. Out of the 25,044 bales submitted by 13 firms of selling brokers this week, 22,533 were realised at auction, which, with 2469 bales sold privately, ex catalogues, and 655 of uncatalogued wools, brought the total for the week up to 25,657 bales.

Rates current for the principal descriptions of the staple in the Sydney market may be given as follows:—

OFFERINGS AND SALES.

Four catalogues were offered on Monday, aggregating 6219 bales, of which 5531 were sold at auction. The wools were drawn from a wide area of the State, included one parcel from Queensland, and comprised a large proportion of small clips. The offerings included some nice quality, free wools, with lines showing adverse growth and tender staple. It was a fair average selection, almost wholly in the grease, with a sprinkling of scoureds. Greasy sold to /13, scoured fleece to /19½, and scoured lambs to /20.

On Tuesday the selection comprised a good representation of wools from the northern and southern tablelands, also the Moree district. The offerings were more attractive than on the opening day, and included a good sprinkling of super. wools. Greasy merino sold to /14½ for 23 bales sup com w e of AW over Deepwater over New England, a wool of good staple, excellent colour and quality, free and in good condition. The top lots of several lines from Armidale and Walcha sold to /14. Crossbred sold to /13, and lambs to /12½. Out of the 6081 bales catalogued 5428 were sold at auction.

Three catalogues on Wednesday totalled 6593 bales, and the clearances at auction 5875 bales. The wools were drawn from a wider area than on the previous day, and comprised a smaller proportion of super. wools and a larger showing of medium grades, with some good crossbreds. One parcel of greasy and scoured was forward from Queensland. The sale was notable, inasmuch as .. line of six bales of crossbred hogget wool sold to /15½, which made the record price for the season. The record previously was /15¼ for merino. The crossbred was the WLT over Glen Innes over New England brand, a fine, bright, and very light wool.

On Thursday three catalogues totalled 6152 bales, of which 5694 were sold under the hammer. The selection was a fairly good one, including a number of good to super. lines from New England, in free condition. There was a moderate showing of crossbreds and odd lots of scoured. It was a booming market, all free or fairly free merino wools selling at the highest point of the season, with crossbreds in growers' favour. Very burry, short-stapled merinos, however, continued dull and in poor request. Crossbred sold to /14½, and merino to /14.

The offerings and sales were as follow:—

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

Auctions were resumed, after the suspension, in Melbourne on Monday and in Geelong on Thursday. The markets moved in sympathy with Sydney, and were at the best point of the season since the outbreak of the war. There has been a falling off in the selections at both centres. It is estimated that Victorian suppnes approximate 90,000 bales; the limit for Melbourne next week is 22,000 bales. At Geelong on Thursday 7000 bales were catalogued, as compared with 12,000 at the previous auctions a fortnight ago. The wools catalogued and sold in the principal centres to latest dates compare as follows:—

	Season 1914-15. Cat'd. Bales.	Sold. Bales.	Season 1913-14. Cat'd. Bales.	Sold. Bales.
Sydney	256,108	260,835	721,529	710,709
Victoria	243,862	219,147	464,435	457,021
Brisbane	87,408	78,429	176,584	164,759
Adelaide	72,036	63,376	151,277	141,771
Totals	659,414	621,787	1,513,825	1,474,260

A FORECAST.

Helmuth Schwartze and Co., in their annual report for 1914, forecast future wool prospects by saying:—"The Australian clip will probably show a shortage of 200,000 bales, but if we allow for the great delay in shipments through the dislocation caused by the war, actual supplies are more likely to show some increase on this year's total. The Cape production seems likely to remain about stationary, while from the River Plate we may look for a small increase of about 10,000 bales (equal to about 25,000 colonial bales). As regards stocks in Europe, these are, of course, quite extraordinarily small at the moment as the result of the war. So much then for supplies. As for requirements, it is hopeless to venture a prophecy. While the war continues it looks as if crossbreds must remain high under the pressure of army requirements, though extreme prices can no longer be looked for; but merino seems likely to shrink still further, at any rate, as long as the home trade alone has to cope with the supply. Should the Government permit exports of merino to all allied and neutral countries (under proper guarantees as to destination) we might conceivably see present prices well maintained. And whenever the war ends we may look for a strong demand from all quarters and for all classes of wool."

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

There has been a good increase in the receipts by rail and boat during the week. The decrease, however, continues to be heavy. The figures for the week and season to date compare with the corresponding period last year as follows:—

BY RAIL.

Season.	Feb. 13-19. Bales.	July 1-Feb. 19. Bales.
1914-15	15,718	564,753
Increase	14,590	Dec. 105,402

BY BOAT.

	Bales.	Bales.
1914-15	3,548	59,856
1913-14	529	79,014

Total seaboard decrease to date, 124,560 bales.

SEVEN MONTHS' WOOL EXPORTS.

The return of the oversea exports from New South Wales for the seven months ended January 31, compared with the corresponding period last season, furnished by the Sydney Customs, is as follows:—

Destination.	Season. 1913-14, July-Jan., 7 months.	1914-15, July-Jan., 7 months.
From Sydney to United Kingdom and Foreign Ports	666,462	327,579
From Newcastle to United Kingdom	13,958	28,908
From Sydney to New Zealand	218	791

WOOL SHIPMENTS.

Four vessels have cleared the Sydney Customs since last review for the United Kingdom and foreign ports. The quantity for the season compares with the corresponding period last year as follows:—

	Bales.
Idomeneus, Feb. 10, for London	5,223
Osterley, Feb. 13, for London	458
Ventura, Feb. 15, for San Francisco	1,178
Den of Ogil, Feb. 17, for London	4,915
Total	11,774
Total from Sydney and Newcastle, from July 1	360,613
Corresponding period last year	739,724

FARMERS AND WHEAT.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN METHOD.

PERTH (W.A.).—The Grain and Foodstuffs Board has made available a statement regarding the gristing and local distribution of seed. It has been decided by the board that gristing of wheat for farmers cannot be permitted until the seed requirements of the State have been met, but, in order to meet the requirements of farmers who have been accustomed to have their wheat gristed, it has been decided that a mill shall receive wheat brought by the farmer for gristing, and, having branded it with special variety mark, it is to be kept separate from milling wheat, and stacked to order of board. The board undertakes to supply the quantity which is equal to the farmer's usual requirements for gristing, so that the farmer can be supplied with flour, bran, and pollard, which he would have received assuming his own wheat had been gristed. Where a farmer, prior to the operations of the board, had made arrangements to supply his neighbours or other farmers with seed, these arrangements will be recognised, and the farmers will be granted exemption to enable them to fulfil them. When wheat required by the board is required for seed in a district where it has been grown an endeavour will be made to retain wheat in that district and transfer it to farmers requiring it. This, it is stated, has been the policy adopted by the board since its initiation, and its agents and sub-agents have been instructed accordingly.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

FORBES.—The Forbes Pastures Protection Board has been notified by the Under-Secretary for Lands that, owing to the unsettled conditions, it had been impossible to fix the prices of wire-netting by any binding contract. The department urges the close scrutiny of all applications for netting on terms, and would only supply those whose need appeared to be urgent. The board, being primarily responsible for the repayment of the purchase money, decided to impress on all applicants that it would insist on prompt settlements of all instalments as they became due.

GUNNING.—The continuance of the heat spell is causing much sickness and inconvenience, owing to lack of water for domestic purposes. The country all round is bare and brown. Bush fires have broken out in some places. The temperature on Monday was well over 90.

MURWILLUMBAH.—Stock office returns show that for the 16 days of the present month 812 mixed cattle, mostly from the Tweed district, passed into Queensland for various butchering and packing firms. For the six months ended December 10,658 pigs were disposed of to Queensland buyers. During January 242 cattle have been found to be tick-infested on 74 holdings within Tweed quarantine area.

TULLAMORE.—Dry weather conditions still prevail, and rain is badly needed. Ploughing is at a standstill, and unless a good fall comes within the next few weeks the district will be in a very serious condition. Already there are a number of graziers away in other parts in search of grass. On the Government wheat farm they are working full time, doing 180 acres a day. The caterpillar oil tractor is a great success, turning the soil up without any difficulty. Mr. Cameron, the manager, speaks very highly of it. They have now about 15,000 acres ploughed.

AGRICULTURAL SHOWS.

KANGAROO VALLEY.

A GOOD DISPLAY OF STOCK.

EVIDENCES OF PROSPERITY.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

KANGAROO VALLEY, Friday.

Although handicapped by reason of inadequate transport facilities, the Valley show is usually a very creditable one. Outside breeders are not well represented, owing to the difficulties of getting cattle across the mountain, but the stock raised in the district itself is of high quality, and the names of Nelson, Tate, Chittick, and Watson are household words among farmers throughout the State. This year a bountiful season has been experienced, and the 30th annual show, which opened on Thursday, reflected credit on exhibitors in every section. Farmers from all along the coast were present, and the number of conveyances that crossed the Barrengarry Mountain from Nowra and Berry must have constituted a record. A splendid spirit of fellowship exists among the farmers of Kangaroo Valley, the majority of whom own their own farms, and the Agricultural Society is one of the most progressive for its size in the State. Despite the smallness of the district, the membership totals 150, and the show society has set a good lead by purchasing its own ground and buildings. Messrs. John Nelson and J. Moffatt are the president and secretary, respectively, and they are supported by an excellent committee.

The show may be written down as a very successful exhibition. One missed a fine string of Shorthorns usually shown by the Tate family, who have been consistent winners for many years both locally and at the Sydney Royal Show, but this notwithstanding, a lot of good cattle were brought forward in the various classes. The champion cow on the ground was owned by D. A. Nelson, and the prize for the best bull was awarded to F. King.

In the horse section the stock was of good quality. The ring events were keenly contested, as is usual in the Valley, and the pavilions were, on the whole, very satisfactorily filled.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. E. Dale, Bankstown.—It is probably the caterpillar of the potato moth (Lita solanella), which often attacks the stalks of the plants, and later on deposits its eggs upon the potatoes before they are placed in pits. Spraying with Paris green or arsenate of lead has been tried successfully, while the caterpillars are feeding outside the centre of the stalk.

"Regular Subscriber."—Kainit (German potash) applied to the soil will clear out the white ants. Apply 2lb or 4lb to a large tree. It should be mixed with the soil. Spent carbide has also been found effective in the soil, and when mixed with water and swabbed on the trunks will prove useful. Young trees can also be cleaned round, and washed with carbolic soap or other strong smelling mixtures. Experiments carried out with kainit in the Dubbo district prove that it is a good protection to fruit trees when dug in well about the roots.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

EXAMINATION RESULTS.

SUPPLEMENTARY LIST.

Hereunder is published the balance of the results of the 1914 examinations of the Technical Education branch of the Department of Public Instruction.

This is the first year of the working of the new record system, under which the student's work in the class-room throughout the year is taken into account in the award of passes. The class work contributes 60 per cent., and the annual examination 40 per cent. towards the pass. The immediate effect of this is shown in the increased efficiency of the students, as indicated by the percentage of passes. Last year 74 per cent. of those submitting themselves for examination passed. This year the percentage of passes is 83.

Hitherto the results have been graded in three divisions—Honours grade, first grade, and second grade. This year there are only two grades—Honours and pass—except in the case of one or two courses where the change could not be introduced immediately. Certificates will not be issued for an interim year of any course, but only when the complete course has been covered and the final examination successfully passed. Honours passes only are shown in order of merit.

RIFLE RESERVES.

MARCH PAST OF 10,000 MEN.

MINISTER'S PROPOSAL.

A meeting was held at the Drummoyne Town Hall last evening for the purpose of forming a local rifle club. The Mayor (Alderman Graff) presided.

The chairman said that Drummoyne could not afford to be behind in a movement to safeguard national defence, but should give the opportunity to every male resident to submit himself to military discipline, to learn the use of a rifle, and to learn to drill. It was recognised that all could not go on active service, but, none the less, they were all desirous of doing something to bring about a successful termination of the war in favour of the Allies. He moved.—"That this meeting of the residents of Drummoyne affirms its loyalty to the Crown and its desire to support the Government in its effort to secure adequate national defence."

The motion was seconded by Mr. W. C. H. Lippmann, and carried unanimously.

Mr. Carmichael (Minister for Public Instruction) said the rifle reserve movement was being taken up in a most enthusiastic way by all sections of the community. The professional musicians had formed a company of their own, and might be seen drilling regularly at Government House grounds. Some time ago the union secretary called upon him, and offered to provide a professional band of 100 members for the National Rifle Reserve, and for use on such occasions as Colonel Wallack might need them. The secretary stated they were prepared to supply their own instruments, give their own time, and play when required without charge. It was pointed out, however, that much of the effect would be lost if the band were dressed in nondescript costume, and that a uniform of some kind was most essential. The idea was received with enthusiasm by the military authorities. He had taken the view all along that the Commonwealth should be relieved, as far as possible, from all expense in connection with the National Rifle Reserve. He made a suggestion the other day that employers might very well consider whether it was not practicable to supply uniforms to the members of their staffs, or go even farther and form a fund to supply uniforms for the whole of the National Reserve.

The Government, as usual, was prepared to set the example, and so, with the concurrence of the Premier, he sent the Professional Musicians to the State Clothing Factory, with instructions to select some uniform that would be suitable for the purpose, and those would be supplied as the State Government's share in the co-operative effort. He was looking forward to a march past of the Rifle Reserves of 10,000 strong as soon as they had benefited sufficiently by the drill to make such a turn out as imposing as it ought to be. They expected to have nearly 1000 officers of the Government departments drilling within the next week or two, and he was trying to arrange a combined drill. There was nothing like numbers to inspire others to similar patriotic effort. The parade would not be held merely for show purposes, but to drag in hundreds, if not thousands, of men, who were yet holding out from the movement because they did not realise that probably within the next two years Australia, in company with the rest of the British Empire, "would be up against it."

Mr. Carmichael, in conclusion, referred to the grimness and uncertainty of the stupendous struggle in Europe, and to the necessity for the national defence movement in Australia.

Mr. G. A. Richards, M.L.A., moved.—"That a Rifle Reserve Club be formed in Drummoyne, and that a provisional committee of 12 be formed to have charge of the movement until the club has been established."

The motion was seconded by Alderman T. Henley, M.L.A., supported by Major Byrne and Alderman Hill, and carried unanimously.

A provisional committee was appointed, with Mr. Alfred Fenton as hon. secretary.

About 120 names were handed in as members of the club, towards the preliminary expenses of which Mr. W. C. H. Lippmann contributed £5.

ROCKDALE CLUB.

The weekly parade of the Rockdale-Bexley section of the Rockdale Rifle Club was held on Thursday evening at the Rockdale Public School grounds, when 100 members attended for instruction under Mr. L. A. Loveday, who was assisted by Captain Saunders, Lieutenants Davies and Josephson, Sergeant Clements, and Mr. C. E. Broome. The squads evinced great interest in their work, and made good progress. It was arranged to hold a class of instruction for candidates for non-commissioned rank on Tuesday evenings. It was resolved that everybody was welcome to participate in the drills, whether financial or not. A member generously offered to pay the expenses of 100 members who had difficulty in making the payments.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

The New South Wales Rugby Football League was represented at the meeting of the Athletic Sports Rifle Club held at the Sydney Cricket Ground on Thursday evening, in response to a circular issued by Mr. A. Diamond. Mr. H. R. Miller, secretary of the Rugby League, has indicated his desire to render assistance in promoting the interests of this praiseworthy movement, and the matter of the co-operation of the Rugby League will be placed before the meeting of the general committee on Wednesday next.

RANDWICK R.U. CLUB.

The Randwick District Rugby Union Club held a meeting at the local Town Hall on Thursday evening. Alderman D. M. Cooper, Mayor of Randwick, presided. Addresses were delivered by Mr. D. A. Storey, M.L.A., F. Coen, J. R. Henderson, and Major Jas. M'Mahon. It was unanimously decided to adopt the union's scheme for the drilling of the players, and all present agreed to enrol. The first drill will take place next week, when a half company is expected to turn out.

PRESS RIFLE CLUB.

A meeting of the Press Rifle Club to elect officers, adopt rules, and transact other business will be held at Aarons' Exchange Hotel at 7.45 to-night, when, it is hoped, all employees of metropolitan newspapers will attend.

EDGECLIFF.

We are asked to state that the drills of the Edgecliff Rifle Club take place on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, at 8 o'clock.

HORNSBY.

A public meeting to reinstate the rifle club in connection with defence has been called for Thursday night next in the School of Arts.

BURWOOD.

The Mayor of Burwood (Alderman Carpenter) presided at a meeting of the members of the newly-formed rifle club reserve, held at the local School of Arts on Thursday. The annual subscription was fixed at 2s 6d a year. Drills will be on Tuesday and Thursday nights, and on the first Saturday afternoon of each month.

MUSICIANS' CLUB.

The first drill of the recently-formed Musicians' Club Rifle Reserve was held yesterday at the Government House Grounds. About 50 members attended. They were drilled by Lieutenant Dakin, assisted by several instructors. Lieutenant Dakin complimented the members of the club on the excellence of their work.

CLUB FOR CAMDEN.

CAMDEN, Friday.

A rifle club has been formed at The Oaks. Several new members joined Camden Club this week, and Captain Pinkerton is now calling members to drill. For the last two years the club has been without a rifle range, and disappointment is expressed at the military department's dilatoriness in providing a range, as promised.

LITHGOW, Friday.

A rifle reserve corps is to be established at Lithgow. Provided permission can be obtained there will be drill every Sunday morning by competent instructors, and rifle shooting in the afternoon. It is expected that a platoon can be enrolled here.

QUEEN VICTORIA HOMES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In reference to "Observer's" letter, which appeared in your issue of the 18th, and in which the writer drew attention to the absence of any reference to the ministrations of the clergy at the sanatorium at Wentworth Falls, of the abovenamed homes, the report presented at the meeting in question deals only with a limited number of subjects, including a statement of accounts. The annual report of the homes, when ready for distribution, will contain—in accordance with past practice—commendatory remarks and appreciation of the good work the clergy have rendered to the sanatorium during the past year.

I am, etc.,
ANNIE M'C. HUGHES,
Secretary.
Feb. 19.

SYDNEY AND SUBURBAN HYDRAULIC.

THE POSTPONED MEETING.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Sydney and Suburban Hydraulic Power Company, held on February 12, Mr. Frank Grimley gave notice that he would move, at a special meeting to be held on February 19,—"That it be an instruction to the board that the company shall in future undertake the inspection, maintenance, and repair of hydraulic lifts operated by the company."

Mr. Bruce Smith, who presided at yesterday's meeting, said that a vote was taken of all the shareholders at the previous meeting, and as a result 21 voted against the resolution and 9 for the resolution. He would like to point out that two directors, without consulting their colleagues, had addressed a circular to the shareholders all over Australia, and had endeavoured to obtain proxies. One director had even distributed circulars. He and Mr. Nicholson, one of the directors, had refrained from publicly discussing the matter, but they now intended to issue a circular, and Mr. Grimley and Mr. Angus could at the same time do so if they thought fit. Shareholders would then be in full possession of both sides of the case. An extraordinary meeting of the company would also be called.

Mr. Grimley said that he had resigned from the board before the circular alluded to had been issued, and he emphasised the fact that he had resigned at the suggestion, if not at the request, of Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith corrected this assertion of Mr. Grimley, but the latter persisted in his statement, and was proceeding to make a further statement, when Mr. Smith informed him that he would be forced to have him removed from the meeting if he did not resume his seat. At this point feeling ran high.

Mr. Angus said that the circular issued by himself and Mr. Grimley was not an ex parte statement, as the day before the circular had been issued he had received a circular from Mr. Nicholson. In reply to this Mr. Nicholson pointed out that, while his circular was dated February 3, that issued by Mr. Angus and Mr. Grimley was dated January 29.

Mr. Meeks, M.L.C., a late director of the company, said that he had not caused any circular to be sent out, and that he did not wish to in any way be mixed up in the present trouble. He would like to say, however, that a gentleman had come to the meeting on the previous Friday with documents in his possession which should have been available only to a director.

After further discussion, the resolution was carried by 1120 votes against 535 votes.

The chairman indicated that the extraordinary meeting, which would be held in about a month, would be asked to rescind the motion.

THE CIRCULAR.

The following are a few extracts from the circular issued by Messrs. Angus and Grimley:—

. . . We invite you to determine whether the responsible work of inspection, maintenance, and repair of hydraulic lifts, operated by the company's power, shall continue to be sublet to another and practically competing company, as during the past three and a half years, or be carried out under the direct and sole control of the company.

Originally this work was done by the company; then for many years by the Hydraulic Engineering Company, Ltd., which was an off-shoot from it, formed to take over the engineering department of the company's business, under the same directorate and management, with practically the same shareholders in both companies. Since June, 1911, the work has been done by the Hydraulic Engineering and Hercules Company, and latterly by the Standard-Waygood Company, who acquired and combined the businesses of the Hydraulic Engineering Company and the Hercules companies, which are now merged into the Standard-Waygood Hercules, Ltd. This company is largely interested in the supply of electric lifts, while your company, as a vendor of water power, depends solely on hydraulic lifts—that is only one of the points where the competitive element or difference of interest comes in.

Two of the directors (the chairman, the Hon. A. W. Meeks, and Mr. J. B. Nicholson) are also directors of the Standard-Waygood Hercules, Ltd. Mr. Angus resigned his seat on that board because he considered the position clashed with the interests of the company.

The correspondence and reports that have come before us show that the results of subletting the work, although yielding a profit, have not been satisfactory to our consumers, and in our opinion they are not likely to be so under any such arrangement, because the interests of the two parties cannot be mutual, but must be diverse in several respects.

It is of vital interest to the company that all lifts operated by its power should be maintained in good running order, and repairs made promptly at the lowest possible cost to the company's customers, who must be kept satisfied if the company is to hold the business it has, and increase it. This has not been done and, in our opinion, cannot be done under existing arrangements.

We hold, therefore, that this company should cease to sublet the work of inspection, maintenance, and repair of hydraulic lifts to others, whose sole interest is in the profit to be made out of such work; and especially to any company so largely engaged in the construction and installation of electric lifts as the Standard-Waygood Hercules, Limited, who have no incentive to check negligence nor to minimise cost of repairs. Moreover, to manufacturing engineers and others concerned with installation of lifts, the lower cost of hydraulic lifts set up an opposing interest whenever questions of replacement or of additional installations arise, because the more costly electrical lift means bigger business; whereas the essential interest of your company is to get hydraulic lifts installed, to employ those who will advocate their advantages, and see that they are always efficient and operated economically, so that it may have satisfied consumers of its power continually increasing in number.

During the three years this agreement with Standard Waygood Hercules, Ltd., has been in operation there has been no adequate representation of the advantages of hydraulic lifts to meet competition. Complaints from avoidable causes in connection with maintenance and repairs have been numerous, and although it has been a period of unprecedented activity in business and building in Sydney the company's sales of power have diminished.

Satisfied that the agreement (which expired June 30) had operated unfavourably, and its continuance would be most injurious to the company, Mr. Frank Grimley moved, and Mr. James Angus seconded, at a meeting of the board on July 31, the following motion:—"That the company shall undertake the inspection, maintenance, and repair of hydraulic lifts operated by the company's power, as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made." This was defeated, objection to the voting of Messrs. Meeks and Nicholson, as representatives of other interests, being over-ruled by the former, as chairman.

We think this ruling wrong on general principles, and the voting of these gentlemen was manifestly a breach of the company's articles; as, in clause 110, it is expressed that no director shall vote in respect to any contract or arrangement with any company in which he is interested.

On October 29 last, Mr. Grimley moved, and Mr. Angus seconded, the following motion—"That the board forthwith convene an extraordinary meeting of shareholders to consider and determine whether the company shall continue its contract or arrangement with the Standard-Waygood Hercules, Ltd., for the inspection, maintenance, and repair of lifts operated by the company's power or shall make arrangements to carry out the work itself." This was lost.

Our proposal to consult you three months ago having been defeated, we now take the opportunity of submitting the question to the shareholders at the general meeting on February 12, and for that purpose Mr. Grimley has given notice of his intention to move:—"That it be an instruction to the board that the company shall in future undertake the inspection, maintenance, and repair of Hydraulic lifts operated by the company's power."

The company maintains a repair shop for its own machinery. Our engineer states that minor repairs to lifts will not involve any addition to the plant, and that with the addition of a larger lathe he will be able to do all repairs.

We claim your support on the facts stated. If unable to attend the meeting we invite you to sign and return by first post the enclosed proxy in favour of Mr. James Angus (or, failing him, Mr. Frank Grimley), addressed care of The Secretary of the Company, using addressed envelope enclosed.

Mr. Angus is known to many of you. He was one of the promoters of the company, and one of its first directors; he is also one of the largest shareholders, as he and his family having over £5000 of the paid-up capital.

MR. ADRIAN KNOX'S OPINION.

Mr. Adrian Knox has supplied the following opinion:—

In my opinion the election of Messrs. Angus and Bruce Smith as directors was invalid. These two gentlemen as retiring directors were eligible for re-election, but Mr. Grimley had also given due notice of his candidature for one of the seats rendered vacant by the retirement of Messrs. Angus and Smith. He was, therefore, entitled to have his name put before the meeting, and the meeting should have been given an opportunity to elect or reject him as one of the directors in lieu of those retiring by rotation. This right the chairman denied him, and this in my opinion invalidated the election of the other two.

Further, on the passing by show of hands of the resolution appointing Messrs. Angus and Smith directors, Mr. Angus demanded a poll. Mr. Angus, I am instructed, held proxies for a large number of shareholders. A poll was therefore demanded by "at least three members present in person or by proxy," as required by article 77. On the demand for a poll being validly made, the show of hands went for nothing. (Reg. v Cooper, L.R., 5 Q.B., 457.)

And no poll having been held, they have not been elected. Nor in my opinion has Mr. Grimley been validly elected. He was elected to fill one of the casual vacancies. While a general meeting has probably power to elect directors on casual vacancies occurring (see per Fry J. Minister v Cammell, Co., 21 Ch. D., 183 at p. 187, 8) still the election of such directors is special business (art. 70), and no notice of such special business was given as required by art. 69. Mr. Grimley's election was therefore invalid. 3 and 4.—The proper course for the shareholders to pursue is, in my opinion, to proceed at the adjourned meeting on the 19th instant to elect two directors to fill the place of the directors retiring by rotation out of the three candidates who have submitted themselves for election. An adjourned meeting is simply a continuation of the original meeting for the purpose of doing business which might have been transacted at the original meeting (art. 75 and Scadding v Loran, 3 H.L.C. 418), and therefore can do what the original meeting has not done—elect the two directors in place of the retiring directors, Messrs. Angus and Smith.

The vacancies caused by the resignation of Messrs. Meeks and Grimley should be filled by the directors at their next meeting (art. 127). 5.—Once a concrete resolution has been put before the meeting, any three members present, personally or by proxy, can demand a poll. And a poll must then be held at which all proxies given for that meeting and any adjournment thereof can be used. But by article 79 a poll cannot be demanded on the question of the adjournment of the meeting.

I therefore answer the specific questions submitted to me as follows:—1. Was the election of Angus and Bruce Smith legal, when the chairman ignored a third candidate who was eligible for election, present in person, and announced that he was a candidate for one of the two seats? No. 2. Was Grimley's election legal? No. 3. It either illegal in consequence of misdirection of chairman, what is the proper course to pursue? See above. 4. Is it competent for an adjourned meeting to consider ordering the election to be held again in proper form and a ballot taken? Yes.

INTERSTATE CRICKET.

N. S. WALES v. QUEENSLAND.

BRILLIANT BATTING.

CALLAWAY 125 NOT OUT.

The return match between New South Wales and Queensland was commenced at the Sydney Cricket Ground yesterday, in splendid weather, and on a perfect wicket. As a result of the day's play, New South Wales has a lead of 91 runs with six wickets in hand, having scored 228 for the loss of four wickets against their opponents' 137.

During the greater part of the day—up till 4 o'clock—the standard of play from the batting viewpoint, was in keeping with the previous desultory displays at headquarters. At that period Queensland had been dismissed for 137, and New South Wales had three wickets down for 31. The ball had dominated the bat. Before lunch Queensland scored 83 for the loss of three wickets, Sheppard's 40—the highest score of the innings—being a bright if not chanceless effort (Pite missed him when 17 at long-on low down after running in some distance).

After lunch the Queenslanders collapsed, the last seven wickets falling for an addition of 54 runs, Farquhar 15, McAndrews 16 not out, and McLaren and Redgrave 11 each, playing bright if not long innings. Macartney, who captained the home side, gave the young bowlers a good trial, and they acquitted themselves with great credit. W. Cullen, making his debut—in fact, this is his first season of first grade cricket—took four wickets in 90 balls at a cost of 20 runs, an excellent performance. His pace borders on fast, and he keeps a good-length, and mixes his pace. L. Wall, another debutant, took four wickets for 44. He bowls left-handed, at a medium-pace. He also kept a fine length. Bull, the young Middle Harbour giant, who bowls leg-breaks, took two for 25 in 24 balls. Andrews was severely punished. Early in the day the home side's fielding was slovenly, but it improved later on. Peoppel was caught behind the wicket by Radcliffe off Wall, and was given not out, owing to the bowler obstructing Umpire Jones's view.

New South Wales started badly. J. McAndrews, a new left-handed bowler, created a sensation by bowling Edgar Waddy, Andrews, and Ratcliffe, the total being only 17. Callaway joined Farrar, who had gone in first, and in 13 minutes they added 41 runs, then Farrar was caught behind the wicket off McLaren. Four for 58.

So far Queensland had done exceedingly well, but the advent of Macartney was the turning point in the game. However, he was fortunate in being missed first ball off McLaren, the ball flying to Sheppard at first slip. It was a costly mistake, as in 117 minutes he helped Callaway to add 170 runs to the total, without being conquered. Callaway finished with 125 (sixteen fours) and Macartney 57.

Callaway's display was one of the finest ever seen from a colt—he is 20 years of age—making his first appearance in first-class cricket. From the first ball he swung the bat with great power and precision at anything within striking distance, and the ball hummed to all parts of the field at an extraordinary pace. Macartney was not feeling well, and, seeing his partner in such great form, said, "You go right ahead; I'll keep my end up." Callaway did go ahead, and to such purpose that he made his first 50 in 67 minutes, and his second 50 in the remarkable time of 27 minutes. He completed his century with a magnificent straight drive that landed on the pickets at the southern end. His 125 was made in 2 hours 10 minutes. He slowed down towards 6 o'clock. The three strokes in which Callaway excelled were the on and off drives, and the cut past point. And he varied them. For instance, one stroke would send the ball along the carpet to the pickets, but the next would be lifted high. His lifting off-drives that cleared cover-point's head were a revelation, and reminiscent of Hugh Hamon Massie's famous strokes, and the more modest but equally effective efforts of the famous A. C. M'Laren. Callaway's square cuts and those behind point were almost as powerful as an ordinary drive. From every point of view his effort was magnificent, and quite on a par with that of M. A. Noble, who as a colt made 152 not out against an English team in the early 'Nineties. Callaway is an orthodox batsman—plays very straight, and uses his feet deftly. He certainly should rise to great heights, all going well with him. Last season he played against the Victorian colts, when he scored 129 and none. Yesterday the only blemish in his innings was a red-hot chance to M'Andrews at cover-point off Redgrave when 41.

Macartney's 57 was a sedate effort when compared with that of Callaway, but, as before stated, he was not well. However, he and Callaway were the saviours of the home side, and his form after being missed first ball was sound. Callaway scored 112 to Macartney's 57 whilst they were in.

The rate of scoring may be gauged from the fact that Queensland took 143 minutes to score 137, and New South Wales 90 minutes to make 140, and 120 minutes for 200. It was a refreshing change from the lifeless cricket witnessed in previous matches this season. M'Andrews's three wickets cost him 53 runs, and M'Laren took one for 50. The Queensland bowlers sent down 52 overs without a maiden. The Queenslanders were great triers in the field. The attendance was very small.

The match will be continued to-day at noon.

LATE MR. JOHN COOPER.

DEATH IN LONDON.

The death is announced by cable of Mr. John Cooper, at his residence, Carrick House, Blackheath, Kent, England, on the 18th inst., at the age of 55 years. Deceased, who was a brother of the late Sir Daniel Cooper (the first baronet), was the owner of Thrupps Grant, which embraced the whole district of Neutral Bay, extending from Sydney Harbour to Middle Harbour. Amongst other estates in which he was interested was that known as the Cleveland Estate, in the vicinity of the Central Station, Sydney.

The late Mr. Cooper was one of the pioneers of the volunteer movement in New South Wales in the early days, and took a keen and practical interest in the formation of the old rifle range at Moore Park. He was a good shot himself, and when he retired from the service had attained the rank of captain. He was also an enthusiastic yachtsman, and owned the famous racing yacht Peri, with which he won a great many trophies.

Mr. Cooper took a keen interest in church matters, and was one of the early parishioners of St. Matthias's Church at Paddington, and afterwards of St. Augustine's, Neutral Bay. To both these churches, as well as to a number of charitable institutions, he was a generous contributor for many years.

Nearly the whole of Mr. Cooper's active life was spent in Australia, but for a number of years past he resided in England, where he went for the purpose of educating his family. He married a daughter of the late Mr. Obed West, of Barcom Glen, Sydney, who is still living. Deceased leaves three sons and two daughters—Messrs. Thomas, Leslie, and John Cooper, and Mesdames Wright and Lund, who are all resident in England.

WOLLONDILLY.—Councillor E. C. Moore.

You will win a prize if you save Lipton's Tea Wrappers. £250 in prizes for Lipton's British Tea.—Advt.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

"High Jinks" is drawing great audiences at Her Majesty's Theatre, where the "scent melody," which everyone sings, the popular valse-air which falls to Miss Brunton and Mr. Workman, the duet "Come Hither" between Miss Vie and Mr. Rawlins, and the "Bubbles" song for Miss Glynn, are amongst the many dainty pieces that supplement the farcical story. There will be a matinee on Wednesday.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"The Travelling Salesman" is probably the last play in which Mr. Fred Niblo will appear before his departure for America, to which event reference is made in our "Music and Drama" column. At any rate, the new piece has been laughed over and applauded by large audiences throughout the week, the courtship of Beth by Bob at the depot being amusingly carried out by Mr. Niblo and Miss Enid Bennett. There will be a matinee on Wednesday.

THEATRE ROYAL.

Only seven more performances of "The Sign of the Cross," including Wednesday matinee, can now be given at the Theatre Royal, where playgoers should not miss these opportunities of seeing Julius Knight in the central character of Wilson Barrett's famous drama.

"The Silver King" will be revived next Saturday, with Mr. Knight as Wilfred Denver, Miss Irene Browne as Nellie, and a cast of 30 characters, including:—Daniel Jaikes, Eardley Turner; Captain Skinner, Frank Harvey; Geoffrey Ware, Martin Lewis; Henry Corkett, Leslie Victor; Baxter, Herbert Bentley; Elijah Coombe, George Chalmers; Cripps, James Hughes; Olive Skinner, Dorothy Cumming; Tabitha, Emma Temple.

ADELPHI THEATRE.

Hal Reid's American gold-mining drama, "At Cripple Creek," will be revived at the Adelphi Theatre this afternoon and to-night, with scenes by J. S. Mann, which will include the picturesque view among the rocks where little Tatto's life is saved by the Indian, who swings out on the wild grape-vine. Mr. Roland Conway as Joe Mayfield, and Miss Gwen Dorise as Belle Gordon, will play the central characters in a cast which will include Messrs. Rutland Beckett, C. R. Stanford, Fred Kehoe, D'Arcy Kelway, Misses Ida Gresham, Fanny Erris, and Muriel Dale. The melodrama "Base Coin" will be produced by the George Willoughby management next Saturday.

THE THEATRE LEAGUE.

The Theatre League of New South Wales, founded for the support of Australian plays and playwrights, has now issued its annual report, signed by the hon. secretary, Mr. Perce A. Cameron. It seems that 20 Australian plays were submitted to the readers during the year, of which only five proved suitable for production. "Our trouble is that while the quantity of Australian work is unlimited, its quality is very limited," and, again, "we are staging work by English dramatists because, and solely because, we do not get suitable local product submitted. . . . We are prejudiced in favour of local work, but when we read it in most instances we are prejudiced against it." A list of these accepted Australian pieces is furnished, the various authors named being Dr. Forster, Mr. H. S. Compton, Mrs. Peterkin, Thomas E. Spencer, and C. Haddon Chambers. Mr. Chambers' three-act comedy, "Sir Anthony," was produced for the first time in Australia, and in this way the new society placed a theatrical event of importance to their credit. Various other performances were given, and the club closed their year satisfactorily with a small surplus, and 90 financial members enrolled.

MISS FLORENCE YOUNG'S TOUR.

Miss Florence Young is now touring New Zealand with "The Climax," a drama with music demanding only four characters, in which she is associated with Messrs. Reginald Roberts, Claude Bantock, and Edmund Sherras, Miss Amy Perrins being the pianist of the party. The piece will be remembered as creating interest at Her Majesty's five years ago with the same prima donna. "The Climax" Company opened their season on Boxing Night at Christchurch, and a complete tour of the south island occupied the whole of January. The complete success there achieved has led to a second tour in the north island, so that Miss Young will not return here until the third week in March.

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK NIBLO.

On Sunday evening, March 7 next, a complimentary dinner will be tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Niblo by the Actors' Association of Australasia, at Paris House, prior to their departure from Sydney. The dinner is being arranged by the general secretary of the association, Mr. Walter Bentley.

TOWN HALL ORGAN RECITAL.

At the Town Hall to-night the City Organist will devote the first part of his customary recital to the principal themes from Bizet's "Carmen." In the second part Mr. Ernest Truman will play Rubinstein's "Kamenoi Ostrovo," Wagner's "Rienzi Overture," the Liebestraum of Liszt, and the "Finlandia" of Sibelius.

THE LITTLE MICHUS.

The Railway and Tramway Musical Society will produce "The Little Michus" at the Railway Institute on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings next. Included in the cast will be Misses Mabel Batchelor, Hilda Trenbath, Margaret Barry, Messrs. Reg. Riemenschneider, Harry Perfect, and Julian Beaver. Mr. Leo. M. Grouse will direct the music, and Mrs. Arthur Hunter the stage. The plan is at Paling's.

"WALTER BENTLEY PLAYERS."

The next performance of the "Walter Bentley Players" will take place on the 23rd of March, and will consist of four original sketches, entitled "Spot Cash," "Cleopatra Reigns," "A Chinese Love Story," and "Search Me," and a revival of one of the most successful items of last year, the "Minister's Daughter."

THE HURLEY-BIRTLES FILM.

The final screenings of the Hurley-Birtles expedition film, entitled "Australia's Unknown," will be given at Spencer's Lyceum to-day and to-night. The series is an interesting record of the overlanders' adventures in Central Queensland and the Northern Territory, and shows many phases of aboriginal life and customs. As an instruction in the people, fauna, and flora of this little-known portion of the Commonwealth, the picture, according to Dr. Gilruth, Administrator of the Northern Territory, is "altogether a remarkable production, and will teach far more of the resources and the possibilities of the great Far North than could possibly be effected in any other way." An interesting programme of topical, dramatic, and comedy subjects is shown in addition. After to-night's exhibition the Lyceum will be closed until next Saturday. On that day the theatre reopens, and afterwards closes until the reopening on the following Saturday, March 6.

WEST'S PICTURES.

There will be a special matinee performance at both West's Olympia and Glaciarium this afternoon, starting at 2.30, when their latest star attraction entitled "The King's Move in the City" will be screened for the last occasion but one. This evening will witness the final representation of this picture, in addition to the Keystone comedy entitled "Fatty's Jonah Day." At both houses on Monday West's directors will screen for a brief season of three nights, by arrangement with Australasian Films, Ltd., the popular travel series entitled "Australia's Unknown." This presentation of the Never-Never and the wild things of our homeland will no doubt attract very large audiences; whilst De Groen's vice-regal orchestras will supply appropriate music.

THE PICTURE BLOCK THEATRES.

At the Crystal Palace Theatre on Monday the star drama will be "Colonel of the Red Hussars," featuring Marc M'Dermott and Miriam Nesbitt. The film is a three-reel Edison adaptation of John Reed Scott's novel.

"The Old Maid" will be screened as feature drama at the Lyric Theatre on Monday. Blanche Sweet, a popular mutual movie star, heads an exceptionally stirring troupe in this majestic dramatisation of Trowbridge's poem "Dorothy of the Garret."

At the Colonial Theatre on Monday the management will screen a Kalem drama, "The Cabaret Singer," dealing with a millionaire who was lonely despite his wealth, and eventually marries the girl from the cabaret.

As feature drama "Best of the Year" will be screened at the Empress Theatre on Monday.

HISTORIC WAR FILM.

There has been no great film masterpiece shown in Australia since "Quo Vadis" and "Cleopatra" were produced here. The enthusiasm with which these two great picture plays was received has been the excuse for the purchase at the highest price yet paid for a single photo-play in this country, of "Cabiria." This is declared to be the most notable example of the cinema man's art. It was only completed in April of last year and has been shown so far only in Turin (where it was made by the Itala Film Company), and in New York and Paris. Its success has been extraordinary. It deals with the devastating wars between ancient Rome and ancient Carthage—the first great war for world-dominion which left Rome mistress of the world. The preparation of the film kept 700 actors, 20 elephants, and 50 horses busily employed for fourteen months. The cost of the production was over £50,000. "Cabiria" is to be screened in Sydney in a few weeks.

AN UNWISE PROPOSAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Learning that a new regulation had been framed, under the Motor Traffic Act, to prohibit motor cars from passing stationary trams which were stopped for the purpose of setting down or taking up passengers, a deputation from the Automobile Club of Australia recently waited upon the Inspector-General of Police with the object of making certain representations upon the matter.

The main argument advanced by the deputation (which was introduced by Mr. Cocks, M.L.A.) was that the proposed regulation would result in a very serious congestion of traffic in the city streets, and, practically, that the regulation meant handing over the control of all traffic to the tramway authorities, since, obviously, its progress through the streets would be regulated by the trams and the eccentricities of the tram passengers.

The Inspector-General, who received the deputation in the most courteous manner, refused, however, to withdraw the regulation, or to believe that it would have the effect feared by the deputation.

It is interesting now to find support for the Automobile Club's view coming from an unexpected quarter, viz., from Mr. Flowers, M.L.C., Vice-President of the Executive Council, who for some considerable time acted as Chief Secretary, administering during that period, among many other things, the Traffic Acts of the State. In "Hansard," dated 11th instant, speaking to the Motor Traffic Amending Bill, he is reported as follows:—

The Hon. F. Flowers: Had there not been this amount of reckless driving we should never have heard of the suggestion that has been made, and which, if carried into effect, would mean the congestion of all our city streets, that motor cars should be compelled to stop dead when a tramcar is at its stopping-place.

The Hon. J. A. Browne: So they should.

The Hon. F. Flowers: But if they did that it would be impossible to handle the traffic at all.

It is sincerely hoped that this deliberate expression of opinion on the part of Mr. Flowers forecasts the fate of an unwise proposal.

I am, etc.,
H. C. MORGAN,
Secretary,
The Automobile Club of Australia.
Feb. 19.

Dear to our hearts is the place where she sleeps.

Inserted by her loving husband, Walter Thompson.

THOMPSON.—In loving memory of our dear daughter and our sister, Amy Thompson, who departed this life February 21, 1914.

We watched our darling Amy
Through anxious night and day;
And only turned our eyes from her
To look to Heaven and pray.

Inserted by her loving mother, father, and sisters and brothers.

WICKS.—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life February 20, 1914.

Far and oft my thoughts do wander
To a grave not far away,
Where they laid our dearest mother,
Just one year ago to-day.

Inserted by her loving son and daughter-in-law, Arthur and Emmie.

WICKS.—In loving memory of Frances Elizabeth Wicks, who passed away February 20, 1914. Inserted by her loving daughter and son-in-law, Ethel and Jack Spicer. Rock of Ages cleft for me.

THE GOSPEL OF HATE.

It is one of the most interesting, and, in some respects, one of the most important, lessons of the war that we shall all have to revise our ideas of human nature in general and of national characteristics in particular. A good deal of ridicule has been thrown on the formulae of peace societies and of other simple-minded people who were accustomed to urge that no two nations would ever go to war if their private citizens would only learn to understand each other thoroughly. But, in fact, the course of the war has shown not that these speakers were wrong in their aims, but that they under-rated the difficulties of their task. If the Germans had not interpreted the expressions of English opinion by the light of their own methods, they would in all probability have been careful to avoid a war in which Great Britain might intervene. They thought that the oversea dominions would revolt because any German subject who caricatured a Prussian as English dignitaries have been caricatured in Canada or Australia would necessarily be anxious to establish his independence at the first opportunity. They imagined that another mutiny would break out in British India because any of their Polish subjects who published sedition must have good reason to be disloyal to the German Empire. If British subjects had realised the trend of German thought and the balance of political power in Germany, they must have so prepared themselves for war that no war would have taken place. The evidence was there for anyone with eyes to read, but it was misinterpreted in the light of the average Englishman's knowledge of his own aims. He never for a moment accepted the idea of a nation which would look upon war as a blessing and itself as destined to impose a manner of life upon the rest of Europe, which would regard every act as permissible because it was the act of a German, and every nation as criminally blind which did not see the blessing of incorporation in the German Empire. Luckily for the British people, their lack of system and of forethought is protected by a wonderful adaptability to circumstances and a habit of attributing their own standards of honour to the people with whom they have to deal. This second quality has saved South Africa for them, and has given them the services of the picked troops of British India. The first has enabled them to transform Great Britain from an individualistic community to a State governed under military conditions. It has sustained the confidence of the people against a series of reverses, and has led them to trust in the boundless resources of their technical arms, arms which before the war were considered out of date. In Germany, on the other hand, the power of a rigid system is too great to permit of any change. It was the perfection of system which carried through the wonderful march on Paris and is still keeping the Russians at bay on the eastern frontier.

But it is the same system which prevents the Germans from understanding their enemies and still leads to colossal mistakes. Only two alternatives were available for a non-German people like the Belgians. They could either be terrorised or bribed into submission. The Belgians have answered both terrorism and bribery by beginning the formation of a new army of two hundred thousand men. Only one behaviour was possible for a sailor who was also a patriot. If his ship were sunk he should chant the national anthem or some other patriotic air as he went to his grave. A British sailor from the Cressy was heard to sing a music-hall ditty as he struggled in the water, and therefore the whole British navy has been described as a collection of soulless conscripts. The judgment has, no doubt, been revised in the light of recent events. But it was seriously propounded at the time of that disaster when the world was asked how a frivolous people could ever hold the seas against a navy capable of singing "The Watch on the Rhine" in peril as well as in safety, after defeat as well as after a victory. This gospel of system was carried to its logical conclusion when the so-called "Chant of Hate" was ordered to be taught in all the German schools. The poem, no doubt, expressed the view of the majority of the nation. Had it not done so it would not have had so great a success. It stated in vigorous language the opinion of the authorities, who, for the time being, have substituted the English for the Russians as the national enemy. But the authorities have forgotten that it is impossible for a people, or even an individual, to continue to feel so intense an emotion as hate for any length of time. They may be able to regard one nation as their arch enemy as the Romans regarded Carthage. If they are so accessible to the teaching and to drill as the Germans they may be able to persuade themselves that the continued existence of Great Britain is inconsistent with their safety or with their development. But before so personal an emotion is sustained it will be necessary to change some of the sources of human nature. The German leaders, if they were open to conviction, would have seen the futility of their orders in the manner in which Christmas Day was celebrated at the front. We should have seen nothing surprising in the manner in which British soldiers insisted on surrounding themselves with all the marks of Christians in the face of the enemy. Nothing in this war has been so illuminating as the ability of the British soldier to put aside all the thoughts of war as soon as his day's or week's work is over. All the hundreds of letters which have been published give instances of this blessed gift of mental recuperation. But at Christmas time the Germans, no less than the English, were able to forget that they had any national enemies, and to behave as simple men, whose ideal of "the true pathos and sublime of human life" was the same as it was for the Scottish poet. The German leaders may pretend to believe that a soldier is the less a patriot because he can gossip about the common affairs of life with one of his country's enemies. The British and French leaders know a great deal better. This war is truly a democratic war, because it is waged between two countries who have different ideals of life and different ideals of the relations of one country to another. The British people are instinctively opposed to a nation which holds that there is no code of honour between one people and another, which subordinates all human feelings and private rights to a national end, and which will not allow two countries to subsist and flourish side by side. They believe that the triumph of such an ideal would be disastrous to themselves and to all the hopes of democracy. But they know that the German idea of drilling one people to hate another is based on a theory of human nature which is fundamentally false. It is impossible to poison the milk of human kindness for ever, just as it is impossible to transform a home-loving citizen into a soldier thinking of nothing but war.

THE STATE AND THE DOCTORS.

The most instructed and enlightened among us will surely applaud the efforts which Mr. Flowers, as Minister for Health, is making to combat the spread of contagious diseases; but it will be a matter for something more than regret if the method of doing it creates a breach between the Government and the doctors. We believe, however, that the difficulties that have arisen are capable of satisfactory adjustment by friendly conference and compromise. The standpoint of the medical profession can be readily understood, but we cannot help feeling that it would have been wiser for the doctors to have conferred with the Minister first, as they had been requested to do, and to have held their meeting afterwards. No matter how keenly they may feel on the subject, their own interests, to say nothing of the interests of the public, demand that they shall work in harmony with the head of the new Health Department which the State Government has seen fit to establish. It is no less important that Mr. Flowers shall lose no opportunity of seeking the co-operation and guidance of the members of the B.M.A. Working in that spirit, they will achieve much good; working in a spirit of antagonism, little good can be hoped for. There can be few things more important than the health of the people, and the creation of a special Health Department, with a special Minister in charge of it, is one of the things that stand to the credit of the Labour Government in this State. We believe that the doctors themselves realise this and appreciate it; for no matter how close a corporation the B.M.A. may be—and it has been referred to as one of the biggest unions in the world—its members have at all times been found fighting for the general good and the alleviation of the ills of suffering humanity. For this cause thousands of them spend their lives in the world's laboratories to add to the sum of human knowledge concerning disease, in order that mankind may reap the benefit. For this cause they go out into the fever-stricken places of the earth, careless of their own lives as long as the world benefits; and we know the risks that so many of them run by experimenting on themselves before giving their discoveries to the world. Remember the victims of the investigation of radio-activity. Consider, too, the rush by the Empire's great surgeons to South Africa and to Flanders. And it matters not to what country they belong—it is a world-wide brotherhood, working for humanity at large. There is no nobler calling; and we cannot help regretting that the Minister for Health should have uttered that cheap gibe about the assumption by the medical fraternity of the role of the champion philanthropists. It was unlike Mr. Flowers; and we have no doubt that he now regrets the remark. Doctors, like the rest of us, have to earn a living, but, apart from the services so many of them cheerfully give to the public hospitals without expectation of any reward, there is hardly one of them who would refuse to attend a suffering man or woman who was too poor to pay him. The late Sir James Graham represented a type of medical man of whom, we are proud to think, we still have many in our midst. But the doctor cannot live by his ministrations to the necessitous poor; he looks for his living to those who can afford to pay. Mr. Flowers has offered to pay the doctors for their services, and they have refused to accept payment; and this is just where the conflict arises. The visiting hospital doctors, to their credit be it said, will only attend in an honorary capacity; and as honorary physicians it is too much to expect them to treat the rich as well as the poor.

A little while ago there was the trouble with the friendly societies. Then there was trouble with some of the country hospitals. In the one case it was a combined effort, on the part of an association or a union, to secure what was considered to be adequate remuneration and satisfactory conditions generally. In the other case it was a question of working with "non-unionists." The fight with the lodges was a particularly long and determined one, and, indeed, it still goes on, for only the other day the New South Wales branch had the case of the A.N.A. before it, and resolved not to recognise it as a friendly society at all. In Victoria and in Queensland the A.N.A. is a strong political organisation, and whatever its claims for special medical benefits may be in this State to-day, the doctors were unanimous in their opinion that it is bound to develop along the political lines of the same organisation in other States. But with that question we are not concerned for the moment. We are concerned with the establishment of day and night clinics for the treatment of contagious diseases. Mr. Flowers has laid it down as a fixed principle that he will not discriminate between rich and poor, and the doctors have laid down the principle that they will have nothing to do with places where free treatment is offered to rich and poor alike. There is no question about the necessity of preventing the spread of these loathsome diseases, which have been in the past, and are to-day, responsible for more misery than all the world's wars; Minister and doctors are heartily at one in this respect. The doctors simply say they will not give free treatment to persons who can afford to pay. In principle the position taken up by the medical profession is unassailable; but on the other hand a public hospital is a public hospital, built, as Mr. Flowers points out, with public money for the use of the public. At the same time it is, we believe, expected of every patient who can afford to pay something in return for treatment at the hospitals that he shall do so, and those who can are glad enough to do it. It is our belief, as far as the clinics are concerned, that persons who can afford it will prefer private treatment to treatment at a public hospital, no matter what privacy may be insisted on at the public institution; and in the second place, we believe that even where the rich may take advantage of the clinics, they will, as a matter of ordinary gratitude and justice, be glad enough to pay for it. There is another important aspect. The doctors are promised protection against quacks and chemists who have been in the habit of treating persons suffering from contagious diseases; and that is something worth having. They will be foolish not to meet Mr. Flowers half way. Mr. Flowers, for his part, will be foolish if he rejects the help the doctors are ready and anxious to give him—he will be acting unwisely if he takes any steps which may deprive the inmates of our public hospitals of the services of such eminent men as Sir Alexander MacCormick and Mr. Thring, who are now patriotically and philanthropically caring for the wounded at the Australian base hospital at Wimereux, and of many other able men whose services are at all times available on behalf of the sick poor. It is the public, after all, who are mostly concerned in the matter. On the end desired all are agreed; it is not too much to hope that a means to that end, satisfactory to all parties, will be found.

PERSONAL.

On Friday the Governor of South Australia, Sir Henry Galway, will leave Adelaide on a visit to the Governor of Victoria, Sir Arthur Stanley, at Melbourne.

Mr. Frank Tate, M.A., Director of Education in Victoria, returned to Sydney last night from a visit to Newcastle. He will leave for Melbourne to-day.

Sir Edward Stone, Lieutenant-Governor of Western Australia, will leave by the Egypt to-day on his return to Perth.

Canon Archdall, who has been spending the last two months in Tasmania, is due back in Sydney early next week.

Mr. Evan Claydon, son of the Rev. E. Claydon, of St. Luke's, Burwood, is leaving for England by the Ballarat to-day to continue his education at Bedford, after which he will proceed to Cambridge with the intention of taking holy orders.

LIVERPOOL.

WHERE SOLDIERS ARE MADE.

THE BIG CAMP.

"See them dixies?" said the trooper.

The lady adjusted her glasses, and looked hard in the direction in which he pointed. She did not know what a "dixy" was (and the present writer is not quite sure how it is spelt), but the word evidently called up ideas associated with bird life, for she said: "I really can't say I do. Are they cockatoos or parrots?"

"They are the cooking-pots, madam—the soup pots, the spud pots, madam—them black pots over the fires."

"Oh, I see—dear me!" said the lady. Then, as an afterthought: "Is it a good dictionary word?"

"Dunno," the trooper replied. "We ain't most of us grammarians up 'ere. Plain fightin' men, lady."

"Well, I think it's just splendid of you, anyway," said the lady.

And it is—just splendid. Liverpool Camp is the home to-day of the splendid men of the State—the men who have answered the call of duty and are forsaking all to follow the grand old flag. There are eleven hundred Light Horsemen up there. There are four thousand infantrymen. There are over five hundred tents. The average number of men to a tent is ten; but over and above this there is an office tent for each company, there is the orderlies' tent, there is the guards' tent, where the Commandant conducts the examination of the few men who from day to day forget what our old friend Fluellen calls the "disciplines of the wars, look you." And there are the tents which contain the stores; there is the tent which is a branch of the Commonwealth Bank; there is the canteen; there is the drapery shop; there is the barber's shop. And what not. Liverpool Camp is a thriving township. It reminds you of the early gold days, when tented towns sprang up in a night.

And it is a well-managed town; certainly it has in the Commandant, Colonel Humphris, a general manager of a very high stamp. Everybody, from the officers down to the latest recruit, swears by him. Colonel Humphris, who fought with distinction in the Boer War—in those days he lived in South Australia—has been at Liverpool since the middle of December, and many improvements have been made at the camp under his supervision. He is an officer who makes the welfare and the comfort of the men under his command a special study—one who thoroughly understands men, and knows how to get the best out of them—and that is why one of the troopers said of him yesterday: "He's a good sort, and not 'stuck up'—has a word to say to everybody—firm enough, mind you, but human—an officer and a gentleman."

The same thing may, perhaps, be said of all the officers. They are a fine and able lot of men, and in this the Commandant is fortunate.

PROVISION FOR COMFORT.

To visit a big military camp like that at Liverpool is something of an experience; and it enables one to understand the difficulties that confronted the authorities at the outset. It was a new thing for us. We had had our military camps before, of course, but nothing on such a scale as this. They were camps that lasted for a few weeks, and then disappeared. This was a permanent thing—something that will last as long as the war lasts, at all events. Thousands of men had to be billeted, trained, and sent away, and as fast as they left other thousands had to be taken in hand. And so it goes on all the time—some going, others coming. Naturally, things did not move like clockwork at first; but to-day everything runs smoothly, and few complaints are heard.

It is not a Salisbury Plain, but it is a big thing for us. We have had no Sir John Jackson, as Kitchener has had, to take this thing in hand, but we have been well served by the men we have had, and all the discomforts that the first-comers had to put up with have disappeared. Water has been laid on right to the camp, the arrangements for the food supply have been greatly improved, and the sanitary arrangements to-day are such that little fault can be found with them.

"Of course, there are some men who will find fault with anything," said a young Light Horseman, who said he was an "old" boy of Newington College, "but the men who do the complaining are those who think they've come here on a picnic, and that the whole adventure is a picnic. They don't count, and the best thing they can do is to 'get on and get under.' It is not a picnic. We didn't come here to enjoy ourselves—except in so far as it gives one pleasure to serve one's country—and we expected to have to rough it a bit. Well, we are roughing it a bit. It's not exactly like home, with all the comforts of a home; but the food's good and wholesome, and the life's healthy—and I'm satisfied, anyway."

COOKING APPLIANCES.

The splendidly-built brick fireplaces and ovens bear witness to the permanent nature of this camp. There are also "cooking trenches," and one sees many a "dixy" steaming over a blazing log in one or other of these trenches. There is an open-air "laundry," where the men wash their clothes, the dirty water being carried away from the camp along a drain. Here and there, dotted about the grounds, are a number of excellent shower-baths—"grateful and comforting" to the men after a long route march. Over at the side is an ingenious device for burning off all rubbish. A deep pit has been dug out, and an air-shaft made, and the fire burns there night and day. There is a scrupulous cleanliness about the whole place. The men take a pride in keeping the place clean, and any man who shows a tendency towards dirtiness is hauled off to the "guard-room" by his tent-mates, and severely lectured by the commandant.

One very important aspect of camp life that has not been overlooked here is the necessity of "moving on." Where thousands of men are gathered together, no matter what care may be taken, there is a danger of sickness breaking out if the tents are allowed to remain too long in the one spot. The ground becomes "sick." That is why every now and again the tents are moved to fresh ground. There have already been several moves of this kind, and at the present moment preparations are being made for a further move. But before it can be done the water supply has to be carried farther up the road.

This, then, is the site of the greatest factory in New South Wales to-day—the spot where we are manufacturing our soldiers. They come from everywhere; they are drawn from all trades and professions. And Colonel Humphris told the "Herald" representative that the type of men coming forward to-day is "better than ever."

"The other day I had need of a surveyor," said the commandant. "I soon found one. Then I wanted a civil engineer. I found one in the ranks of the privates. Later a solicitor was required. One was found—another private."

And if he needs a Russian interpreter the commandant will find one. For there is one there—born at Wingau, between Riga and Libau; but his home is now in Australia—he is a miner from Newcastle. Carlson is his name.

DEFENCE.

A STRATEGIC RAILWAY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher), in addressing a meeting at the Mechanics' Institute, Kyneton, last evening, said that Mr. Cook had stated that the Labour party had departed from its platform in wooing "They Mo." His (Mr. Fisher's) Ministry had borrowed, but it had not involved the Commonwealth in a single penny of interest. It had secured £10,000,000, but it had lent the same amount to the States, who paid the whole interest. There would probably be £12,000,000 spent on the Expeditionary Forces, but no interest would be paid on that amount.

He had no hope of seeing a uniform railway gauge within the next 10 or [illegible] years. A strategic line for military purposes could, however, be cheaply built from Adelaide to Brisbane. It was for the people of Australia to say whether they were prepared to make this sacrifice for the purpose of putting their house in order.

BUKOVINA.

ENEMY REPULSED.

THE WEST.

ALLIES' PROGRESS.

GERMAN TROOPS MUTINY.

Mr. M. H. Donohoe, the "Daily Chronicle" correspondent, states that the Russians have beaten off the Austro-German forces in the Czerniwitz (Bukovina) district. The correspondent adds that the district is now free of the enemy, who are retiring.

During the bombardment of Violanes (six miles from Bethune), when the British captured a brickfield, the Germans took refuge in dug-outs.

"Our assault was so well timed," says "Eye Witness," "that, when the enemy emerged from their burrows our infantry was upon them."

"Those showing fight were immediately bayoneted, but many, recognising the hopelessness of resistance, discarded their arms and cried out for mercy".

The German Emperor, Prince Henry of Prussia, and Admiral von Tirpitz have gone to Wilhelmshaven to direct the blockade.

Despite the blockade, shipping in the English Channel and the Irish Sea is normal.

A Russian "Gazette" says that it was necessary to exercise secrecy regarding the East Prussian operations. The German movement was foreseen a fortnight before it occurred, and precautionary measures were taken.

The Zeppelin AE 4 was caught in a snowstorm and got beyond control. The crew jumped into the sea, allowing the airship to fly over the North Sea. Four of the occupants were killed, and eleven were interned in Denmark.

THE BLOCKADE.

THE EMPEROR.

GONE TO WILHELMSHAVEN.

LONDON, Feb. 19.

The "Daily Mail" correspondent at Copenhagen states that the German Emperor, Prince Henry of Prussia, and Admiral von Tirpitz have gone to Wilhelmshaven to direct the blockade.

The latest announcement from Berlin states that the Germans have built 120 big mine-laying submarines during the last six months. Each submarine carries one hundred mines.

SHIPPING NORMAL.

LONDON, Feb. 19.

Despite the blockade, shipping in the Channel is normal. Bristol, Glasgow, and Liverpool shipping companies are also ignoring the German threats.

DUTCH MAIL SERVICE.

BY TORPEDO BOATS.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 18.

It is announced that the Dutch Government proposes to entrust the mail service to Britain to torpedo boat-destroyers.

GERMAN PROCLAMATION.

RESENTED IN NORWAY.

CHRISTIANIA, Feb. 18.

The German proclamation in regard to the blockade of the seas adjacent to Britain has angered Norway, which threatens to stop its trade with Germany.

The German Ambassador says that next week will see embittered fighting on the British coast, and that Germany is not able to offer neutral ships any security.

MUTINY.

AMONG GERMAN TROOPS.

LONDON, Feb. 19.

The mutiny at Ghent at the beginning of February resulted in 7000 German troops and thirty officers being tied in couples and sent to Brussels for refusing to go to the Yser front. Later the mutineers were sent to Germany.

SPECIALLY MENTIONED.

LIST OF AUSTRALASIANS.

LONDON, Feb. 18.

Field-Marshal Sir John French's despatch mentions the following:—

Captain B. Montgomery, of Tasmania.

Captain C. B. Wilson, of the Tenth Hussars.

Lieut. F. W. A. Steele, of Victoria.

A. Martin, Army Medical Corps, of New Zealand.

Colonel Gordon Wilson, Captain A. W. Macarthur Onslow, and Captain M. Carbery.

These last three are deceased.

EASTERN FRONT.

BEATEN OFF.

GERMANS AT CZERNOWITZ.

LONDON, Feb. 19.

Mr M. H. Donohoe, the "Daily Chronicle" correspondent, writing from Bucharest, states that the Russians have beaten off the Austro-German forces in the Czernowitz (Bukovina) district.

Mr. Donohoe adds that the district is now free of the enemy, who are retiring.

MAZURIAN LAKES.

EMPEROR'S COMMENT.

"OUR GLORIOUS SUCCESS."

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 19.

The German Emperor, in telegraphing to Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg (German Chancellor) regarding the Mazurian Lakes battle, said:—"Under my own eyes the new levies have proved equal to the old troops. Neither the cold, the snow, nor the tenacity of the enemy impeded victory. Our losses were fortunately small.

"My joy at our glorious success diminished at the sight of a flourishing district laid waste. Devoid of all human feeling, the enemy, in senseless rage during their flight, burnt and destroyed almost the last house. The loss is irrecoverable."

FORESEEN.

THE GERMAN MOVEMENT.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 19.

An official "Gazette" says that it was necessary to exercise secrecy regarding the East Prussian operations. The German movement was foreseen a fortnight before it occurred, and precautionary measures were taken.

The Russians retreated in order to tire the enemy and occupied a concentrated position.

THE RUSSIANS.

RETREATED IN GOOD ORDER.

LONDON, Feb. 19.

Telegrams from Petrograd regarding events in the Czernowitz district prior to Mr. Donohoe's telegrams state that the Russians retreated in good order.

There was often four feet of snow on the mountain paths. The Tyrolese, by dropping loose rocks, harassed the retreating army. The Austrians felled trees across defiles, but the Russians overcame enormous difficulties and destroyed all bridges before they evacuated Czernowitz.

GERMAN SUCCESS.

BERLIN OFFICIAL ACCOUNT.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 18.

It is officially stated in Berlin that the Germans have taken 3000 prisoners near Plock and Roziaz.

Booty taken east of the Prussian frontier to date, it is stated, comprises 60,000 prisoners, 71 cannon, 100 machine guns, three ambulance trains, 150 full ammunition waggons, and innumerable cars and horses.

STUBBORN FIGHTING.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 19.

A communique states: The fighting along the Niemen and Vistula which was continued on the 17th reached its maximum stubbornness in the Augustowo region and along the Sierpec and Plock roads.

Our detachments in Bukowina retreated beyond the Pruth River.

THE KING'S HONOURS.

LONDON, Feb. 18.

A "Gazette" of 22 pages has been issued containing a list of honours conferred by the King for services in the field.

The list includes 15 Major-Generals (among them, Colonel R. Davies, of New Zealand), 11 Victoria Crosses, 12 Commanders of the Order of the Bath (among them, Generals Pulteney and Allenby), and many Distinguished Service Orders, medals, and military crosses.

Surgeon-General Williams, of the Australian Military Forces, is promoted to the rank of Honorary Surgeon-General in the British Army.

VICTORIA CROSS.

THE RECIPIENTS.

The Victoria Cross was awarded to the following:—

Lieutenant Depass, for entering a German sap on November 24 and destroying a traverse, despite German bombs.

Private Dobson (Royal Scots), and Private Mackenzie (Scots' Guardsman), and Lieutenant Neame (Royal Engineers), for gallantly rescuing wounded troops.

Privates Acton and James Smith (Border Regiment), who were under fire for sixty minutes rescuing wounded.

Lance-corporal Cleary (Irish Guards), for leading a storming party which killed five Germans who were holding a barricade at Guinchy. He then rushed on to a second barricade and took five Germans prisoners. He attempted to man a machine gun, and practically captured the position alone.

Surgeon Captain Arthur Martin-Leake, who gained the Victoria Cross in South Africa in 1902, has been granted a clasp for conspicuous devotion to duty at Zonnebeke in November. This is an unprecedented honour, being equivalent to two Victoria Crosses.

Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander (109th Battery), for bravery displayed on August 24 against overwhelming odds, when he saved the guns. Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander and three men dragged the guns away by hand in order to enable the fifth division to retire without serious loss.

Drummer Kenny (Gordon Highlanders), for fearlessly rescuing five wounded soldiers on October 23 at Ypres. He had previously twice saved life by carrying troops out of the range of machine guns.

Lieutenant Brook (Gordon Highlanders), who was killed. He led two attacks on October 29 at Gheluvelt, thus preventing the Germans breaking the British line. At the time it was impossible to organise a general counter attack.

Captain Valentine (South Staffordshire Regiment), who was killed while leading an attack at Lillebecke on November 7.

WESTERN FRONT.

AT LA BASSEE.

EFFECTIVE BRITISH ASSAULT.

GERMANS CRY FOR MERCY.

LONDON, Feb. 18.

"Eyewitness" with the British troops states that during the bombardment at Violanies, six miles east by north of Bethune, between La Bassee and Festubert, when the British captured a brickfield, the Germans took refuge in dug-outs.

"Our assault was so well timed and sudden," says "Eyewitness," "that when the enemy emerged from their burrows our infantry was on top of them. Those showing fight were immediately bayoneted, but many, recognising the hopelessness of resistance, discarded their arms and cried out for mercy, offering watches, money, cigarettes, and fruit to buy their lives."

One German officer was bayoneted while telephoning, presumably for reinforcements.

One of our men, armed only with a shovel, killed four Germans who were trying to escape.

A large amount of dum-dum ammunition was captured. Many of the cartridges had the bullets reversed, with the bases pointing outwards.

ATTACKS REPULSED.

GERMAN REGIMENTS SUFFER.

PARIS, Feb. 19.

Another favourable day was experienced. The Germans at Rolincourt made five attacks to recapture the trenches taken yesterday. All the attacks were repulsed, leaving several hundred corpses. Similar efforts were made to recapture the trenches lost on February 16 and 17 at Souain and Perthes (25 miles east of Reims) and Beau-sejour. The French drove back their assailants at the bayonet point, capturing three guns and imprisoning several hundred troops.

The prisoners state that some regimnets lost from one-fourth to half their effective fighting force.

We assaulted and captured the village of Norroy, in Lorraine.

AIRMAN DECORATED.

LONDON, Feb. 18.

General Joffre personally decorated the Australian airman, Captain Oswald Watt, with the Legion of Honour.

Captain Oswald Watt is a native of Sydney, and was born in 1878. He held the rank of captain in the Scottish Rifles here, and was aide-de-camp to the late Sir Harry Rawson and the late Sir Frederick Darley. Captain Watt went to England some years ago, and studied aviation, obtaining his certificate from the military at Aldershot. He afterwards returned to Australia, but went back to England again about two years ago and took his aeroplane to Egypt, where he practised flying for some time. He soon became expert in nearly all branches of flying, and was able to perform the double loop with ease.

From Egypt he went to the south of France, shortly before England had declared war. He took his aeroplane with him, and offered his services to the French Government. The offer was accepted, and he had not been long in active service before he was promoted to the rank of captain in the French Military Aviation Corps.

Captain Oswald Watt, in a recent letter to his uncle in Sydney, mentioned an incident in the campaign when he had to descend between the French and German lines, and stated that the task of getting back to the French lines was a difficult one, as they were wearing heavy clothing and heavy boots for protection against the severe cold of the higher altitudes. They were particularly hampered in their movements, as they had to make their way over a ploughed field to the French lines.

In a later letter to his uncle Captain Watt stated that, when it was too foggy for flying, he used to go into the trenches. Once when he was sent spy-hunting the party with which he was working caught a number of German spies in a church steeple.

ZEPPELIN LOST.

FOUR GERMANS KILLED.

ELEVEN INTERNED.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 19.

The Zeppelin A.E. 4 was caught in a snowstorm and got beyond control. The crew jumped into the sea, allowing the airship to fly over the North Sea.

Four of the occupants were killed and eleven were interned at West Jutland.

The commander had both his legs broken. The survivors first pretended they were the crew of a trawler which was blown up by a mine. Finally they confessed.

A fleet of Zeppelins is reported to be patrolling the North Sea over Danish waters.

ALLIES' PROGRESS MAINTAINED

PARIS, Feb. 18.

A communique states: We captured a mortar and 100 bombs in the German trenches north of Arras, and our progress elsewhere was maintained.

AFRICA.

TRIAL OF DE WET.

HOW THE REBELLION WAS PLANNED.

BLOEMFONTEIN, Feb. 18.

The trial of the South African rebel leader, Christian De Wet, was continued to-day.

The evidence showed that De Wet, in addressing a commando, stated that the rebellion was planned when General Hertzog left the Ministry.

De Wet, in another speech at Vachtkup, remarked that when they got to Johannesburg they would act like the Germans, and make the capitalists pay.

A witness testified that De Wet, in addressing the burghers, said that Maritz had been placed by God's providence on the German border, where he could get arms and ammunition from the Germans. The latter were always their friends, he said, and Maritz and the German Governor had an understanding that when the Republic was established Germany would acknowledge its independence.

They had only to give Walfisch Bay, he said, to Germany.

JAM FROM SYDNEY.

LONDON, Feb. 18.

The War Office has purchased a further 300,000lb tins of jam and jelly from the Stanmore Preserving Company, Sydney, making a total of 600,000 tins.

SUEZ CANAL.

ATTACK BY THE TURKISH TROOPS.

SERIOUS ATTEMPT TO CROSS.

(FROM CAPTAIN C. E. W. BEAN, OFFICIAL PRESS REPRESENTATIVE WITH THE IMPERIAL FORCES.)

MENA CAMP (Cairo), Feb. 18.

I have purposely refrained from sending further messages regarding the attack on the Suez Canal till the main facts were fully known, and till I had personally visited parts of the battlefield. It is now certain that the attack on February 3 was not a reconnaissance, but a serious attempt to cross the canal made by one-third or one-half of the Turkish army which concentrated in Palestine. The Smyrna army did not take part, but 20,000 troops marched across the desert, mostly by the central route to a camp in the mountains about 40 miles east of Ismailia, and there waited some time whilst reconnaissances were made at Kantara and Ismailia. Finally on February 2 they made what apparently was a feint against Ismailia. This attack was suspended owing to a dust storm. It was during the early hours next morning that the real attack was made against the canal bank further south between Toussoum and Serapeium.

The Turks directed their main force of about 15,000 regulars towards this point. Smaller forces made feint attacks the same morning against Ismailia and Kantara. The night was very dark owing to a sandstorm. The Turkish brigade set off with boats, and reached the bank a little south of Toussoum. Sentries saw dark figures and fired. The Turks managed to launch several boats, but were quickly driven back from the water's edge. They then lined the top of the western bank for a length of a mile and a half, and kept up a heavy fire, which, however, was useless against our position. The Turkish brigade fought very well, and a portion remained in this position all February 3 and part of February 4, when they were surrounded. They then surrendered. The Turkish reserve, however, which was waiting in a valley two miles away, retreated when discovered by our artillery, and by infantry advancing from Serapeium. By the evening of February 3 the Turkish reserve had retired.

Turkish forces at Kantara beat an immediate retreat, all retiring by the central route into the mountains, where they are now, at least 60 miles distant. Further Turkish dead have been found every day. The total is now over six hundred dead, and seven hundred prisoners. Our losses are about 20 killed and 100 wounded.

The training of the Australian troops in the desert around Mena and Zietoun camps is very strenuous. One unit lately marched 12 miles, posted outposts, made a night attack involving six miles marching, and returned 12 miles to camp all within 24 hours. Units of the second contingent were similarly engaged in a night attack and bivouacking in the desert.

GREECE AND TURKEY.

NAVAL ATTACHE INCIDENT.

ATHENS, Feb. 18.

In a street of Pera a Greek naval attache was openly insulted by a Turkish detective. The Greek Minister demanded an apology. The incident is now reported to have closed amicably.

WAR NOTES.

THE RUSSIAN RETREAT.

Not a few people seem to be viewing with pessimism the Russian retreat from East Prussia. As we indicated a day or two ago, there is on the face of it really no reason for concern over the position as it stands at present, and it is far better to suspend judgment upon the whole operation until we learn what the Russians are able to do when they elect to stand against the German advance. The Russian retreat has not been altogether a forced retirement, at the cannon's mouth as it were. When the Grand Duke learned of the great new German concentration in East Prussia he immediately began his retreat. A few days later the Germans compelled at least one section of his army to fight a severe rearguard action in the Lyck-Augustowo district, during which the casualties on the Russian side were evidently severe. We do not know the extent of the Russian casualty list. We have only the German version, and past experience has taught us to look upon such a version with suspicion. We remember, for instance, how Berlin went mad over the news of the great German victory at Lowicz, and subsequent news proved that the Russians evacuated their positions there practically without firing a shot. And just at present Berlin is in urgent need of news of a victory—there has not been one announced for many days. The thing to remember is that the Russian forces in East Prussia as a whole began their retirement before the Germans brought their newly concentrated army to bear on them—that the Grand Duke did not offer a pitched battle, and as far as we know is still retreating to the line where his reinforced troops will confidently make a stand. In other words, this northern Russian army is not retreating as a beaten army, though in one district at least its rearguard has apparently been badly mauled. There have been a couple of occasions on which this army has been actually beaten, when it gave battle to the Germans on East Prussian soil, but there was one occasion worth remembering, when it withdrew from East Prussia altogether, and enticed the Germans well into Russia, away from their railways, and then, when it reached a favourable battle-ground, turned upon its pursuers and inflicted a severe defeat. It will be time for pessimism when the Grand Duke calls a halt, and is then beaten on his own ground.

NOT THE ROAD TO BERLIN.

There are one or two points about this northern region that need to be emphasised. In the first place, the Russians' road to Berlin does not lie through East Prussia. This is admitted by all military experts; but the average man cannot forget that the Russians made their first advance there—and were badly beaten. He fails to appreciate the fact that the Russian dash into Emperor William's favourite province was made with the specific object of relieving the pressure upon the French and British in the west. East Prussia offers the worst campaigning ground in the whole eastern theatre of war, and for the Russians to attempt an advance in force through it would be folly. Von Hindenburg has proved on at least two occasions with what ease he can entrap a hostile army in the labyrinth of the lakes and marshes in the Mazurian districts, and consequently it would be something approaching madness for the Grand Duke to offer battle on a large scale there again. This does not mean that the Grand Duke will or should leave Eastern Prussia alone; he must have an army pegging away there in order to protect his flank, and prevent the Germans from striking down to the north-east of Warsaw. His recent advance in the north of the province was an attempt to take advantage of the German preoccupation in Poland, and to threaten Tilsit and Konigsberg. When developments favourable to the Russians are carried far enough in Poland the problem of the lake district will be solved by cutting in behind it, as it were. But that is obviously looking a long way ahead, and in the meantime all Russian operations in the north have as their basic idea the protection of the right flank.

CRACOW, NOT EAST PRUSSIA.

The present German advance was dictated by a dual motive. In the first place, Von Hindenburg found that it was impossible to batter his way to Warsaw from the front, so he determined to threaten it from the north-east. In the second place the northern Russian army was once again creeping too far into East Prussia, and political considerations demanded that German soil should once more be cleared of the invader. But the vital point that must be kept uppermost in mind in reviewing the Eastern situation is that the Russians are seeking to penetrate into Germany through Silesia, the key to which is Cracow. It was after the Grand Duke had fought his way inch by inch almost to within cannon shot of this stronghold that Von Hindenburg, unable to stay the Russian advance, launched his desperate bolt at Warsaw. The capture of the Polish capital, with its great railway junction and its bridges, would mean the wrecking of the Grand Duke's designs upon Cracow, and the very menace of the Polish capital had the immediate effect of making the Russians withdraw in the south. But when he found he was able to hold the Germans before Warsaw, the Grand Duke commenced once more to develop his attack upon the key to Silesia, and thus was Von Hindenburg constrained to make his present desperate attempt to the north-east of Warsaw. If he is foiled here, the Russians will proceed with their advance in the south. The events of the next couple of weeks are certainly fraught with critical interest; but it must always be remembered that it is not a question of East Prussia at all—but Cracow.

"MERELY INCIDENTS."

In the meantime we hear from Mr. Martin Donohoe that the Russians, after retreating before the Austro-German forces until they had given up practically the whole of Bukovina, have turned the tables on the enemy, and have so signally defeated them that already the Czernowitz district is free of them. During the Russian retreat the Austrian newspapers were busily proclaiming another overwhelming victory. Judging by the news from enemy sources, it began to look as though this left Russian wing was going to be effectively turned, and that the Austro-German forces were about to enter upon a triumphal march through Galicia from the east. One of the most remarkable features of the war has been the way almost every army that has been driven back has turned round and resumed the offensive. We know what the British and French did after the retreat to the Marne. The Germans, after the retreat to the Aisne, turned and attacked strongly. The Belgians, after their severe handling before Brussels, fell back on Antwerp, but they took a vigorous offensive when the Germans fell back from the Marne. The Belgians also recovered in signal fashion after their hurried retreat from Antwerp. The Austrians, defeated by the Servians at Shabatz on August 18, returned to the fray and a second defeat on the Drina on September 8. The Austrian defeat at Lvoff on September 1 did not prevent them fighting stubbornly against the Russians at Havaruska within a fortnight, when the Germans forced the Russians to relinquish their advance on Cracow, the three defeats at Lvoff, Lublin, and Ravaruska did not prevent the Austrians from following them up to the San where they again fought with great determination, maintaining the contest for some days after the Austro-German army on their left had been beaten back from the Vistula. The German army, which was driven back from the Vistula in October, turned about near the border and began the second invasion of Poland within a month. The Russian army that was pitched out of East Prussia halted at Augustowo, and then in turn drove the Germans back. And so on. In former wars a defeated army was usually thrown on the defensive for the remainder of the campaign, or at least for a considerable time. In this the defeated army is pulled together, and forthwith attacks. The explanation probably lies in the fact that what we are calling an "army" is really only a big detachment of an enormous general army, which is so big that it can speedily make good the damage suffered by a particular section. But, whatever the explanation, events have proved that what in former wars would have been considered as decisive defeats are in this merely incidents.

AN EMPEROR'S TEARS.

The German Emperor's message to his Chancellor concerning the destruction of property in East Prussia is fraught with terrible pathos. He says that the Russians, "devoid of all human feeling, and in a senseless rage, during their flight, burnt and destroyed almost to the last house." The whole Belgian nation should surely stand aghast at this inhumane conduct on the part of the Czar's troops. The people of Louvain, Termonde, and Malines, for instance, with a full appreciation of the luxurious comfort and the serene immunity from war's alarms, in which those cities are now basking, will assuredly gather in their respective town halls, not a brick of which has ever been touched by the hand of an invader, and pass resolutions of condolence to be forwarded to the stricken Emperor who enjoined that such scrupulous care should be exercised by his own troops on foreign soil! But, apart from the Belgians, what is the rest of the world going to think of this extraordinary message? The portion of East Prussia, to which it refers, has been fought over again and again, and weeks ago cinematograph pictures were publicly exhibited depicting scenes of utter desolation in this very region, desolation caused by the cannonading of both sides equally. But, this aside, even if the Russians had burnt every house on their line of retreat, and even if we could find not the slightest excuse for their action, what can the world, still shuddering over the horrors committed in Belgium, think of the Emperor, whose troops committed those horrors, when he talks of anybody at all being "devoid of all human feeling," and giving way to "senseless rage." If there is the slightest suspicion of sincerity in such a man, then there is no such thing as hypocrisy in all the world.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"C.H.W." (Castle Hill): (1) Donations to the Servian Fund may be sent to Mr. G. Harkness, secretary to the Premier's Department. (2) The German Emperor married Princess Augusta Victoria of Schleswig Holstein.

"T.S.H." (Ganmain): (1) We doubt if there is any rule laid down, but no flag should be flown above the Union Jack. (2) The ranks run.—Naval: Admiral, Vice-Admiral, Rear-Admiral, Commodore, Captain, Commander, Lieutenant, Sub-Lieutenant, Midshipman, Chief Boatswain, First-class Petty Officer, Second-class Petty-Officer, Leading Seaman, Seaman. Military: Field-Marshal, General, Lieutenant-General, Major-General, Brigadier-General, Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, Major, Captain, Lieutenant, Second Lieutenant, Sergeant-Major, Colour-Sergeant, Sergeant, Corporal, Lance-Corporal, Private. (3) The highest non-commissioned officer ranks lower than the lowest commissioned officer.

"Perplexed" (Casino): An international commission "controls" the navigation of the Danube, as far as the Iron Gates; but in case of war Roumania would certainly "command" access to the higher reaches of the river, for the stream runs wholly within her territory before it falls into the sea.

"A.E.K." (Greenwich): The pamphlet you mention has not reached us; but if you turn to the imprint you will doubtless see where and by whom it is printed.

NEW ZEALAND OFFICER.

ARMY PROMOTION.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

The Government has received news from the Secretary of State for the Colonies of the King's approval, on the recommendation of Lord Kitchener, of the promotion of Brigadier-General Davies, C.B., to the rank of major-general. This is the first instance in which a New Zealander has been appointed to such rank. Major-General Davies commanded the Sixth Infantry Brigade and the second division of the British Expeditionary Force which crossed from England to the Continent. As brigadier-general he took part in the retreat from Mons, and was afterwards invalided. His promotion was received with the greatest satisfaction by New Zealand officials and ex-volunteers, among whom he was regarded as a stern disciplinarian, but a first-class soldier. He is deservedly popular.

THE TROOPS.

ACTIVITY IN RECRUITING.

HIGH STANDARD.

MEN FOR INFANTRY WANTED.

When the street display yesterday had come to an end, the men of the returned island contingent spent a couple of hours in barracks, and fraternised with the mobilised force now doing duty there. A little anxiety was expressed by friends and relations of the troops, who were waiting at the entrance gates for the men to come out. Mothers and children were there in large numbers, and it was noticeable that, when the men were formally dismissed, some had presented to them babies in arms, who probably saw their fathers for the first time, it being six months since the contingent left these shores. This applied, of course, to country soldiers, the city men having been granted leave the previous evening.

While all was astir on the big asphalted space in the interior of the barracks, the ordinary work of recruiting was necessarily interferred with. Nevertheless, the volunteers for the day came forward in such numbers as to produce a good average result. The recruits consisted about equally of country and metropolitan men. There was again a satisfactory influx of bushmen who had had considerable experience with horses, and who had done a good deal of rough riding and boundary work. Practically all these men were qualified for inclusion in the Light Horse, but since the requirements are chiefly for infantry, the men told Warrant-officer Muckleston that they were prepared to go wherever their services could be best utilised. The result was that men who would have made first-class Light Horsemen were enlisted for the Infantry.

Recruiting is to go on continuously.

"Anxious" (Granville), who has not heard from her son, should write to him, care of 2nd Expeditionary Contingent, Australian Imperial Forces, Egypt.

"R.C." (Erskineville): All information respecting rifle clubs can be obtained from Mr. Sherbon, supervisor of rifle clubs, Victoria Barracks, Paddington.

"W.R." (G.P.O.): The age for admission to the Naval College at Jervis Bay is 13 years and under.

"Anxious to Enlist": If a man is a little past the prescribed age, and is equal in every other requirement, he may be accepted for the Island service when reinforcements are needed. Apply to the A.A.G., Victoria Barracks.

"J.L.B." (Burwood): When motor despatch drivers are required the height and measurement are the same as for ordinary soldiers. At present men are not being enlisted for this division, but suitable applicants can be taken on for the infantry, and have their papers specially marked.

"J.F." (Rozelle): Men who have claims for the engineers, with the experience of bridge building, etc., that you have, should apply to Major Warden, staff officer, engineers' depot, Moore Park.

"F.A.W." (Karuah): The separation allowance for a man's wife is 1s 3d per day and 7½d for each child under 18 years of age. This amount is payable only when the husband is in camp, and conditional also upon his going away. The pay for privates is 5s per day, with 1s extra deferred pay.

"Anxious" (Camden): If boy scoutts who are under 18 years of age want to be buglers they should apply to the enrolling officer. There are very few vacancies of this kind at any time.

"Inquirer" (Neutral Bay): Men attached to the garrison at Middle Head are debarred from volunteering for active service. If an intending recruit is under 21, and his parents are in England, he should produce the consent in writing of his guardian.

"Volo": Major Warden, staff officer, engineering service, should be applied to for qualifications for enrolment in his division. Civilians desiring commissions should apply to the selection committee to prove their worth by duty in the ranks.

"J.N.": A height of 5ft 3¼in and a chest measurement of 32in are below the required standard.

"Wife" (Darlinghurst): A man to be in the Army Medical Corps as an ordinary private is not expected to have first-aid experience. The pay is the same as in other sections of the force.

"Recruit": A wife or mother dependent upon a man killed in battle receives a pension of £52 per year.

"T.W." (Chatswood): Defective eyesight will be a bar to enrolment.

"J.B." (Newtown): You must join the forces before going to the schools of instruction. Application to attend these schools must be made to the military headquarters, Paddington. The text books will be supplied by the department. Your nearest school will be Marrickville.

"Ells" (West Maitland): The military authorities think that a man who has a fixed deposit in the bank could have his pay garnisheed, but this is a matter upon which yould should consult a solicitor.

"Distressed" (Tingha): After your repeated inquiries of the paymaster yould should bring under the notice of the military headquarters, Paddington, the failure to receive further remittances.

A cable message was yesterday received by Bergl Australia, Ltd., from the London office stating that Major J. Weston P. Peters, one of the London directors, had been honourably mentioned in despatches by General French.

RECRUITING.

MR. FISHER'S DECLARATION.

"WE MUST DO MORE."

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Speaking at a civic reception given this afternoon at Maryborough (Vic.), the Prime Minister, Mr. Fisher, said no matter what statements were made the Government was not going to depart from its recruiting policy. It was not the business of the Government to go cautiously in a crisis such as the present, but to go daringly, and take all risks that were in the public interest. As far as he was concerned, he was not one of those who thought that party criticism should cease in this crisis. It was a known fact that corruption had crept in before in such a crisis in a nation's history, and the Government would take steps that such would not be the case in the present crisis. It would keep a watchful eye on even the most patriotic people. It was the bounden duty of Australia to provide adequate home defence, and to do something more than had been done in the past for the Mother country, which had done so much for this land.

MEAT FOR THE ARMY.

STATE OPERATIONS.

ABATTOIRS BOARD TO BUY.

There was a suggestion made on the part of the Government during the discussion on the Meat Supply for Imperial Uses Act that its validity might be challenged. So far, however, no step has been made in this direction, and, in view of the unanimity prevailing in the meat trade regarding the measure, it seems extremely improbable that the right of the State Parliament to pass such a measure will be challenged.

It was anticipated when the bill was going through the Assembly that the point would arise whether the State or the Commonwealth should pass such legislation. No question of the right to trade interstate arises under the Meat Act, as it is only the exportable surplus that is to be dealt with. New South Wales has in existence in the Meat Industry Board the machinery necessary for carrying out the wishes of the Imperial Government.

The meat trade is not to be interfered with by the new Act in the slightest degree. When, however, the State Government is advised to secure a certain number of carcases for export, the Meat Board will know what supplies are available, and it will then become a matter of negotiating between the board and the owners on the basis of the market value. The procedure will be for f.o.b. quotations to be received, and the State will have nothing to do with the handling of the meat in any way.

Already, it is understood, the State Government has been made aware of the immediate requirements of the Imperial authorities, and not the least difficulty is apprehended regarding the ability of the State to act fairly as between the British Government and the local meat trade.

LATE WAR NEWS.

MINE SWEEPING.

WONDERFUL RECORD OF PLUCK

LONDON, Feb. 19.

The British Admiralty, in a memorandum on the mine-sweeping operations to the end of December, shows a wonderful record of pluck.

The Germans laid an extensive mine field on our Scarborough coast, says the memorandum. In one case three mine-sweepers were blown up in ten minutes, but our work was continued.

ITALY AND THE WAR.

CROWD ATTACK AUSTRIAN EMBASSY.

ROME, Feb. 19.

The Italian Chamber of Deputies has been reopened.

Thousands of Italians made a demonstration in favour of Italy joining in the war.

The crowd tried to attack the Austrian Embassy, but the troops dispersed them.

RECENT NAVAL FIGHT.

GERMAN CRUISER DERRFLINGER.

SERIOUSLY DAMAGED.

GENEVA, Feb. 19.

An engineer of the German armoured cruiser Derrflinger, which took part in the attempted raid on the British coast recently, and was badly damaged by the British guns in the naval fight in the North Sea, writing to his parents, stated that the cruiser was seriously damaged in the fight. Water invaded the engine-room.

The engineers were working up to their knees in water, when a shell pierced the hull and killed many.

A WRECKED ZEPPELIN.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 19.

Count Platen was in command of the second Zeppelin which was wrecked off the coast of Denmark.

IN THE EAST.

AN AUSTRIAN CLAIM.

LONDON, Feb. 19.

An Austrian communique claims that the Austrians on Wednesday occupied Czernowitz, where, according to the story of Mr. M. Donohoe, the correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle," the Russians had beaten off the Austro-Germans, and the district was free.

ARBITRATION BILL.

FAR-REACHING SCOPE.

CIVIL SERVANTS INCLUDED.

The Arbitration Bill, which the Government intends bringing down next session, promises to be far-reaching in character. Mr. Estell hopes to submit it early in the session.

It is understood that the bill now drafted has been largely framed by Mr. B. R. Wise, K.C., who introduced the first Arbitration Act placed on the statute-book in the State. Mr. Wise's Act gave way to the measure with which Mr. Wade's name is associated, and it is admitted on all sides that neither before nor since has such good all-round results being got out of the system, the administrators having profited by the earlier mistakes. Ever since Mr. Wade's Act was rescinded the position has grown unsatisfactory, both employers and employees having publicly found fault with the new industrial order of things, and, now that the whole system is to be thrown into the melting-pot, there are said to be those among the Labour party who advocate the reversion to some of the broad features of Mr. Wade's Act. It is even said that in the framing of his Act, Mr. Wade adopted many important suggestions emanating from Labour bodies, and in this way the interests of the employees were taken into account.

It is said that the Labour party itself is anxious to see the machinery of the Arbitration Court such that its awards and decisions will be respected implicitly. The new bill is said to recognise the inherent impossibility of allowing organisations to shelter under the provisions of the law for certain purposes, and flouting it when they think fit.

Under the present State law, the civil service outside the Railway and Tramway Department is beyond the scope of the Act, but it is now definitely stated that Mr. Estell's bill will provide in a very ample way for "the ultimate control of the conditions of public servants by industrial tribunals." It has been represented to the Government by the Public Service Association that a representative section of its members was in favour of registering as an industrial union. The association states that its desire is "not to force wages boards on all sections of the service, but to act on behalf of those desiring to obtain wages board awards."

WHEAT SUPPLIES.

REQUESTS FROM OTHER STATES.

CABINET TO DECIDE.

The Wheat Acquisition Board yesterday considered the application received from Victoria for 100,000 bushels of wheat, to be sent immediately, and 200,000 on loan.

The board discussed the matter from the point of view of the effect such an exportation was calculated to have upon the supplies within the State of flour, bran, and pollard. The matter was debated at great length, and, although a determination was come to, it was not made public, because the application has to be finally dealt with by the Government. It is understood that, owing to the absence of the Premier, Mr. Holman, and the Minister for Agriculture, Mr. Ashford, in the Castlereagh electorate, the question whether the 200,000 bushels should be sent to Victoria will not be determined till next week.

At the same time, the applications from all the other States will be determined. In view of the complaint that local mills are shortening hands because of a dearth of gristing material, it is considered unlikely in milling circles that the State will be in a position to oblige the other Governments with the large quantities they are asking for. They, however, incline to the view that it may be possible to spare some flour that is manufactured within the State.

SEED WHEAT.

The board has now decided to give individual farmers the greatest latitude in the disposal of seed wheat to their neighbours.

The board yesterday came to the conclusion that it would be more expeditious to allow farmers the greatest freedom in retaining what they wanted for their own requirements and for their neighbours. No restriction as to the price of seed wheat is to be imposed upon farmers, it being realised that buyers are prepared to pay more than the proclaimed price.

WELCOME HOME.

RETURNED TROOPS.

STREET MARCH.

ENTHUSIASTIC CROWDS.

The western side of Circular Quay presented the appearance of a brilliant flower-bed yesterday. The dull-hued roadway was hidden by the thousands of men, women, and children in light summer attire who had gathered there to witness the commencement of the march through Sydney's streets of the Australian Expeditionary Force which returned on Thursday from New Guinea.

The troops, composed of naval reserve and military units, paraded early, and moved off sharp at 9 o'clock to the cheers of the public lining each side of George-street. The long line of blue and khaki, topped with the glittering blades of bayonets, was headed by a number of mounted police, followed by the police band, under Captain Bentley. As the naval reserve men swung into the city's main street the cry went up, "Here's the navy," and cheers ran along the street like flames in dry grass. Hats, handkerchiefs, and flags were waved, and many a window held a complement of pretty faces smiling at the men in blue.

The march could not be called a strict parade. The soldiers for the most part marched in an easy fashion, with friends clinging to their arms, decorating their rifle barrels with flags, or their hats with laurel wreaths.

The naval reserves, under Commander Lambton and Lieutenant-Commander Bracegirdle, took themselves more seriously. They marched well and smartly, and looked very fit, and thoroughly deserved the cheers they were greeted with as soon as they came in sight.

A crowd had collected at the junction of Park and George streets, but it was not until the men swung round into Elizabeth-street that the best picture was obtained. The wide thoroughfare, the grassy slope of Hyde Park, packed with school girls, waving Union Jacks, and thousands of men and women beneath the shade of the big fig trees, made a moving scene of colour, which those who witnessed it are not likely to forget easily.

No sooner had the Naval Reserve men arrived in Elizabeth-street than they were halted, and then reformed two-deep on the eastern side of the road, facing inwards, their officers to the front. The long line of khaki-clad troops had also been brought to a halt at the intersection of Park and Elizabeth streets. Once the Naval men had dressed, Major Heritage, who was in command of the whole parade, gave the order, "Battalion, eyes left. Salute the Navy." The Naval Brigade came to the slope, and their comrades-in-arms continued their march to the Barracks, each unit as it passed the "boys in blue" cheering them lustily. The crowd of civilians did not know the reason for the military indulging in cheers, but the example was contagious, and, as a consequence, there was one continual roar until even the ambulance waggon and waggons containing the men's kit had been lost to sight round the bend into Liverpool-street.

This was the end of the formal march as far as the Naval Reserve men were concerned. Here they parted company with their khaki-clad mates, and returned to the E. and A. Company's wharf at Circular Quay to pick up their kits and be dismissed. The military section of the parade continued along Oxford-street to the Victoria Barracks. The men took things easily, chatting freely, and now and then singing to the airs rendered by the Police Band. Oxford-street was gay with flags, and almost every verandah top held a contingent of cheering and waving men, women, and children. Men in the ranks were recognised and addressed by name by those in the roadway and on the footpaths. "There's Bill!" someone would exclaim, and half a dozen of the returned warriors whose Christian name happened to be William would glance eagerly towards where the voice came from, in the hope of being the particular Bill referred to. One plucky little woman with a baby in her arms did the whole route march by her husband's side, and as the men neared the barrack gates the crowd closed in on each side until hardly anything could be seen in the centre of the road save the line of shining steel blades above the rifle muzzles.

Once inside the barrack gates the troops were paraded and inspected and handed over their arms and kits. Lunch was provided for all, and after the meal they were again paraded and given an advance of pay before being dismissed.

THE RABAUL MEN'S MARCH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Like thousands more, I turned out to welcome the men from Rabaul. Instead of being inspired by the parade, I am afraid many people were depressed. The organisers were in fault in not having a band to lead the khaki column, which often straggled, especially near the end. Tram cars should be kept away from the streets paraded, as in every other city. The tramway authorities have evidently not an inkling of the correct thing to do. Standing, as I did, amongst dozens of school children, presumably let out of school to have their youthful imagination fired by the parade, I was distressed, on their account, at seeing a few of the soldiers so far forgetting discipline as to be drinking beer out of bottles, evidently handed to them by "friends." Why the officers or N.C.O.'s didn't knock the bottles out of the delinquents' hands beats me.

I am, etc., OLD SOLDIER.

TRANSPORT ASHORE.

IN NO DANGER.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Information has been received that Transport A46, which left Brisbane with the Island troops, went ashore on the North Australian coast on the 18th. The weather is fine, and the vessel is in a sheltered position.

The master has reported that the vessel is not now making water, and he expected to get off on the next tide.

There is no danger of loss of life or of property.

At noon to-day (Friday) the transport A 48 was still aground. The ship was being lightened, and the tide was making, so that it is hoped news will soon be received that she is afloat.

THE REFERENDUMS.

POSTPONEMENT POSSIBLE.

PARTY TRUCE PROSPECTS.

May next has been given out by Federal Ministers as the time when the referendum proposals are to be again submitted to the electors. There is, however, a prevalent opinion in Labour circles in New South Wales that the proposals will, in view of the acute war position, be indefinitely postponed.

A feeling is general that, with vital national issues hanging possibly in the balance in Europe, it would be unwise to plunge the Commonwealth into a controversy that, on the occasion of the two previous referendum campaigns, engendered no small heat and party strife. The truce made between the State political parties is operative till May 1, and whether it is renewed will depend upon the war situation.

At the recent A.W.U. conference a discussion took place on a suggestion that the referendum proposal ought to be postponed, the idea meeting with strong and representative support. No decision, however, was come to, it being held that it was not the function of the A.W.U. to attempt to dictate on such a matter to the Commonwealth Government. It was thought that the matter might well be left to the discretion of the Federal Ministers. If the Cabinet does decide to postpone the re-launching of the referendums, it will certainly give the forthcoming P.L.L. conference less work to do. It opens on April 3, and one of the principal features of the gathering is expected to be an address by the State Premier, Mr. Holman. If the referendums are to be adjourned, Mr. Holman's speech will relate more particularly to matters of State moment from the Labour standpoint.

WHITE FEATHER.

A STUPID INSULT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Defence stated this afternoon that two of the permanent officers of the Commonwealth military forces, both of whom occupy high positions in the Defence Department, have had sent to them through the post envelopes containing a white feather. The feathers were enclosed in square, opaque envelopes, and the addresses were printed in rude, uneven lettering in order to ensure the perfect disguise of the sender's handwriting.

Referring to the matter, the Minister said:—"The whole of the members of the permanent forces are available for duty with the Australian Imperial forces, but there are duties in Australia which require that many of them must be kept here. Naturally, officers who have received these contemptible communications are much hurt, and feel indignant, and others are apprehensive of similar treatment. Both officers have made applications to go, but I have had to refuse them."

THEATRE VENTURE.

A STEWARD'S LOSS

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In December last year the chief steward of the steamer Allinga, Frank James Dalton, made the acquaintance of two men, who induced him to invest £300 in a proposed vaudeville theatre at Manly (Sydney). The money was deposited in a bank in Sydney, and shortly afterwards the two men disappeared. Inquiries at the bank revealed the fact that the money had gone, too.

To-day Detectives Coonan, Holden, and Olholm arrested Robert Bennett, 39, agent, and Angus Murray, 33, the company promoter, and charged them with having conspired to defraud Dalton of the money.

SHEFFIELD SHIELD.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA V. VICTORIA.

HOME SIDE COLLAPSE.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

The last Sheffield Shield interstate cricket match of the season between Victoria and South Australia was started on Adelaide Oval on Friday in hot but pleasant weather. There was a moderate attendance. Price was dropped from the local team, and Willis from the visitors, while G. C. Campbell, one of the most popular players here, acted as captain of South Australia, in place of E. R. Mayne. Slight rain had fallen on the previous evening, and the wicket was tricky, especially at one end, but played better as the game progressed.

The only men to reach double figures in the score of 143 were Pellew (12), Willsmore (23), Campbell (32), and Stirling (42). The best batting display came from the two last mentioned, who put on 83 for the fifth wicket in good style. The Victorians' fielding was not particularly good. Ironmonger started bowling well, and got four for 15, but was punished towards the end, especially on the leg, and finished with four for 41.

Park and Ryder opened the innings of Victoria, and when stumps were drawn at 6 p.m. they were still at the creases, and the total was 114. It was an interesting exhibition of batting. Despite the fact that the visitors never forced the pace at all, but were, on the contrary, extremely careful, realising that a good win only would secure the Sheffield Shield. Park, alert and active, making up by agility and good footwork what he lacked in height and reach, and the long-limbed Ryder, who has developed remarkably this season as a batsman, were vigorous enough at everything loose. Ryder hit up 50 in 80 minutes, while Park took 110 minutes to reach the same total, and it was Ryder who, with a fine leg hit off Willsmore, brought the century up within 100 minutes. Towards the end, however, Park livened up considerably, and when stumps were drawn the little man was 51 not out, and Ryder 59. Despite the visitors' big score the bowling was not bad.

WHEAT FOR TASMANIA.

LAUNCESTON, Friday.

The Premier (Mr. John Earle) has contracted to purchase through Dreyfus and Co., wheat agents, from the Argentine between 6000 and 7000 tons of wheat, to arrive at Hobart at the end of April. The price landed will be 8/3 a bushel, and the Premier has arranged to sell to the Tasmanian millers at 8/ a bushel on condition that they supply bakers with flour at not more than £17 a ton. The bakers are to undertake that while they get flour at this price they are not to charge more than 4½d per 2lb loaf.

The Premier is also negotiating with Canada for the purchase of a similar quantity of wheat.

LAW SUIT PENDING.

BERRIGAN, Friday.

Thomas J. O'Dwyer, farmer, has been served with a writ by the New South Wales Government, claiming £759 for debt in respect to the quantity of wheat delivered by him at Cobram, in contravention of the Act passed by the Legislature forbidding wheat to leave the State.

The wheat in question is still lying at Cobram, and was delivered in fulfilment of a contract entered into prior to the passing of the Act. It is understood Mr. O'Dwyer will defend the action.

MAN'S STRANGE ACT.

"I'LL SHOOT YOU."

A man fired a revolver last night at Mrs. Joesekke, who resides at 102 Windsor-street, Paddington.

About 10 p.m. the assailant entered Mrs. Joesekke's residence, and, calling out, "I will shoot you dead," fired a revolver at her. The shot just missed her arm, and lodged in the door behind. The man then left the house, and, getting into a sulky which had been left standing at the door by one of the inmates in charge of a little boy, drove away.

STORM SCENE AT BROKEN HILL.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

Broken Hill was visited to-day by a series of storms. The break in the weather started last night, when a couple of showers fell as a result of a thunderstorm. Another dry thunderstorm occurred this morning, and prepared the atmosphere for a phenomenal duststorm at about 2 o'clock. For a time the city was in darkness. Rain fell during the storm, and mud spots descended. Other thunderstorms followed, but the rain was very spasmodic. The storm at times was very beautiful, and the whole city watched its progress. The weather is cooler.

LADY VOLUNTEERS.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

Miss Graham, late of Wollongong, has, as a result of the recent examination, been appointed first-aid volunteers to the Newtown Ladies' Volunteer Corps.

PORT ADELAIDE.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

The R.M.S. Osterley, which left for England to-day, is the first steamer of the Orient line to call at Port Adelaide since Christmas Day, the regular service of this line being interrupted by the war.

NORTHCOTE CUP.

KILLARA'S SPLENDID WIN.

FIRST RACE OF SERIES.

Killara, representing the St. Kilda Yacht Club of Victoria, defeated the local yacht Rawhiti II. yesterday in the first of the series of interstate yacht races for the honour of holding, until next season, the Northcote Cup. Killara won by a margin of three minutes 21 seconds, after a splendid race, sailed in a hard north-east blow, the element of luck being entirely absent.

The Victorian boat was one of last year's competitors, when her luck was decidedly bad. This year a new hollow mast was brought to Sydney by her owner, as well as a solid stick. The former has been used in her tuning up during the past week, and was apparently acting beautifully. Yesterday morning, however, it was decided to have a final trial spin before the race, and when a short distance from the moorings she met with what proved to be a fortunate accident, the hollow mast carrying away. This would most probably have occurred during the race, had the mast stood the morning test, as the breeze freshened considerably. The boat was towed to Careening Cove, where the solid mast was stepped, and the rigging set up anew. On picking up the moorings shortly afterwards, the line attached carried away, but fortune favoured Killara, as Mr. J. A. Muston's auxiliary yacht Viking was handy, and secured her when almost ashore. Everything connected with the gear was again thoroughly overhauled, and the conclusion arrived that no more accidents could occur, and that a good account would be given of her qualities. Only one other accident occurred—the breaking in halves of the spinnaker boom on the first run down wind, but the two parts were lashed together, and the boom was used when again off the wind.

The rival yachts went to the starting line reefed right down. Killara carrying a small jib and second mainsail, and Rawhiti having a jib rather large for her reefed mainsail. Both boats were well received by the spectators on board the Woollahra, and numerous sailing and power craft in the vicinity of the starting line. Rawhiti's admirers were many, but not a few of the local yachtsmen, remembering Killara's magnificent performance of twelve months ago, expressed the opinion that the Victorian craft would this year turn the tables on Rawhiti, and the result proved the correctness of their judgment.

The race was sailed over a triangular course, starting from Taylor Bay round a mark off Shark Island, thence round the Pile light off Watson's Bay and back to and round the flag mark, which formed one end of the starting line, leaving the rounding marks on the port hand. This course was covered four times, the first and second rounds producing exciting racing, but in the third Killara improved her lead, and on the fourth considerably increased the gap. It was a contest well worth witnessing, and each skipper handled his craft creditably. The Rawhiti's crew were more successful with their extras, but the Killara's were placed at a disadvantage in connection with the spinnaker boom.

The steamer Woollahra, under charter to the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron, carried a large number of enthusiasts, and was in charge of Mr. Alfred G. Milson, who had with him Messrs. Walter Reeks, J. A. Ross, and W. J. Creagh (sailing committee). The vice-commodore, Mr. Arthur J. Milson, and Mr. E. Hungerford acted as starters and timekeepers. Among the fleet cruising about were Savonara (Mr. Paul Ross), Viking (Mr. J. A. Muston), Revonah (Mr. F. Albert), Bronzewing (Mr. L. Herdern), Jam Satis (Mr. C. Trebeck).

THE RACE.

As the five minutes' warning gun was fired, both yachts were close to the line. Rawhiti ran down to the line too soon, and had to haul a wind which cost her 13 seconds, as Killara's skipper judged the time more accurately. Rawhiti, thus astern at the start, did not obtain the lead during any part of the race, although she seriously challenged the visitor on several occasions, and was almost on level terms.

The first side of the triangle was a free reach, and at the rounding mark only 10 seconds divided the boats. Hauling a wind for the thrash to Pile light, it was soon evident that Killara's skipper had determined to adopt the same tactics as the local skipper, who made a series of short boards along the eastern shore. This decision of the visiting skipper was wise as it prevented his losing any advantage which may be derived from knowledge of local conditions. Rawhiti's weight and displacement made her very much superior in stays to Killara, but the latter was very quick in gathering way once she was about. The short boards were thus a distinct advantage to the green boat (Rawhiti), but even with that advantage she failed to make impression on the white craft on the journey to the Pile light, where quite a lump of a sea was experienced.

Sheets were eased at the Pile light by Killara 39 seconds ahead of Rawhiti. Killara had completed almost half the run down wind to Taylor Bay before attempting to send a spinnaker aloft, and then the boom being broken, she had very little use of the extra, and had the additional handicap of a man working forward for some time. Rawhiti's crew were smart with their spinnaker, which was drawing beautifully shortly after rounding, and enabled her to regain 34 seconds. Jibing at the Taylor Bay mark, the times taken were: Killara 3-36-37, Rawhiti 3-36-42, a little over 36 minutes from the start for the completion of the triangle.

On the second trip to Shark Island the Killara gained another 5 seconds. The second beat to windward was full of interest. The Victorian, pointing higher than the local boat, again increased her advantage, although staying badly; in fact, twice off Shark Beach she was almost in irons. For the second run from the pilelight Killara had her spinnaker drawing early, but on account of the damaged boom could not set it as square as Rawhiti's extra, and the latter picked up some of the lost time, the rounding times at Taylor Bay being: Killara, 4h 13m 38s; Rawhiti, 4h 14m.

The third free reach was in favour of the white yacht, which also did much better by longer boards on the work to windward, Mr. Douglas, her skipper, doing very much better in tacking ship when sailing his course independent of the tactics of his opponent. Except for the chance of accidents, the race was now practically over. After jibing at Taylor Bay for the last reach to Shark Island, Mr. Sayer sent a balloon jib aloft, but did not stow his working jib, and gained no advantage. On the last beat to windward both skippers indulged in long tacks, and both stood further out into midstream than was advisable.

The finishing times were:—Killara, 5h 25m 9s; Rawhiti, 5h 28m 30s, which gave the victory to the Melbourne boat by 3 minutes 21 seconds. The winning skipper and crew were heartily cheered as the yacht crossed the finishing line.

For to-day's race two courses have been provided so as to ensure a beat to windward and a run-down wind, and are as follows:—

"B."—To be sailed in all winds except easterly, south-easterly, westerly, or north-westerly winds. Starting from a line between starter's boat and mark boat due east of Clark Island, thence round mark boat off Flagstaff Point, leaving it on the starboard hand, and back to mark boat off Clark Island, leaving it also on the starboard hand (flag mark off Sow and Pigs to be left on the starboard hand on outward course and on the port hand returning), twice round in all, finishing between mark boat off Clark Island and starter's boat.

"C."—To be sailed in easterly, south-easterly, westerly, or north-westerly winds. Starting from a line between starter's boat and mark boat off club-house in Neutral Bay, thence round mark boat about midway between Point Piper and Shark Island, and back to mark boat off club-house. Three times round in all, finishing between starter's boat and mark boat in Neutral Bay. All rounding marks to be left on the starboard hand.

The course selected by the sailing committee will be indicated by the flag "B" or "C" displayed in the starter's boat, and at the yard-arm of the flagstaff at club-house. Should Killara be again successful to-day the cup will go to Melbourne, but in the event of Rawhiti showing her the way home a third and deciding race will be called on Monday.

DEED OF SETTLEMENT.

HOBART, Friday.

Before Mr. Justice Isaacs in the High Court the case in which Elsie Linderstam was cited as plaintiff and Nathaniel Benjamin Barrett, William Alfred Cane, Mary Gwendolin Johnson, Cyril Dalgleish Johnson, and Bruce Carlyle Johnson as defendants, was concluded. The evidence showed that Mrs. Linderstam, formerly Mrs. Johnson, inherited property from her father, and to ensure her children's future she made a settlement of the property for her children's benefit, the terms being that she should enjoy the use of the property during her lifetime. Later the property was sold. Plaintiff had an annual income derived from the property. Plaintiff married again in Western Australia, and now asked that the deed of settlement be cancelled.

Mr. Justice Isaacs gave a verdict for defendants.

SEPEKE RIVER.

AUSTRALIAN EXPLORATION.

WAR BOATS SURVEY.

After the occupation of German New Guinea by the Australian Expeditionary Force and the clearing of the waters in that part of the world by the ships of the Australian navy, the destroyers were employed in patrol work and visiting outposts.

According to the story told by one of those on board these handy little craft, the principal work done by the boats was the exploration of Sepeke, or, as it is more commonly known in New Guinea, Kaiserin Augusta River. It had been rumoured that there was a large force of Germans, strongly entrenched and supported by guns taken from the German gunboat Cormorant, at a place well up the river called Angoram. The authorities ordered the boats to go up the river and investigate. The idea of there being a big force at or near Angoram was ridiculed by the prefect of the Roman Catholic mission at Alexishaven. So certain was he that no force of Germans was up the river that he offered to go with the expedition himself. His offer was accepted, and he was accommodated on one of the destroyers. The boats returned in a few days with those on board satisfied that the rumour had been a false one. A few native policemen were all the enemy force seen during the trip.

There being no enemy or enemy ships to worry about, the senior naval officer determined to employ the time by carrying out a survey of the river, as this vast waterway promised to be well worth the trouble of examining. Little has hitherto been known of the Sepeke, as the only German charts of it available were of a scanty nature, and then only dealt with the first 500 miles from the mouth, in spite of the fact that it is navigable for 1200 miles. For the purpose of this survey two of the destroyers, with a German prize steamer for use in the higher waters, where shallows were expected, proceeded upstream, while a third destroyer stayed in the lower reaches. For the first 500 miles the Sepeke varies in width from one to half a mile, but never less than this, with a depth of from six to fifteen fathoms. Occasional shoals were met with, but as there is soft bottom all the way, there is no danger should a boat run aground.

Dealing with the scenery, the naval man said that for several hundred miles it was flat and monotonous in the extreme. Beyond this high mountain ranges could be seen, with rich flats stretching to their base. The further up the river the explorers pushed it was noticed that the architecture of the native houses deteriorated. Near the mouth of the river there were good kanaka houses, but further from the coast they dwindled from beehive huts till in the higher reaches the natives did without any kind of habitation, sleeping either on the ground or in the trees. The population led a nomadic existence, merely moving from one sago patch to another, and were of a very low order in the scale of humanity. From Angoram, 60 miles from the river mouth, to its source the natives were canibals to a man, and their only apparent form of amusement was head hunting when house building. In other words, when it became necessary to erect a house the owners, architects, and contractors went off on a head-hunting expedition to secure sufficient heads to ensure one being placed under each pile in the frame of the building.

This river would prove a naturalist's paradise, for everywhere across its waters and in the country on each side of the stream gorgeous plumaged birds were to be noticed in great numbers, while butterflies of wonderful hues and immense size and beauty flitted about among the trees and bush.

After this survey the destroyers paid visits to several islands in the Pacific, and weathered a couple of cyclones. In one of these the barometer dropped to 28.80, probably a record for these waters, and life on board was a misery for everyone.

BRIDGE-BUILDERS.

CORPS FOR THE FRONT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister of Defence announced to-day that the War Office had accepted an offer of the Commonwealth to despatch a bridging train of naval reserve men accustomed to bridge-building.

Our men will go right to the front and assist in bridging rivers in the path of the Allies. Their war material will consist of 412 horses, 42 pontoons, and 16 trellises for making approaches to bridges.

Captain Gordon Smith, of the Naval Board, said the establishment of a bridging train consists of one major, one captain, three subalterns, 11 sergeants, 11 artificers, two trumpeters, nine corporals, ten second corporals, 18 sappers, 217 drivers, and others, one medical officer, one veterinary officer, making 285, to which are attached 26 as the first reinforcement, total 311. With these are sent 410 horses and 58 vehicles, also pontoons and various materials for bridge building. The reason for employing sailors in this manner is that there is a considerable number of men now in Australia who have seafaring experience, which it is desired to utilise in the war, and who have already knowledge of boat and anchor work, knotting, and splicing. The naval authorities, after consulting with the military, therefore decided to offer the services of the naval reserves in this form.

Men and officers will be recruited from the ranks of the Royal Australian Naval Reserve, as far as possible, and failing these, those with seafaring experience will be accepted. It is not proposed to utilise the services of the active service ratings of the fleet. All men who wish to be considered should apply to the respective district naval officers. The force when selected will be assembled probably at Melbourne for equipment and training by the military authorities. Naval ranks corresponding to those set out in the establishment will be retained, but otherwise this unit will be under the orders of the military.

GERMAN MONEY.

USE IN THE PACIFIC.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Colonel Pethebridge, who is acting as Administrator of the islands in the North-western Pacific, captured from Germany, is in constant touch with the Federal Treasury with regard to the financial part of his administration. There has been some considerable difficulty with regard to the value to be put upon the German silver and the German bank notes which are still current in these islands. In connection with this matter Colonel Pethebridge has been instructed by the Treasury to ascertain from time to time from the Federal Treasurer what values he is to determine. It appears that there was an entire absence of gold coin for the islands, the only currency being silver and German imperial paper money.

FIRES.

OUTBREAK AT A FARM.

MOLONG, Friday.

A fire at Mr. S. Rubie's farm, Garra, destroyed 25 tons of hay, 9 tons of chaff, a large new shed and part of a chaffcutting plant. The damage is estimated at £270, and is not covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

An outbreak of fire occurred this morning in a weatherboard cottage occupied by Mrs. Jenkins, of Garden Hill. The building and contents were completely destroyed. Mr. La Petit, Mrs. Jenkins' son, was awakened about 2.30 a.m. by hearing his mother screaming. He discovered one of the partitions to be on fire. The fire brigade could do nothing, as the fire had obtained too great a hold. The cottage was the property of Mr. Robert Gilmore, and was not insured. The furniture was insured for £50.

EAST GRETA RAILWAY EMPLOYEES.

The general secretary of the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Service Association (Mr. Claude Thompson) has returned from Newcastle, whence he went for the purpose of attending a conference between the employees of the East Greta Railway and the East Greta Coal Mining Company. The industrial agreement under which the railway employees were working having expired, claims were lodged for increased wages and better conditions. These claims were held up owing to the war. Subsequently the directors decided to meet the employees in conference, which they did at the company's office, Bond-street, Newcastle. However, after a formal discussion lasting several hours, the conference broke up without accomplishing anything, owing to the attitude of the company. The East Greta branch of the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Association will consider the advisableness of citing a case for a wages board.

BRITAIN'S FOE.

LONG AND HARD STRUGGLE.

SPEECH BY MR. GRIFFITH.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Arthur Griffith) yesterday officially opened the miniature range of the Public Works Department Rifle Club in the basement of the Public Works Department building. Major Buchanan and Lieutenant Dakin, Messrs. Davis (Director-General of Public Works), Percy Allan (Assistant Director), Brain (Chief Electrical Engineer for Railways), and other departmental heads were present, and a band, under the conductorship of Mr. D. Flynn, attended.

Mr. Griffith said the enthusiasm that had been manifested in the movement was typical of that splendid spirit of patriotism that was sweeping over all ranks and classes in this country, and an indication that all were willing to do their duty to themselves and their country by fitting themselves for service. There was much to be done, and while all could not go to the front, the men from the rifle clubs they were now forming would fill up gaps in the ranks of those who were fighting for the integrity of the Empire, and many calls would be made before this tremendous struggle was settled. They were only now beginning to realise the enormous consequences of the struggle. In the early part of the war people were apt to talk disparagingly of the Germans, and on all hands predictions had been made that the war would be over in a few months. It was now coming home to them that they were engaged in a life and death struggle against the most magnificently organised fighting machine, and that if they failed to achieve victory the result would be dismemberment of the Empire. On their part the fight was in the interests of freedom and democracy. An attempt was being made by Germany to destroy modern democracy, and put in its place the iron rule of a military class. Britain was fighting for a great principle. The rifle club movement was a proof that they realised their duties to the Empire, and were determined to perform them in order to keep waving the grand old flag that meant so much for the freedom and development of the world. (Applause.)

Major Buchanan congratulated the club on the successful results that had been obtained. He emphasised the value of learning how to shoot, especially under service conditions. The rifle club movement was progressing by leaps and bounds, and he was now able to supply instructors for 10,000 trainees.

Cheers were given for the King and Empire and for the Minister, great enthusiasm prevailing.

GENERAL BIRDWOOD.

"I THINK HE'S FINE."

AUSTRALIAN OFFICER'S NOVEL EXPERIENCE.

Following is an extract from a letter from a Sydney officer now in Egypt:—

"Excellent work has been done in the short time we have been in Egypt. Sometimes I feel rather — sceptical, might I say, about the chances of the A.I.F. going to Europe. I know nothing, of course! Just keep in mind, though, that part of the world called Syria, quite close to Egypt: Turkish troops guard it at present, but will England miss this opportunity of adding such fine territory to the Empire, and of crushing the Turks, when everything is ready close at hand? Personally, I am not averse to doing the Crusader act; I hate the Turks worse than the Germans a good deal. The army corps consisting of the Australians and New Zealanders has been placed under the command of an Indian General, one of 'Kitchener's Men,' Sir William Birdwood, C.B., etc. Well, curiously enough, I had the special honour of making the acquaintance of this distinguished soldier in the most amusing way possible. The funny part is that I have only seen two Generals before in my life; so to converse tete-a-tete, with the G.O.C. Colonial Army Corps as I did, was rather novel. It was this way. I went to Cairo one day last week, did some shopping, for myself and others, had a badly-needed hair cut, bath, etc., and went to Shepheard's about 8 p.m. to dinner. Afterwards I went into the smoking-room to read the British papers. I was reading away, rather interested, when someboy near me 'chipped up,' as the saying goes. I turned round and saw a little fellow in evening dress. He had rather knowing grey eyes, and was rather a cute-looking person, now that I come to think. He seemed politely interested in the A.I.F., asked me where I came from, how long I had been soldiering, what battalion I was with, and so on; seemed to know a little about military work, and remarked that we were very fortunate to be able to train in Egypt, instead of Salisbury Plain, as the weather in England was most inclement at this time of the year. I warmed to the subject, told him my opinions of the conditions of war at the present day, and my impressions of the different troops we had seen. He had rather a knack of inviting confidence. I told him that, in my opinion, the Australians would soon give a good account of themselves, and settle down to the new conditions. I also told him that I considered that a letter sent to officers and N.C.O.'s of the A.I.F. by the new G.O.C., Sir William Birdwood, was a very fine one, and that one and all would profit by his advice and counsels. He said, 'I'm very glad you liked it; I'm General Birdwood!'

"I find I have more control of my feelings than I thought. I only went a little red, and murmured, 'Really, sir, I didn't recognise you.'—'Oh, no,' said he, 'a helmet makes a big difference, doesn't it?'

"He talked on just the same, gave me a lot of little tips about platoon and company training, and told me what he was arranging in the way of instruction for officers and amusement for men. I think he's fine. He's very gentle and very nice, very understanding, and so on, but he means to make the force a top-notch one, and won't stand any tomfooling. He wished me good-night at last, and told me he hoped he'd see me on the training-ground. I said I hoped so, too! I felt like asking him if he had a vacancy on his staff—

"I mentioned my experience to a couple of our fellows when I got back; it got round the mess very quickly, and I was 'stung' next day for feloniously hobnobbing with generals. It was worth it, anyhow."

THE AIRMEN.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

In the course of a letter received in Wollongong from a Wollongong lady now in an English coastal town, she says:—"I think the air war is one of the worst, as it affects civilians so much, and one always feels it is hardly safe to be out of doors very much, especially in fine weather. We saw two men get out of a seaplane a few days back. After flying for some time, and notwithstanding their warm clothing, they were just purple with cold. They say it is freezing in the clouds. They wore leather clothes, lined with fur, and yet they felt the cold. There is no doubt we have men in our midst. There is quite a large corps of them here, and a number of machines."

COLD STORAGE.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

A conference is being held between the Prime Minister (Mr. Massey) and representatives of the shipping and freezing companies and the Board of Agriculture, regarding the difficulties associated with the scarcity of refrigerated shipping facilities. It is reported that good progress was made towards a solution of the problem. The conference carried a resolution thanking Mr. Massey and the Government for the good work done on behalf of the producers in arranging for shipping facilities at a time when it would have been almost impossible for the freezing companies or producers to bring ships to New Zealand.

RESULT OF A SQUALL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

During a sudden squall on February 7 the Australian Steamship, Ltd., tug Alacrity attempted to pass the steamship Elsac, 4930 tons, in the Yarra River. Failing to make the passage the Alacrity crashed into a ferry boat of the Williamstown Council, damaging the wharf and the ferry boat.

To-day Judge Eagleson awarded the council £473 damages, with costs.

PATRIOTIC FUNDS.

RED CROSS.

Her Excellency Lady Helen Munro Ferguson has forwarded to the Red Cross Society the following cable received from the High Commissioner:—"With reference to your telegram of February 16, British Red Cross most grateful for generous gifts Masonic Club, New South Wales Club, and Lloyd Jones family."

SEWING GUILD.

In connection with the Sewing Guild at the Town Hall it is stated that more garments are urgently required in the hospitals. The executive appeals for more sewers.

Y.M.C.A. FIELD SERVICE FUND.

There is an increasing response to the appeal for further funds to carry on the work in the Liverpool camp and in Egypt. Clergyman writing in appreciation of the work the Sydney Y.M.C.A. is doing in the Mena camp, says: "The Y.M.C.A. has a grand opportunity, and is rising to it grandly."

Friends and relatives of soldiers who desire to make thank offerings for this work should send their donations to the general secretary, Y.M.C.A., 327 Pitt-street. This field service work is absolutely dependent upon voluntary contributions. It is not subsidised in any way, and the Y.M.C.A. itself has no funds available for this work apart from what is given to it by the public.

The following contributions are acknowledged:—Amount previously acknowledged, £897/14/11; Sir James R. Fairfax (further donation), £10; Mr. F. Whysall, £1/1/; Sir Henry Stephen, £1/1/; Mr. John Mars, 10/6; Trooper, Liverpool Camp, £5; Miss M. P. Johnson, £1/5/; Mrs. Walter Friend, £5; Mr. A. G. Henderson, 10/; "J. T. W. D.," £2. At the last meeting of the Local Government Association of New South Wales, it was decided that the whole of the municipal councils of the State be asked to join a conference to consider the best means of securing for Great Britain and her colonies the trade in Australia, which, up to the present, has been in the hands of Germany and Austria.

MARRICKVILLE RIFLE CLUB.

Last night a well-attended meeting was held in the Marrickville Lyceum. The Mayor (Alderman B. Richards) presided. Others present were:—Messrs. W. E. Johnson, M.P., T. Crawford, M.L.A., and T. Hoskins, M.L.A., and several local aldermen.

Mr. W. E. Johnson, M.P., moved that the meeting expresses its loyalty to the King and Empire. Mr. Tanner seconded the motion, which was carried by acclamation. Colonel Wallach, State Commandant, said that there was real hard work before the Empire, but it would be carried through with the usual British determination. Their German foes were fighting for national existence; either they would go down or the Allies would go down. A voice in the hall, "Never."

Colonel Wallach: I am glad to hear you say so. (Applause.) The time had arrived when all the men of Australia have to do their part. Marrickville has a population of 40,000, and should be able to form a club second to none. All these newly-formed rifle clubs are greatly increasing the defensive and offensive resources of the State. If more men are called for, he would have something good to fall back upon.

When once the dogs of war are loosed, one cannot tell where they will wander. We want to raise a reserve of trained men who will know what to do when they get rifles in their hands.

In Sydney alone 6000 men have come forward to help. This involves a certain amount of self-sacrifice. Surely their Empire and country was worth that. (Hear, hear.) There is one little trouble—the shortage of rifles. The Lithgow factory, however, was working hard and turning out rifles rapidly.

Mr. W. E. Johnson: What about miniature ranges?

Colonel Wallach: I am glad you mentioned that. It is a most important adjunct, as the man who can shoot well there can do still better at the official range. A man of 50, 55, or even 60 should join a club. He had often found that the old dogs are good for a hard road, and that the older men withstand the attacks of enteric fever better than the younger ones. He did not say this to discourage the juniors, but to stimulate their elders.

Mr. T. S. Crawford, M.L.A., proposed that a rifle club be formed in Marrickville. The motion was carried, and a large number enrolled at the end of the meeting.

ORAMA CHASES A CRUISER.

GERMAN REFUSES TO FIGHT.

Recent English files contain an account of the refusal of a German cruiser to accept a challenge from the well-known Orient liner Orama.

The incident occurred off the Brazilian coast. The Orama, which is now fitted as an armed auxiliary cruiser, was about to enter Rio Janeiro Harbour, when a Hamburg-American liner, which had been transformed into a German cruiser, was met leaving the harbour.

The two vessels sighted each other in territorial waters, and, in order not to effect any breach of neutrality, the Orama made as if to run away from the enemy, so as to attack her outside the three-mile limit.

There a challenge was given the German, but the latter was afraid to fight, and, turning tail, put back into Rio Harbour, where the vessel was eventualyl interned by the Brazilian authorities. The crew of the Orama had the satisfaction of seeing their enemy virtual prisoners.

THE SHIP'S DOG.

Most regiments and many warships boast of their pets or their mascots, and one of the Australian warships has a little black pet of which the men are particularly proud. He answers to the name of Kabbi. He may have been designed by nature for a black terrier, but developed into something larger.

The vessel was lying 200 yards off a place called Kabakaul when Kabbi arrived alongside, having swum off from the shore. He was hauled up on deck, and promptly made himself at home.

Kabbi proved as keen on the water as Kahanamoku, and one night when the ship was proceeding up a big river Kabbi dived overboard and swam to the shore. Those on board never expected to see the dog again, but as another vessel was coming down the river a fortnight later, 40 miles away from where Kabbi dived overboard, he was discovered in the bush, fat and contented. He was taken on board the boat, and when she is in Sydney and no shore boat is handy Kabbi will go over the side and swim to the shore, where, after a stroll, he will board the Watson's Bay ferry steamer, knowing full well that if he lands on Garden Island he will not be far from his vessel, and can hop into the first boat going off to her.

THE WAR.

LETTERS AND PAPERS FOR TROOPS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I notice in the "Herald" of this date a letter signed "Ex-Non-Com." I, with many others, feel disgusted at such a state of affairs. Perhaps our postal officials have not yet realised that, if the public had been informed through the press that 2d postage is required, this state of things would not have occurred. I would also mention that I have received several letters from my son at the front in Egypt. He complains bitterly at not having received a single letter since leaving the State. Our first letters were sent to England as directed. But after the announcement in the "Herald" some months ago we addressed to Egypt according to instructions. I would suggest that the military authorities make some arrangements for letters, etc., to be received and delivered to our boys; they, I feel sure, would do all in their power to assist their comrades who are away. Wee see and hear a lot about patriotism, etc., in our papers and at public gatherings, and there it seems to end. Once the men are got out of the country the book is closed. This kind of treatment will not tend to send others on to the front. I am, etc.,

"PAPERS FOR OUR MEN IN EGYPT."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—for the past three months I have been sending two papers weekly to a member of the forces in Egypt. It may interest "An Ex Non-com" and others to know that during this week I received a letter from him dated January 7, 1915, of which the following is an extract: "As for newspapers, they simply won't let them come through, on the plea that they would make the mail too cumbersome and awkward to handle, so I would advise you to discontinue sending them, much as I would like a Sydney paper just to see how things are going in the old city." In my case, I have been paying postage at the rate of 4oz for 1d, which I understand is the correct amount.

I am, etc., R.C.N.

Feb. 19.

"POLAND AND THE ALLIES."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The appeal of your correspondent "A Slav" on behalf of distressed Poles, and the sympathetic attitude of the press generally towards this brave and struggling race, has emboldened one to hope that some movement may yet be initiated for their relief. To the casual observer, Poland's share in this great struggle is but an incident—to the Poles themselves it is the supreme crisis in their country's history. For Poland, the present war is fraught with tremendous issues, and if, so far, there has not been the glory of achievement which has stirred the imagination and quickened the pulse of Belgium's admirers throughout the world, she at least is at one with that gallant little kingdom in her record of heroic suffering and dauntless courage. To Pole and Belgian alike has come the call of a ravaged country, of desolated homes, of outraged women and children, with all the attendant horrors that have become indelibly linked with the name of a hated invader.

I am, etc., F. C. PLATER.

Parramatta, Feb. 18.

THE EMDEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A trophy we should be proud of is now lying at the Cocos Islands. Why not raise a fund, or, better still, the Federal Government send capable men to refloat her, and tow her to Sydney, where we will all be proud to inspect her. I am almost sure that the money derived from inspection will more than cover the expense of bringing her here. England has her "Victory," and other ships of interest, why not Sydney her "Emden?" Where is there a State or country in the world who, with such a young navy, captured such a prize? Surely after all it has cost us in money and lives we will not allow it to stay there. If a fund is started I will contribute to such an object. Hoping some day to see our prize securely anchored in Sydney Harbour. I am, etc.,

Feb. 19. ALBERT H. WARNER.

UNDER FIRE.

SYDNEY MAN AT THE FRONT.

BAYONET CHARGES.

Private E. H. Porter, of the 3rd Bedfordshire Regiment, was born almost opposite Victoria Barracks, in Oxford-street, Paddington. He is now recovering from his wounds in the hospital at Felixstowe, England, and in a letter to his father, Mr. E. G. Porter, of Andrew-street, Little Coogee, he gives the story of what he has been through.

During the course of the letter he states:—"I am back from the front, wounded. I was right through the fighting from the start, at Mons, and through the retirement—184 miles in six days—fighting every inch of the way. Then on to the Marne, La Bassee, Bethune, and Ypres. Here at the latter fight I was wounded. That was on November 29, after three months and 18 days' solid fighting in France and Belgium.

"Now I am in England, but expect to go out again shortly. We went across the Straits 1500 strong, and also received 11 lots of reinforcements of 100 each to my battalion. When I was invalided home we had one officer and 1562 men left, so you can see we have been in the thick of it. I went through eight bayonet charges, and never received a scratch. A young officer and myself went out about 200 yards to bring in a wounded French officer. I carried him all the way to our trench on my back, while my officer carried my rifle and covered my retreat. I am sorry to say that both my own officer and the French officer were killed on the way in, so, of course, my action was not mentioned. Had my officer lived I would have got a decoration.

"I was hit on the head—just a graze from a spent bullet—then got a shrapnel wound on by left hand and another on my right shoulder. I also got the back of my heel blown off, so I have not done so badly, have I?

"I am proud to call myself an Australian, and hope soon to see some of our fellows at the front. They will be sure to make a name for themselves when they do come."

THE GOVERNOR.

A VISIT TO COOMA.

COOMA, Friday.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Gerald Strickland, with Lady Edeline Strickland and family, arrived at Cooma yesterday by train. They proceeded by motor car to Mount Kosciusko, and returned last night. They return to Sydney by to-nights train.

MINE FIELDS.

A DANGEROUS VOYAGE.

FREMANTLE, Friday.

Captain Prip, master of the Danish steamer Indien, which arrived from Copenhagen today, said that when the Indien left the Danish port those on board fully realised the dangers they would have to pass through, because of the fact that the vessel was ordered to call at Newcastle for coal, which necessitated a trip through the mined areas of the North Sea.

Fortunately, the Indien escaped many hidden dangers that lay in her path, but disaster very nearly befel her on arrival off Newcastle. It so happened that during the run down the North Sea the vessel passed within easy distance of Hartlepool, and those on board could distinctly hear the roar of guns from the German warships which were then bombarding that port. Captain Prip, however, saw nothing of the German cruisers. On arrival off Newcastle he found about twenty vessels hung up outside owing to a fierce easterly gale. Two pilots had made an attempt to board the vessels to guide them through the mine fields, but both men were lost in the heavy seas. After that no attempt was made to board the vessels, which were compelled to remain in the offing for three days. None of the vessels were allowed to put lights up of any description, which made it very difficult to avoid collisions. Owing to the presence of mine fields, the exact location of which were unknown to shipmasters, the navigable area was extremely limited. The gale lasted three days. By this time no fewer than 36 vessels were waiting for pilots.

Fortunately, the Indien escaped injury, and after coaling she was able to resume her voyage a couple of days later, a pilot guiding her through the mined areas of the Channel.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

ORANGE, Friday.

A man named Faull, employed at the Orange sewerage works, had a narrow escape from lightning this afternoon. The current appeared to strike a nail in the shoe of the horse he was riding, travelled upward, killing the horse, and striking Faull on the head, necessitating his removal to the hospital. Strangely enough, there had been no lightning before and there was none for hours later.

ABERMAIN MINE.

SINGLE SHIFT ON MONDAY.

KURRI KURRI, Friday.

Abermain No. 2 colliery inaugurates the single shift system on Monday. One hundred and fifty hands are temporarily displaced.

COAL TRADE.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

South Bulli mine has six shifts in for pay ending to-morrow. Employees of this company who received their notice are being paid off to-morrow.

Corrimal colliery has ten shifts in for the current pay. Mount Pleasant mine has to date seven days for the pay, with one more possible. The machinery house at the mine is now nearly complete, as well as the chamber inside for the motor. The tramline to the screens is being duplicated. This haulage is to be done by an endless rope.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The coal exported during the week ended to-day reached 81,359 tons. Although that figure indicates a falling off of 31,000 tons on last week's trade, it is about the average weight of the weekly shipments that have been despatched since the war commenced.

WATER IN BOTANY RESERVE.

At the meeting of the Water and Sewerage Board yesterday the president (Mr. Millner) said the City Coroner had expressed surprise that people were allowed to bathe in the water reserve at Botany, especially as it was used for domestic purposes. The Coroner had been misinformed. The land was fenced in, and there were notices warning trespassers that they would be prosecuted. Further, the water at Botany reserve was not used for drinking purposes at all.

STATE DAIRY.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

In order to ensure an absolutely pure milk supply for Wellington Hospital, the board is considering a proposal to purchase a dairy farm at a cost of about £10,000.

WAR CORRESPONDENT.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

The Government has decided to invite applications for the position of official New Zealand war correspondent, to be despatched to England after approval of his name by the imperial authorities. The Government hopes to have the assistance from journalists in the final selection. It is intended to offer a salary of £400 to £500 a year, with a liberal travelling allowance. Generally, the correspondent's function will be to record the history of the part taken by New Zealand forces in the war.

LATE MR. JOHN RUSSELL.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

The late Mr. John Russell, of Albion Park, died intestate, and his properties will all be submitted at auction.

The value of the estate is estimated at nearly £100,000.

INCREASED PRICES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

It is the intention of the Price of Goods Board to deal firmly with suppliers of food products who increase their prices without first obtaining the consent of the board.

CASTLEREAGH.

PREMIER AT COONAMBLE.

EVE OF ELECTION.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.)

COONAMBLE, Friday.

Coonamble turned out in force to-night to hear the Premier speak at the local picture show's open-air theatre. The meeting was the biggest of the tour, and the Premier, despite a succession of blazing hot days, was in excellent form, and made a great impression on the audience.

Coonamble has been the centre of operations for the Castlereagh fight. It has had many meetings, at which members of both parties have spoken, and, carrying as it does the largest number of votes of any one centre in this very scattered electorate, it has been the scene of vigorous organising work. Mr. Osborne, M.L.A., has had charge of the Labour organisation, and he stated to-day that the place has been well canvassed, and generally is in a good way to return a Labour majority. At the last election Mr. Trefle secured 690 votes, and Mr. Blacket 419, in Coonamble. There has been a considerable reshuffling of the electoral rolls in this portion since then, and this, at the outset, left organisers in a quandary as to the relative numbers of voters. The organisers have, therefore, had a harder row to hoe, and in the past fortnight their efforts to place supporters and opponents in two separate packs have been unceasing. Now, on the eve of the election, notwithstanding the large Labour majority last year, there is a decided feeling of uncertainty among those who ought to know on at least the Labour side. Those who have charge of the organisations expect a closer contest here to-morrow than that of last year. At the last moment doubt as to the result has increased rather than diminished on both sides.

Mr. Holman, who was introduced by the Mayor of Coonamble (Councillor Young), paid a tribute to Mr. Trefle's political career, and deprecated the reflections made by the Dubbo Farmers and Settlers' Association on Mr. Trefle's private life. It was said Mr. Trefle neglected his aged parents and left them in destitution while he himself enjoyed a comfortable position. Mr. Holman said that was not so, nor had it ever been so. He could speak with authority, owing to an intimate personal friendship with Mr. Trefle and his relatives.

Referring to the truce, Mr. Holman said that when it was made he did not know there was such a person as Blacket to be consulted. Similar truces had been made in British and French Governments. By-elections had not been contested. He could not agree with Mr. Blacket's action, and preferred to be guided by Mr. Asquith and Mr. Bonar Law in England and M. Viviani in France.

Interjector: They are not wheat grabbers.

Mr. Holman: They have grabbed considerably more than wheat, and you will find they have been far more arbitrary in the matter than we have.

Continuing, Mr. Holman said he knew nothing of party politics so long as this war lasted. No town had poured forth its best blood more freely than Coonamble in the settlement of the matter, but that spirit demanded not merely that there should be loyalty to the flag and to the King, but that there should be also loyalty to the King's Ministers, who were engaged in strengthening the hands of the King and the Empire. If he said it with the last breath, he would state that Mr. Wade had given the Government the most valuable assistance in this time of crisis.

Mr. Holman went on to deal with the country policy of the Government in regard to duplication and construction of new lines, and concluded by quoting figures to show that the Labour Government had spent more for country works than previous Governments.

SPORT ABROAD.

BOXING.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.

Jim Coffey, the Dublin Giant, defeated Jack Sullivan, of Boston, in the sixth round of a scheduled twenty rounds. Sullivan was unable to defend himself after receiving a right on the jaw.

PACIFIC CABLE BOARD.

NEW ZEALAND REDUCTIONS.

LONDON, Feb. 18.

The Pacific Cable Board has confirmed the reduction in the rates for cables to New Zealand to 2/8 per word for ordinary cables, 1.4½ for Government messages, 1/4 for deferred, and 13/9 for week-end cables of 20 words, the new rates to commence on April 1.

PRICE OF BUTTER.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the opinion of the Price of Goods Board the present price of butter is justifiable, but no further increase should be necessary.

WAR AND TRADE.

ALL-ROUND REDUCTION.

EXPORTS ESPECIALLY AFFECTED.

Vague and conflicting ideas are current as to the actual effect of the war upon commerce. Some say that it has had remarkably little effect; others that trade has been well-nigh paralysed. Neither is right. Doubtless the outlook of no particular person is wide enough for a general survey. Bankers have a better opportunity than the average man of affairs to generalise. Among their customers are all classes of merchants and traders. They have transactions with the big man and with the small, with the incorporated company, and with the small partnership or firm. Their operations extend equally to town and country. They deal with the stock-raiser who is getting long prices for his live-stock, and the wheatgrower who this year has no grain for sale. They know the position of the manufacturer who is working full time on orders from the Defence Department, and of the indent merchant whose orders before the war chiefly went to Germany. Bankers will tell one that business, as the result of the war, is quiet, but not unhealthy; that transactions must be looked into with more than ordinary care, but not necessarily with suspicion.

WHAT THE STATISTICIAN SAYS.

But there is another man who gets a broader survey of the position even than the banker, and that is the Statistician. It is his business to collect figures to measure up weights and values, and to bring them into comparison with other corelated weights and values. The trouble with the Statistician is, however, that he allows himself to be tied down overmuch to fixed periods. He has certain starting points, and it is difficult for him to start anywhere else. It must be the first of January of a given year or the first of July. But wars do not break out at regular statistical periods for the benefit of the Statistician. They have a nasty way of intruding in the centre of some statistical period. So, the present great world turmoil began to all intents and purposes on August 1, and any valid record of trade must be set out from that date. Bearing this in mind, the following statement has been prepared. It shows the oversea trade of the Commonwealth during the first five months of the war in comparison with the corresponding figures for the same months a year earlier. The comparison is instructive. It shows the actual effect of the war and the drought, but chiefly the war:—

COMMONWEALTH'S OVERSEA TRADE.

AUGUST-DECEMBER.

	1913. £	1914. £	Decrease. £
Imports	35,852,183	26,601,610	9,250,582
Exports	41,367,241	24,511,034	16,856,207

It will be noted that exports have dwindled much more markedly than imports. This is not surprising. Imports are more slowly affected by extraneous circumstances than exports. The reason, on a little reflection, is clear enough. On August 1, when the war first broke out, there were scores of vessels afloat for Australia deep-laden with merchandise that did not arrive till a month or two later. These could not be stopped. There were also many running contracts that had to be fulfilled. It was only contracts with the enemy that were either abrogated or suspended by the outbreak of hostilities. Otherwise, the war had no legal effect on imports, if the matter of war risks be excluded. So it is found that whereas exports dropped by some 16½ millions sterling, imports were only 9¼ millions lower.

ADVERSE TRADE BALANCE.

Exports pay for imports, so the balance of trade has turned against us. In other words, were the present position to be maintained, Australia would not be able to pay her way and would soon be getting into debt abroad. But the falling off in exports is in some respects more apparent than real. It is real enough as far as exchange rates are concerned. The banks have been forced to so arrange their rates as to encourage remittances to London and to discourage capital being imported this way. But the excess of imports is illusory. The mere fact that wool, for instance, has not yet been shipped does not mean that the wool has not been grown. It is still on the station or in the city stores, and will one day find an oversea market. The fact that Australasia has shipped 644,764 fewer bales of wool during the first half of the wool year than was the case last wool year during the corresponding period means no more than that the wool has not been shipped. It still remains ready for shipment when a more favourable opportunity exists. With wheat the position is dissimilar. Wheat has not been shipped because it was not produced. The falling off in exports through this cause is irremediable and means dead loss to the community.

SHRINKAGE IN EXPORTS.

Some of the leading articles exported during the six months commencing July 1 may be compared with those for the corresponding portion of 1913 as follows:—

Last six months.	1913.	1914.
Butter, lb	89,700,444	80,541,702

AMALGAMATED WIRELESS (AUSTRALASIA), LTD.

The half-yearly ordinary general meeting of the company was held on Thursday last, at the registered office, 97 Clarence-street. Mr. H. R. Denison (chairman of directors) presided. The balance-sheet and profit and loss accounts not being available, owing to unavoidable delay in the adjustment of certain accounts, it was decided to adjourn the meeting until March 18 proximo.

N.S.W. PHOSPHATES COMPANY.

The annual general meeting of the above company was held recently, and a very promising and satisfactory state of affairs was disclosed. The chairman announced that the company had now passed beyond the developmental stage, and started as a producing concern. A considerable tonnage of rock had been sold towards the end of the year at satisfactory prices. The directors were erecting machinery for crushing and grinding the rock, and have also erected a residence for the manager at the mine. Various tests have proved that the rock when ground is a readily available plant food of a very valuable nature, without requiring any artificial additions, and a large number of orders have been received for it, which will keep the machinery going at high pressure from the start. The mine manager reports that a tunnel has been driven into the workings, from the flat below the hill, and a double line of tramway laid down, and the necessary trucks provided. There are, on a conservative estimate, 40,000 to 50,000 tons of rock immediately available.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Trocadero, Ltd., has been registered with a capital of £2000, in £1 shares. The objects are: To acquire the business carried on in Pitt-street by Mr. A. Marks, as a refreshment room proprietor, etc. The permanent directors are Messrs. G. Marlow, H. C. Macfie, and T. E. Rofe.

The Yanco Tobacco Plantations, Ltd., has increased its capital from £6000 to £8000, by the issue of 2000 preference £1 shares.

Mr. C. F. W. Lloyd has been appointed official liquidator of the Commonwealth Carrying Co., Ltd.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

A steady business was done in oils yesterday. Linseed oil was inquired for, but buyers were not willing to pay the higher prices asked. Holders wanted 4/2 for parcels of Blundell, Spence's raw, and 4/4 for boiled. In distributing lots, a penny above those rates was asked. A further advance was advised, this brand being cabled at 2/5½, f.o.b., London, which would mean a landed cost here of 4/2, and more should the war risk increase. Whitelead was firm but quiet. A further advance of 10/ per ton was cabled, making the price £29 per ton. Redleads were also dearer, at a mean price of £26 per ton, f.o.b., an increase of £2 on previous rates. Turpentine was also in demand, the high rates of freight from New York hindering shipments thence. Copra met with a strong market, the English price having advanced. Sales were made locally at £20/17/6, f.o.b. export steamer, for sun dried in bags, being an advance of 12/6 on the week. The advance is not quite equal to the increase in London, but this is due to additional war risk.

Metals were firm all round. Black wire advanced to £11 for No. 8 gauge, and galvanised to £12 for the same gauge. A cable was received from England quoting assorted wire nettings at 30 per cent. off list, compared with 62½ per cent. off list at the end of July. The price is thus 86 per cent. higher. A fair business was done in tinplates at 21/6 to 22/ per box. As to how the advance in pig iron has affected the tinplate market, advices from London state: "The position of pig iron in South Wales is very difficult. It is impossible to get any delivery by sea, and the price has advanced something like 12/ per ton during the past two or three weeks, equivalent to something like 9d per box on tinplates."

In the chemical market cables told of higher rates. Caustic soda was cabled at £1 advance. Locally £13 per ton was still asked. A rise of 10/ was cabled in Macclesfield's bluestone to £29/15/, c.i.f. and e., without profit to the merchant. On spot, £32 was paid for parcels, and 33/ per cwt. for smaller lots. French cream of tartar showed further firmness, owing to additional demand. Some bookings were made for American cream of tartar, but the difficulty from that quarter continues in freight. One of the English houses cabled that owing to the difficulties attending the importation of Italian cream of tartar and tartaric acid into Australia it would not ship any more.

The tea auction yesterday met a very strong market, but hardly so excited as a week previously. Rates ruled high to good competition. Everything offered was sold, 350 packages of Ceylon changing hands at from /9½ to /11½ per lb.

Canary seed was cabled at 25/ per ton dearer, the quotation being £29/5/, c.i.f. and e., without profit.

The branbag market was weak, and although holders showed a firm front and quoted 5/1½ net to rails, there was grave reason to suspect that supplies could have been secured at 5/. Nevertheless, no actual sale was reported at the even money. Ex the Knight Templar the best price heard was 4/9 net. Cornsacks and woolpacks were unchanged.

MONDAY'S HOMEBUSH OFFERINGS.

The number of sheep and of cattle listed for sale at the Homebush Yards on Monday next is as follows:—

Sheep (including lambs)	30,441

BREADSTUFFS.

Flour was quoted at £11/17/6 a ton. Bran was unchanged at £7/10/, and pollard at £8.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 299 tons of wheat and 106 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

BONDED STOCKS.

The stocks of merchandise in bond, other than wines, spirits, and narcotics, but including spirits distilled in New South Wales, on February 19, 1915, and the movements for the week, were:—

SUGAR.

The sugar market is unchanged, granulated selling at 26/6 per cwt.

BRADFORD TOPS.

At Bradford there is a good inquiry for all sorts at one farthing advance. Prices are:—64's, 28½d; super 60's, 27¾d; common 60's, 26¾d; 56's, 27½d; 50's, 25¾d; 46's, 23¾d; 40's, 20¾d.

DAIRY.

The butter market is dull. Danish is weak. Business in colonial butter is restricted by a temporary shortage in supplies, owing to labour troubles at the docks. Choicest New Zealand is selling at 130/ to 132/ per cwt.; Australian 128/.

Cheese is firm and unchanged.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

There was a good demand for eggs at the previous day's advanced rates. New-laid suburban consignments commanded from 1/6 to 1/7 a dozen, and case eggs from 1/3 to 1/4, according to quality.

Prime quality loaf cheese from the South Coast met with a brisk inquiry at up to /7½ per lb, but secondary sorts were dull, and had to be sold at cheap prices.

There was no movement in butter. Best brands were available at 122/ per cwt, delivered in boxes.

Quotations were:—

DAIRY PRODUCE.

Bacon.—Sides /10 to /10½; flitches, /9½ to /10, middles /11, shoulders /7 to /7½; bacon hams, /11 to 1/1; special brands, sides /11½, flitches /10, middles 1/, shoulders to /8½; bacon hams, /11 to 1/ per lb.

Eggs were in fair demand. Poultry was very cheap and plentiful.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

MAIZE AT 4/6.

During the past week the local maize market had been steadily declining until yesterday, when prime dry yellow grain was to be had at 4/6 a bushel.

Oats were well held at the previous day's levels.

FORAGE.

Chaff.—Tasmanian: Oaten straw chaff, £5 a ton.

Derrick Straw.—Tasmanian: Oaten and wheaten, £5 a ton.

Onions.—Victorian: Brown Spanish, £8/10/ a ton.

RAILWAY MARKET.

LUCERNE HAY FIRMER.

A maximum yarding of produce was offered at auction at the railway forage and grain sales yesterday. Buyers were in large attendance, and bidding was brisk. Consequently the majority of the auctioneers had little difficulty in clearing consignments at firm rates. The feature of the morning's sale was the large quantity of prime lucerne hay in position, but, notwithstanding the large number of waggon loads submitted, buyers were eager to purchase, and prices showed an increase of from 10/ to 15/ per ton on those of the previous day. Lucerne chaff was also very firm.

Wheaten chaff was scarce, and sold from 5/9 to 7/10, the latter being obtained for a parcel from McGilvray, of Shepherd's Siding. Oaten was more plentiful than usual, and realised from 6/3 to 8/; whilst lucerne was worth from 4/1 to 6/11. The former figure cannot, however, be taken as a standard, as it was a small consignment of five bags of badly-cut chaff. Lucerne hay found purchasers at prices varying from 5/2 (ex trucks), to 7/1. Derrick straw brought 3/9 per cwt.

A parcel of Tumut maize cleared at 4/8 per bushel.

Consignments placed in position for sale:—Hay, straw, chaff 83 truckloads, grain 27, potatoes and onions 3.

Produce manifested to arrive:—Hay, straw, chaff 203, grain 36, potatoes and onions 3.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Following were the wholesale prices ruling at the Western Market to-day:—Apples, eating 3/ to 9/, cooking 2/6 to 5/; blackberries, /2 to /3 lb; figs, 5/ to 7/; grapes, 4/ to 9/; lemons, Victorian 6/ to 10/, imported 25/ double case; oranges 9/, New South Wales 6/ to 8/, imported 18/ to 29/; passionfruit, 6/ to 8/; peaches, 4/ to 10/; pears, 2/6 to 5/6; plums, 6/6 to 7/6; pineapples, roughs, 4/6 to 6/6 double case; tomatoes, 5/ to 8/; cucumbers, 2/ to 3/.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

At the Municipal Market yesterday a steady demand ruled for most vegetables, and business was very fair. A truck of peas from Rydal arrived in a sweaty condition, and consequently sold at greatly reduced rates. Tomatoes were firm, but watermelons were again heavily supplied, and prices suffered a further decline. Other lines were unchanged.

Quotations were:—

Beetroot, /9 to 1/; carrots, 1/ to 1/6; celery, 2/6; eschalots, 1/ to 1/6; herbs to 1/6; lettuce, /6 to 1/; parsley, 1/6 to 2/6; parsnips, 1/6 to 2/6; radishes, /6; rhubarb, 1/6 to 3/6; watercress, 2/ to 2/6; white turnips, /6 to 1/; spinach, /6 to 1/ per dozen bunches; beans, 3/ to 6/; peas, 2/ to 7/6 per bushel; cabbages, 1/6 to 7/; vegetable marrows, 1/6 to 3/; watermelons, 2/ to 8/ per dozen; rockmelons, 1/6 to 2/6 per case; cucumbers, 3/ to 5/ per bushel-case; tomatoes, extra choice, 4/6, others from 2/ a half-case; pumpkins, local, 2/ to 4/ per dozen; Queensland, 7/6 per bag; onions, brown 12/, white 14/, Hunter River 6/ to 8/ per cwt; potatoes, Circular Head 8/, Bismarcks 6/, Pinkeyes 5/, Up-to-dates 7/, local varieties, 4/ to 6/ per cwt; Swedes, 3/6 per cwt.

PIG SALES.

At the City Yards yesterday 245 pigs, the bulk of which consisted of baconers, were offered at auction to a fair attendance of buyers. Competition was generally active, and values for backfatters and porkers showed no material alteration, whilst those for baconers were slightly firmer.

Quotations were:—

Best backfatters, £5; good, £4 to £4/10/; medium, £3 to £3/10/; light, from £2/10/.

Best baconers, 74/; good, 65/ to 68/; medium, 55/ to 60/; prime light, 50/ to 55/; others, from 40/.

BROKEN HILL SOUTH MINE.

HALF-YEAR'S OPERATIONS.

HAMPERED BY THE WAR.

The war and its effect in hampering the operations of the Broken Hill South Silver Mining Company looms large in the report of the directors to be presented at the annual ordinary general meeting of shareholders convened to be held in Melbourne on Friday, February 26.

After thanking the Broken Hill Proprietary Company for its assistance in enabling the B.H. South to tide over the difficulty attending the disposal of its metal concentrates, the directors of the B.H. South state that this assistance enabled the company to continue working, and to keep practically the whole of the employees going. An arrangement has been entered into by which some of the company's bullion was disposed of to English refiners during the continuance of the war. Furthermore, the directors hope that in the near future arrangements will be made to enable the mine to be worked more frequently than at present.

RESERVES.

The mine manager, Mr. Wainwright, considers that developmental work at the mine has kept pace with the ore extraction, and that the ore reserves remain as previously estimated, viz., 3,880,000 tons.

TAILINGS.

The whole of the current production of tailings has been delivered to the Amalgamated Zinc (De Bavay's), Ltd., and the Zinc Corporation, Ltd., took delivery of 8812 tons of accumulated tailings. The [illegible] from this source were greatly reduced, and the directors say, it seems doubtful whether during the continuance of the war they will be able to continue delivery of tailings, and consequently receipts from this source may be still further reduced.

EXPENDITURE.

During the six months all expenditure, except what was absolutely necessary, was stopped, having in view the policy agreed on, viz., the keeping employed at half time of the men in the service at the outbreak of the war. Development work in the mine and plant extension was in consequence carried out on very much reduced lines.

FINANCIAL.

The company was able to pay its way during the half-year without financial aid, the fixed deposits having been reduced by £75,000. The provision made for possible reclamations on concentrates account, amounting to £35,000, will not now be required, and the amount has been re-credited to profit and loss account. It is gratifying to read in the manager's report that the working costs of the mine have been reduced to 20/5.9 for the period under review, this in spite of the short time worked.

MINING.

AN INACTIVE MARKET.

VALUES MOSTLY UNALTERED.

A disinclination towards speculation was shown by the fact that yesterday morning only two transactions were booked, whilst the general tone of the quotations indicated very little disposition for buyers and sellers to get to close quarters. A parcel of Broken Hill Proprietary changed hands at a solid rate on the strength of the satisfactory character of the past half-year's operations, as disclosed in a synopsis of the directors' report published in yesterday's issue of the "Herald."

Whilst other stocks were freely quoted, such as copper, tin, and gold, very little disposition was shown to trade. Quotations generally were unchanged—buyers offering low, whilst sellers were not disposed to mark down their prices. Their attitude was rather to mark time, seeing that the close of the week was near at hand, and the London Metal Market might indicate some changes in the next day or two.

The copper division participated in the general listlessness that prevailed. Hampdens sold a shade on the easy side. There were sellers of Mount Morgans at late sale rates, but buyers were undeclared. A transaction in Mammoth Copper at 15/6 was 6d under the last sale booked some week's ago. Sellers of Wallaroos quoted high, but buyers were silent.

The sole representative on the sale side of gold stocks was Edna May Deep at 11/10½, an advance from 8/8, but there were inquiries for several other Western Australian stocks. Tin interests were slightly weaker, with sales on the slack side in Katoo Deebook, Kampong Kamunting, and Tongkah Compound, whilst there was a falling off in the strength of some holders of Malaya Tin Corporation shares.

MINING NOTES.

An effort is to be made to enlist the support of English capital in a Papuan gold-dredging proposition on the Yodda Valley. It was tested by Messrs. Hungerford and H. W. Clark, and was subsequently floated in Sydney under the title of the Yodda Valley Gold-dredging Company, but the response to the demand for capital was rather limited. Nevertheless, the necessary machinery was purchased, landed at Buna Bay, on the east coast of Papua and is well on its way to the Yodda Valley, which is 70 miles from the coast. Mr. Clark leaves on Saturday for London by the steamer Ballarat for the purpose of securing additional capital on behalf of the company. At the same time, he will submit a proposition to English capitalists to place under their control 76,000 acres of country, the timber rights of which he has secured for 25 years from the Commonwealth Government. Mr. Clark's proposal is to ask for capital to establish a sawmill to tap forests of splendid hard and soft wood, and to connect them with a tramline to Buna Bay, which has an average depth of 30 feet of water, and is protected in all weathers.

OLD GOLDFIELDS.

DEPARTMENTAL INQUIRY.

The Premier's attention was recently directed to a suggestion that the Government should encourage dredging parties to work certain rich old goldfields. A commencement might be made, it was said, by draining the bottom of the Forbes Lagoon, and puting in workings to win deposits of gold supposed to exist in the alluvium. A report upon the subject by Mr. E. C. Andrews (geological surveyor) has been forwarded to the Premier, turning down the proposal upon historical and geological grounds.

MINING IN THE STATE.

LOCKHART, Friday.

Mining matters at Mangoplah may be said to be interesting. A battery for the No. 1 gold mine is half completed. Messrs. Priest and party have opened a good show, and are busily engaged taking out what appears to be a splendid sample of wolfram. Stone is plentiful, and the lode looks satisfactory. The absence of rain is a great hindrance to the works now in progress.

SONS OF GWALIA.

KALGOORLIE, Thursday.

A cablegram received to-day from the London office of Sons of Gwalia states that an interim dividend of 6d per share has been declared payable on March 25. The transfer books close on February 26.

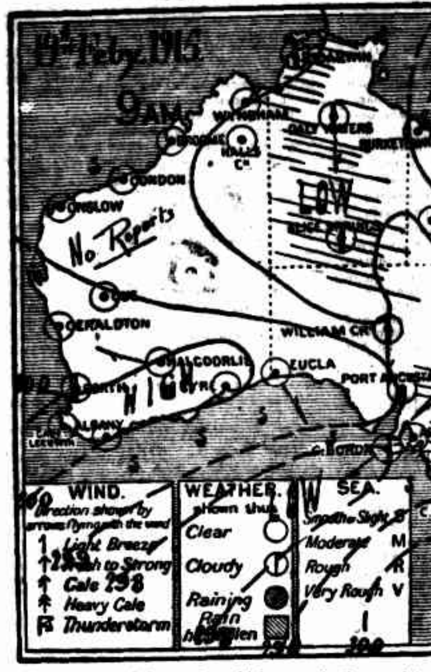
It is to be feared that the war may do an ill-turn to Old London. People can hardly be expected to subscribe for such luxuries as the salvation of old houses. Cloth Fair is going, and public authorities and private owners will have little to stay them so long as the war and its effects last.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The monsoonal depression which covered the greater part of Australia yesterday, and which resulted in some scattered but fairly good rainfalls over the south-western districts, has retreated northwards; but there are indications of an Antarctic disturbance to the south-west of Adelaide. With these two systems, although the monsoonal depression has receded northwards, there is still a possibility of some more rain of a thundery character.

A new high-pressure has made its appearance over the south-west corner of the continent, but so far does not show very much energy.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally south-east winds on parts of the Queensland coast.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Horse-racing at Moorefield and pony and galloway racing at Richmond are the turf fixtures in the metropolitan district this afternoon, and the Wallsend Jockey Club holds its February meeting. At Caulfield the Victoria Amateur Turf Club's Autumn reunion will be brought to a close; the Queensland Turf Club holds its February reunion at Ascot, the Gawler Jockey Club furnishes an outing for South Australian sportsmen, and the Belmont Park Racing Club provides an afternoon's sport in Western Australia.

The conditions of the Rosehill Cup, the principal event on the card for the Rosehill Autumn Meeting on the 13th prox., is announced. The Rosehill Cup is a handicap sweepstakes of 4 sovs. each, 1 sov. forfeit if declared before 4 p.m. on Thursday, March 11, with 400 sovs. added; owner of the second to receive 75 sovs., and of the third 25 sovs. from the prize, 1¼m. Entries will be received by the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe, at the office of the club, Elizabeth-street, city, up to 4 p.m. on Monday next, and with Mr. M. P. Considine at the office of the Sandown Park Racing Club, Melbourne. The weights are promised on the 8th prox.

With no opposition, the February meeting of the Moorefield Racing Club this afternoon, should attract a bumper attendance, for the bill of fare is an interesting one, and the horses engaged include several candidates for the big events of the autumn racing campaign. The track is excellent going, and the general arrangements are up to the customary standard. The transit arrangements include special trains, starting from the Central Railway Station at 11.15 a.m. (horses and attendants), 12.25, 12.34, 12.48, 12.53, 1.6, and 1.15 p.m., while the ordinary traffic to Kogarah will also be available. The first race, the Flying Handicap, is timed to start at 2.10 p.m., and the most likely to fill the places are Ruinall, Arrowform, and Nuwara Eliya; Third Prize, Gibbergunyah, and Infanta may pass the post in the order named at the close of the Stewards' Mile; Lady Iberia, Miss Collar, and Valerie O. may divide the honours in the Kogarah Stakes. The situations in the Juvenile Handicap may be occupied by Coalacre, Sleeping Beauty, and Sealed Orders; Quisita, Orama, and Sanguine may past the judge as named in the February Handicap; and Sweet Malt, Sir Vive, and Sound Asleep may get home in that order in the Welter Mile. The results of the racing at Caulfield will be posted in the paddock during the afternoon.

The card for the Canterbury Park March Meeting demands the attention of owners and trainers on Monday next, for at 4 p.m. entries close with the secretary, Mr. W. L. Davis, for the half-dozen events comprised therein, and which carry in the aggregate 625 sovs., of which 125 sovs. enrich the Canterbury Handicap, and 100 sovs. each of the other events.

The Richmond Pony Club holds a race meeting on the Londonderry course, near Richmond, this afternoon, and metropolitan visitors can reach the scene of action by the trains which leave the Central Railway Station at 10 (horses), 11, and 11.45 a.m. A motor car service will run between the railway station and the course. The programme is an interesting one, and should furnish good sport.

The following race meetings have been granted registration by the A.J.C.:—Greenwell Point Racing Club (March 10), Benah Amateur Race Club (April 5), Enngonia Race Club (March 10), Barringun Amateur Race Club (March 4, 5), Krambach Turf Club (March 13), Heddon Jockey Club (March 13), Muswellbrook Racing Club (March 4), and Dunedoo Jockey Club (April 5).

Mr. H. R. Evans, secretary, invites up to 4 p.m. on Monday next entries for the half-dozen events on the programme for the fixture of the Gosford Racing Club on the 2nd prox. The prize-money totals 270 sovs., of which 60 sovs. goes to the principal event, the Gosford Handicap.

The handsome brown horse Rovigno, by Maltster from Istria (winner of the Doncaster, 1907), by Haut Brion (imp.), has been sold through the agency of Messrs. Pitt, Son, and Badgery, Ltd., on account of Mr. J. A. Mayo, to Mr. C. B. Crowley, for use in his Oreel stud. Rovigno was once sold for 1000 guineas.

G.W. (City): St. Carwyne was scratched for the Warwick Handicap at 4 p.m. on the day of the race.

The following race meetings have been granted registration by the A.J.C.—Delungra Jockey Club (April 24), Tottenham Race Club (April 9), Orange and District Picnic Race Club (March 10, 11), and Bungendore Jockey Club (March 10).

The Australian record of seven consecutive successes in cross-country racing, put up by Swedish Lad, has set "Vigilant," of the London "Sportsman," hunting up turf calenders in search of a similar feat. Midshipmite, who won 32 events over fences during his racing career, scored five in succession, but four of them were in hunters' flat races; Gamecock, who had won the Grand National, 1887, secured half a dozen races off the reel, but the Grand National, 1890, prevented a further sequence. Lottery, the first winner of the Grand National in 1839, had two sequences of four steeplechases to his credit; Frigate (Grand National, 1899), won five in succession, as did the grey champion, but one of his series was a walk-over; Cortigan's Pride won six races, and Ilston (now running) scored five. In 1883 a 'chaser named Sir Herbert won seven events in succession, but one was a walk-over, and spoiled the series. He instances another horse named Southam, who in 1891 won 13 steeplechases in 18 attempts. A dozen of his races were secured off the reel, and included only one w.o. The majority of his successes were, however, achieved in steeplechases for hunters, or for half-breds, to which class he belonged. So far the Australian 'chaser Swedish Lad holds the record with a sequence of seven.

The annual meeting of the members of City Tattersall's Club was held on Monday evening last. The report and balance-sheet showed that despite the loss occasioned by the postponement of the Autumn Race Meeting, the increase in the prize-money, the payment of £326 8s to charitable institutions, and £500 towards the war funds, there was a profit on the year's transactions of £1419 17s 2d. The membership had increased during the year to 847. The receipts for the year amounted to £16,159 17s 9d, and the expenditure to £14,740 0s 7d, leaving a credit balance of £1419 17s 2d. The election of officers for the current year resulted as under:—Chairman, Mr. James Clarke; treasurer, Mr. J. Barkel; committee, Messrs. Sliver Bryant, Walter F. Baker, Fred. W. Cowell, G. R. Forster, James W. Harper, and Edward Johnston.

The thirteenth annual report of Newcastle Jockey Club, Ltd., states that the financial year, which closed on December 31, was the best in the history of the club. There was a profit of £7061 19s 6d. During the year £10,295, representing £345 in excess of 1913, was distributed in prize money. The club gave £1000 to the Patriotic Fund, and handed over to charities the sum of £548, the profit of one day's race meeting. The Tramway Department promised to have improvements to the line near the course finished for the cup meeting in May next. As soon as that work is completed the club intends carrying out extensive improvements by providing increased accommodation. The committee has decided to increase the prize money for the cup meeting from £2500 to £2750. The racecourse had been used by the military authorities for mobilisation purposes for five months, the report added, and a considerable amount of damage had been done to the tracks, which would take time and money to restore to their former condition. The balance-sheet shows that the sum received from members' subscriptions amounted to £525, entries and acceptances £1783, bookmakers' and jockeys' fees £3929, race books £1405, saddling paddock £9251, Leger stand £4862, training fees £423, and booths £389.

At a general meeting of the Forbes Picnic Race Club, writes our local correspondent, it was decided by 26 to 24 votes to postpone indefinitely the annual race fixture in April. Owing to the drought there are not many horses being prepared, but the most important consideration influencing the members was the fact that the reunion meant expenditure in a somewhat lavish way in social enjoyment, whereas the money might be turned to better purpose in assisting some war fund.

The following officers have been elected by the Forbes Jockey Club for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. W. C. Brooke; vice-presidents, Messrs. A. J. Reymond and H. C. M. Deloherty; treasurer, Mr. T. Lozell; committee, Messrs. R. E. B. Reymond, J. H. Bates, A. D. H. Nelson, J. J. Flannery, T. Lozell, H. E. Barlow, H. V. Croft, C. O. Buckland, H. A. Sharp, and E. Clifford; timekeeper, Mr. A. E. Boyne. The club decided to allot £200 to the autumn fixture on the 30th and 31st March. Concessions will be given to owners and trainers in the matter of reduced nomination fees and rebate on trainage of horses competing.

The Richmond Trotting Club's programme for its next meeting on the Londonderry course is announced for the 1st prox. The seven events on the card carry in the aggregate 120 sovs prize-money, of which 25 sovs goes to the Richmond Handicap. Entries close with the secretary, Richmond office, on Tuesday next, the 23rd inst.

In connection with the autumn sales of thoroughbred yearlings, Messrs. William Inglis and Son intimate that the draw for positions in the catalogue will take place early next week.

The well-known trotting sire Elmo II., died recently at his owner's (Mr. J. Powell) place at Cootamundra. Elmo II. was 24 years old, and was by Yarraman from Hattie Weir (imp.), by Elmo from Ella Chiefton, by Chiefton from Susie, and he sired a host of winners, the most notable being St. Elmo (2.17), Maggie S. (2.17), the 13.2 pony Kiddie Gee (2.25), Grace S. (2.38), and Brother (2.27).

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB.

COMMITTEE MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the A.J.C. committee was held on Thursday, when the following business was transacted:—

The appeal of J. Buckley against the decision of the stipendiary steward acting at the Brewarrina Hospital Benefit Race Meeting on January 26, in the Port Gun-April Rose case, was dismissed.

The appointments of stipendiary stewards were approved of as under:—W. Stenhouse to act at the Benah Amateur Race Club's meeting on April 5; William Scott, to act at the ensuing meeting of the Enngonia District Race Club; and John Apps to act at the ensuing race meeting of the Barringun Amateur Race Club.

The decision to reject the entry of Soldiers' Point was withdrawn, and he will be given another trial at the barrier.

The appointment of Murray Wyse as deputy stipendiary steward to the Southern District Racing Association was approved of.

Certain recommendations with regard to the railing of the inner track at Randwick for working horses left-handed was referred to the track committee; and a suggestion that an additional clerk of course be engaged to assist in bringing fractious horses to the barrier was not acceded to.

It was decided that in future, when a trotting race is included in any programme, it must be the last event, and it was further affirmed that secretaries of country race meetings should be informed that the time for starting the last race on a programme should be 4.45 p.m. in winter and 5.30 p.m. in summer.

At a meeting of the programme committee, it was decided that no alteration be made in the prize money for the A.J.C. events—the classic races and the Epsom and the Metropolitan—for which entries close on the first Tuesday in June; and the programme for the season 1915-16 will be considered at a future date.

VICTORIA AMATEUR TURF CLUB.

AUTUMN MEETING.

SECOND DAY.

ANTICIPATIONS.

The Victorian autumn racing campaign will be advanced another stage at Caulfield this afternoon, when the V.A.T.C. meeting will be brought to a close, and the programme to be played out is suggestive of high-class sport, as a number of horses with important engagements on both sides of the Murray will be out under silk. The different events will be started as under:—St. Clair Trial, 1; Alma Stakes, 2; Woodcliff Handicap, 2.40; Futurity Stakes, 3.25; Stanley Steeplechase, 4.5; and Hawkesburn Handicap, 4.40 p.m.

An interesting race is promised for the St. Clair Trial, in which Honorine, Baverstock, Royal Alice, and Clash of Arms should have most say towards the finish, and the numbers may be hoisted for Clash of Arms, Baverstock, and Honorine.

Nicanor, Mousqueterie, Rosanna, Wolcen, and One should have the settlement of the Alma Stakes among them, and the judge may declare for Wolcen, One, and Rosanna.

Bon Ton, Chid, Lempriere, Onazer, and Hayston should run prominently in the Woodcliff Handicap; and the situations may be occupied by Onazer, Lempriere, and Chid.

A great race may be anticipated for the Caulfield Futurity Stakes, and the leading parts should be taken by Land of Song, Gigandra, Woorak, Traquette, and Flash of Steel (imp.). The lastnamed, with only 6st 7lb in the saddle, reads well, judged by recent track form, and he may be escorted past the post by Woorak and Gigandra, unless separated by Land of Song.

King Lucre, The Miser, Moonbarra, and W.T.S. read as well as anything in the Stanley Steeplechase, and The Miser, Moonbarra, and King Lucre may divide the honours.

The meeting will be brought to a close with the Hawkesburn Handicap, in which the prospects of Oweenee, Dhuldul, Amata, Pinkerton, and Miss Meadows seem brightest, and Dhuldul, Amata, and Oweenee may pass the judge in the order written.

Appended are the weights:—

WOOLWICH CLUB CARNIVAL.

The Woolwich Club will hold its first annual carnival at the local baths this afternoon. Considerable support has been received from the Northern Suburbs Clubs, and Manly swimmers are journeying in large numbers by special launch to the gala. The 100 yds championship of the Northern Suburbs is the principal item, and promises an exceedingly close finish between the two Manly representatives. Hay and Solomon were selected to compete on behalf of that club, but the former may not have returned from Melbourne, in which case Wyld will take his place against Wright and Cotton (N. Sydney), and Snell and Oatley (Mosman). The Water Polo match between Northern and Eastern districts in the Harris Cup competition is another important event, while club events and inter-club handicaps make a very interesting programme.

SYDNEY LEAGUE CLUB.

The following is the result of the final of the above club's 220 yds handicap: C. Whitehead, 18s, 1; A. Rollinson, scr, 2. Time, 3m.

Drummoyne Club: Continuous bogey handicap.
Manly Club: Four-ball best ball bogey handicap.

ROYAL SYDNEY CLUB.

The annual meeting of members of the above club was held at the Club House, Rose Bay. The profit and loss account for the year 1914 showed that, after providing for depreciation of £941 in various accounts, the year's working showed a net surplus of £1300. The chairman, Mr. E. P. Simpson, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, pointed out that the effect of war placed sporting clubs of all kinds in a more or less difficult position. The situation had to be looked at from more than a sporting point of view. There were 35 employees and their families directly dependent upon the club for their living. So far the club had been able to carry on as usual. No employees had been dismissed, and he looked to the future with confidence. The total expenditure for the year amounted to £12,000. At the end of this year the club would exercise its option of purchase from the Rose Bay Land Co. A sum of £34,000 would be required for this purpose; but as the club was fortunately in a very sound financial position, there would be no difficulty in making the necessary arrangements in this connection. A rifle club and military training corps was formed amongst members on August 17. Twenty-three members have passed their examination for second lieutenant. Forty-three members of the club had proceeded to the front on active service.

Mr. L. Beaton, in seconding the adoption of the report, referred to the increasing burden of taxation on sporting clubs. The club and the Rose Bay Land Co., which was a company formed by members for the purpose of acquiring the links, together paid in taxes no less a sum than £1300 per annum, of which the club was called upon to contribute £858. The report and balance-sheet were adopted. Minor amendments to the rules were carried, and the following office-bearers elected for the ensuing year:—President, Sir James Fairfax; captain, E. P. Simpson; hon. treasurer, L. Beaton; committee, W. H. German; E. M. Stephen, H. M. Stephen, J. S. Marks, C. H. Reading, H. A. Russell.

SUBURBAN AND COUNTRY GOLF ASSOCIATION.

The thirteenth annual general meeting of this association will be held on Thursday, February 25, at Aarons' Exchange Hotel, at 4.45 p.m., when the officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Owing to the association having decided that the usual competitions be suspended this season on account of the war Mr. A. H. Uther has given notice of motion—"That the annual subscriptions be abated this year, and any alteration of the rules be made."

The annual report discloses a successful year, and the affiliated clubs now number 56.

NEW CLUB FORMED.

BERRY, Friday.

At a meeting of bowlers held on Monday night, a club was formed, and the liabilities of the local green taken over from the syndicate of five local gentlemen, under whose directions the green and buildings were constructed. The following officers-bearers were elected:—Patron, Mr. Alex. Hay; president, the Mayor of Berry (Alderman Shepherd); vice-presidents, Messrs. A. J. Schofield, C. R. Winley, R. F. Shirley, and T. M. Jones; committee, Messrs. A. McConaghy, Capt. Blow, H. Bruce, Alex. Burnett, P. F. Quirk, G. Gillam; secretary, Mr. M. McNamee; treasurer, Mr. S. G. Banfield.

Messrs. Alex. Hay, F. W. Roxburgh, and H. Kenwood (St. George Club), were elected life members. The official opening will take place about Easter time, when the president of the New South Wales Bowling Association (Mr. John Spence), will be invited to take part at the function. The green, which cost approximately £430, is situated about 200 yards from the local railway station.

SAILING.

18FT STATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

The 18-footers will, this afternoon, contest their third and last blue riband event of the season—the State Championship. Mavis and Kismet have each scored a first and a second in the two previous championships; but, unless the breeze is hard, they will have their work cut out to defeat Australian and Nimrod, and, possibly, Arline, this afternoon, and, having regard to Australian's recent performances, she should win in a light to moderate breeze. The entries and skippers are:—Mavis (F. W. Moppett); Desdemona (A. C. Roberts); Swastika (C. Stewart); Blanche (H. Arundel); Advance (H. E. Thompson); Golding (R. Beashel); Quibree (O. Taylor); Sydney (N. W. Blackman); Mona (O. Hahn); H. C. Press (G. Press); Mississippi (P. Harry); Enid (J. M. Firth); Australian (Chris. Webb); Pastime (S. Richardson); Scot (J. Smith); Kismet (W. BALMAIN AMATEUR CLUB.

The above club will hold a general handicap this afternoon, over Mrs. Macquarie's Chair-Shark Beach light course. Points will count for Commodore J. Hopkins' trophy, for which Torres has scored 3, Irex 2, and Derwent 1. First, second, and third will count, 3, 2, and 1 points between Merlin, Orthona, Tasman, Irex, Kismet, and Ivy for Vice-president Mrs. L. Matthews' trophy. Points scored so far for the best finishing record are: Tasman 63, Merlin 50, Kismet 49, Orthona 46, Ivy 41, and Irex 30. The handicaps for this afternoon are:—Merlin (A. Merrington), scr; Orthona (L. M'Lean), ½m; Tasman (W. Douglas), 2m; Irex (E. Kennedy), 5m; Kismet (J. Makinson), 6½m; Ivy (R. Crawford), 7½m; Ubique 9m; Derwent (J. Pattison), 9½m; Torres (W. Faulkner), 9½m; Federal (W. Wiles), 10m; Allan (B. Burns), 21m.

At the last meeting of the club, the members received the resignation of hon. secretary, Mr. A. V. Marshall, with regret. Mr. H. Baynor was elected in his stead.

ROWING.

PARRAMATTA RIVER CLUB.

An attractive afternoon's sport is being provided by the Parramatta River Sculling Club to-day, the programme comprising a sculling handicap in outriggers and a ladies and gentlemen's double sculls handicap in pleasure skiffs. The former race will be rowed from Blaxland's Point to Gladesville, and the starts allotted are:—George Jack, scr; R. J. Short and A. Pearce, 5s; J. Murray, 17s; M. C. Kent, 26s; W. Carter and T. Glover, 30s; G. M'Devitt, 38s; J. Cashman, 48s; and A. Breaden, 60s. ATHLETICS.

CLUB FIXTURES POSTPONED.

Owing to the Sydney Sports Ground not being available for athletic events this afternoon, no meetings will be carried out. The ground, however, will be at the disposal of amateur clubs on Wednesday evening, and a special night meeting has been arranged for Monday, March 1.

N.S.W. ATHLETIC LEAGUE.

Nominations will close to-night with the secretary of the New South Wales Athletic League, for the 75yds handicap, promoted by Mr. J. Rowan, at the Sports Ground, on Tuesday, March 2. A £30 handicap has been arranged for April 2.

CYCLING.

TO-DAY'S STATE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

At the Sydney Sports Ground this afternoon, the New South Wales Cyclists' Union will control the first section of the annual track championships of the State. Proceedings will commence with the heats of the one mile handicap at 3.15 p.m. For this race 77 nominations have been received, and the innovation of altering the present method of drawing up the heats will be watched with interest. The four hours teams' race will occupy the remainder of the afternoon, and some keen racing should be provided by the 15 teams entered for this event. At 8.30 p.m. heats of the half-mile championship will be contested, and the final which follows may produce a fine struggle for the leading positions between S. Burtinshaw, G. A. Halpin, A. F. Taylor, and A. A. Patrick, who should finish in that order. The final of the one mile handicap is down for consideration after the championship, and the next item will be the heats of the one mile race for the State title. The men who occupy the principal places in the shorter championship will probably be conspicuous in the mile final, which is the concluding event of the evening. A satisfactory attendance may be expected, for the programme will cover nearly seven hours, with a very short interval between each event.

AUSTRALASIAN CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Nominations are due this evening for the teams' races and handicap events included in the programme of the Australasian championships, which will take place on March 6 and 13, at the Sports Ground. The results of to-day's racing, with the form displayed in the concluding section of the State championships on Tuesday evening next, will be taken as a guide in the selection of the New South Wales representatives for the half-mile, one mile, five miles, and 10 miles Australasian championships.

FOOTBALL.

RUGBY UNION.

GLEBE DISTRICT CLUB.

The above club's fifteenth annual meeting will take place at the Glebe Town Hall on Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. It is intended to raise a strong squad for military drill, comprising members of the various sporting bodies of the Glebe, who are invited to be present.

BOXING.

JONES v COFFEY.

The contest at Baker's Stadium between the American lightweights Frankie Jones and Jimmy Coffey will begin at half-past 8 o'clock to-night. There will be two six-round preliminaries between Jimmy O'Brien and Fred Brett and between Harry Kilrain and Herb. Sullivan.

PROPOSED BOXERS' LEAGUE.

Mr. J. Feneley writes that, although recent efforts failed to form a Boxers' Union, he proposes to revive the movement on different lines. He is now in communication with a number of professional boxers on the subject.

SOUTH SYDNEY AMATEUR CLUB.

The second round of the South Sydney A.A. Club's amateur boxing tournament was continued last night at the Olympia Stadium, Newtown. Mr. Arthur Scott was referee. Results:—

SULTRY WEATHER.

SCATTERED THUNDERSTORMS.

During the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday the marked sultriness in New South Wales culminated in further thundery rains, but of a less scattered nature than for some time past, in as far as the SW quarter was concerned. The rain there was light for the most part, interspersed with moderate falls. There was also light rain, but very scattered, in the NE quadrant, and an isolated quantity of 86 points at Manilla.

At 9 a.m. yesterday it was cloudy or overcast generally over coastal and southern districts to showery on the North Coast and in the Riverina, otherwise fine weather ruled, with scattered clouds.

The winds in various places were blowing fresh to strong from the NE. In the city, where the wind was of moderate gale force, squalls accompanied by dust were of frequent occurrence. The greatest velocity, 34 miles, from the NE, was attained at 3.50 p.m. From that time on the wind gradually abated, but was in the night of sufficient strength and coolness to make its presence felt. It was a welcome change from the weak southerlies and moist nor'-easters of the last week.

Due to monsoonal influences, numerous thunderstorms occurred in New South Wales yesterday, chiefly in the southern districts. The best fall was at Wombat, where 418 points were recorded. Cootamundra registered 108 points, Young 90, Yass 80, Condobolin 63, Wagga 27, and Deniliquin 26 points.

Hot and sultry temperatures were again experienced generally over the State, and 100 degrees was exceeded at many places. The highest were:—110 deg. each at Cudgellico and Narrandera, 109 at Hillston, and 108 at Balranald, Condobolin, and Hay.

CASUALTIES.

A middle-aged man, whose name at present is unknown collapsed and fell to the footpath in George-street West yesterday afternoon. He was conveyed by the Civil Ambulance to the Royal Prince Alfred Hospital in an unconscious state, and admitted by Dr. Farrar, suffering from cerebral hemorrhage.

While at dinner in a restaurant in Pitt-street last night a man, whose name is supposed to be Jack O'Neil, about 70 years of age, suddenly collapsed. He was taken to the Sydney Hospital by the Civil Ambulance, and admitted by Dr. Stafford, suffering from cerebral hemorrhage.

FARMER'S FALL.

About 12.30 a.m. yesterday Henry Stoltenberg, 32, a farmer from West Narrabri, got out of his bedroom while asleep at the Great Southern Hotel, George-street, and stepped through an open window, and fell a distance of 20ft. He was taken by the Civil Ambulance to Sydney Hospital, suffering from a broken nose and injury to his spine.

SUICIDE.

Charles Henry Norman Carlyle Cowd, 27, on the 11th instant, about 10 p.m., was found lying in the hall of a house in Riley-street with a bullet wound in his right temple, and a revolver near by. He died soon afterwards.

The City Coroner (Mr. H. S. Hawkins), at an inquiry held on Friday, found that Cowd committed suicide.

FOUND DROWNED.

WEST MAITLAND, Friday.

The dead body of John Boyle was found floating in Wallis Creek, near the floodgates, on Tuesday evening. Deceased is supposed to have fallen over the side of the embankment into the creek. He was a native of East Maitland.

POLICE AND FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Gerald Strickland, who has manifested a great deal of interest in the police and firemen's carnival, will specially come from Moss Vale to attend at the Show Ground on Saturday week, February 27, and after the arrival of the procession will take the salute of the massed naval, military, fire brigade, and police sections.

The Premier and members of the Cabinet, the Lord Mayor of Sydney, Consuls of the Allies, and a number of leading citizens who have identified themselves with the movement towards helping the patriotic funds, have also signified their intention of being present.

After the procession has paraded the arena, the afternoon's programme will be commenced. A number of highly-interesting and spectacular events have been arranged for, prominent among them being the volplaning, bomb-dropping, and aeroplane descent and flight by Mr. Delfosse Badgery.

The military programme is an extensive one, and keen competition is anticipated between the Sydney and Bengal Lancers in the tent-pegging and other events.

The international baseball—Australia v America—match is sure to be a closely-run contest.

The championship tugs o' war between the police and fire brigade teams will probably be the keenest tussle which has yet taken place for the shield.

"Denver" Dixon and Charles Williams, the Canadian cowboys, who have just arrived in Sydney, will give a thrilling display in the American "Death Ride" and other items.

THE BRANSON CASE.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

George Branson, who was detained by the police at Auckland recently, returned to Adelaide in custody. He appeared at Adelaide Police Court during the afternoon. The charge preferred against him, laid by Robert Young, was that on or about January 13, he being an insolvent, with intent to defraud, before his adjudication as an insolvent quitted the State, and took with him property to the amount of £10 or upwards that should have been divided among his creditors. The case was adjourned until Friday.

Branson was allowed bail.

CASTLE HILL SHOW.

The annual show in connection with the Central Cumberland A. and H. Association was officially opened on Friday by Mr. T. R. Moxham, M.L.A., while the new grand stand was declared opened by Mr. J. C. Hunt, M.L.A. There was a very good attendance, and the exhibits, especially the fruit and horse sections, were of splendid quality.

LOAN OR RATES.

DISPUTE AT WILLOUGHBY.

There is a certain amount of friction in Chatswood and Willoughby between the municipal council and the Chatswood-Willoughby Progress Association. The association has for some weeks advocated the adoption by the council of a special loan policy, which, its supporters allege, could be provided for without increasing the rates.

The council, however, did not, apparently, take kindly to this suggestion, and the rate for 1915 was struck in the usual manner. This has raised the ire of a number of the ratepayers, and at a public meeting in the Chatswood Town Hall on January 13, the council's action came in for adverse comment. On February 8 a public demonstration was again held in the Town Hall by dissatisfied ratepayers, and it was resolved that, if the council declined to fall in with the wishes of the ratepayers, then the ratepayers would decline to pay the rates, and thus force an appeal to the electors.

COUNTRY NEWS.

SOUTH COAST.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

Phineas Wells, aged 71 years, was convicted of a serious offence. He was sentenced to three years in Grafton Gaol.

John Ross appealed against a fine of £10 imposed on him at the Police Court. The appeal was upheld.

Mr. Broughton, the new district surveyor, visited Wollongong to-day, and conferred with the Stuart Park trustees, also with Mr. J. H. Thomson, president of A. H. and I. Association, on the subject of removing the showground to the green.

In the District Court, before Judge Fitzhardinge, Mrs. Hennessy, of Bulli, had an action against Bulli Shire Council, claiming £400 damages to property by flood waters.

Mr. R. Windeyer appeared for the council, and Mr. D. S. Edwards for plaintiff. After hearing evidence the jury returned a verdict for the council.

NEW COAL PLANT.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

The new coal-loading plant at Port Kembla jetty was given a trial run. About 300 tons of coal were put through the loading plant on the new low-level jetty into the hold of the steamer Kiama. Operations were carried out to enable the necessary adjustments being made, and the trial was considered satisfactory. The next thing will be to obtain the sufficiently large shipments of coal to enable the plant to be kept going.

SPURIOUS COINS.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

At the Quarter Sessions on Wednesday Richard Dennis and Frederick Barlow pleaded not guilty to offering and uttering a counterfeit coin at Wollongong.

It appears that both men are engaged working on the deviation works at Coledale. They visited Howart's restaurant on the night of January 15, and ordered two pies, for which Dennis tendered as payment a counterfeit sovereign. The jury returned a verdict of guilty against Dennis, and not guilty against Barlow. Dennis was sentenced to two months, at Long Bay.

RESUMED LAND.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

The Government has decided that all the land resumed between Port Kembla and Spring Hill will not be required, only that portion on the eastern side of Spring Hill-road, which would serve the purpose of a loop-line to Port Kembla. In contemplation, some owners have received payment, and others have not. Evidently the question is one of utilising the existing lines of Unanderra to Port Kembla, or constructing a loop-line.

HOSPITAL STAFF.

LITHGOW, Friday.

At a special meeting of the hospital committee held last night, Mr. W. Slattery was re-elected president; Messrs. M'Call and Henderson, vice-presidents; Mr. T. Upton, secretary; and Mr. R. Stevenson, treasurer. There were six applications from doctors for positions on the medical staff. Four of these—B.M.A. men—were appointed, while two—F.S.A. men—were not appointed.

REDUCED TRAIN SERVICES.

CULCAIRN, Friday.

The Culcairn-Corowa branch line service is now tri-weekly, similar to that on the Culcairn-Germanton line, which came into vogue some weeks ago. Bitter complaints are being made, and on the Corowa line specials are running this week to cope with the traffic. It is reported from Germanton that the mails arriving in Culcairn on the off days are not delivered until the following day. On the Rock-Lockhart line, too, the traffic at present is fairly heavy, and the tri-weekly service is inadequate. One of the large mail engines is being utilised on the branch lines to carry larger loads.

STRIKE PAY.

KURRI KURRI, Friday.

Strike pay at the rate of 30s a week for each man and 3s for each child under 14 was paid to-day.

ODDFELLOWSHIP.

WOLUMLA, Friday.

At the thirteenth annual district delegate meeting of the G.U.O.F., Bega District, nine branches were represented. The District Master, Bro. W. Buluter, welcomed the delegates. The report disclosed a highly satisfactory financial position, the increase in funds amounting to £417. The following officers were elected and installed:—P.D.M., Bro. Buluter (Bombala), being installing master. Dist. Master, Bro. J. C. Degenhardt; Deputy D.M., Bro. H. A. Geraghty; dist. treasurer, Bro. W. B. Boardman; dist. treasurer, Bro. T. J. Preston; district trustees, Bros. A. J. Godfrey, P. F. Curran, and A. H. Uptid; dist. auditors, Bros. J. R. Lawson, S. M. Rodd; representatives to annual session, Bros. T. J. Preston, J. C. Degenhardt. The next delegate meeting will be held at Bega in February, 1916.

REDUCED TRAIN SERVICES.

GRENFELL, Friday.

People have been badly inconvenienced by the curtailed train service to Grenfell. Business is fearfully disorganised, the trains now running three times a week cannot, and do not, carry the produce and stock. Special trains are run the same days as the ordinary train, which means there are two trains on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, and none on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Three motor cars are running daily to Cowra and back to carry passengers and parcels. The mail service from Sydney is three times weekly. Grenfell people are paying a special messenger to carry letters to Cowra on other days. Sydney people get their letters delivered three times daily, and we get Sydney letters three times weekly.

POST-OFFICE BURNED.

COFF'S HARBOUR, Friday.

H. Burling's store and dwelling, also the post-office at Upper Orara, were burned down early this morning.

THE CHURCHES.

DUNGOG, Friday.

The Rev. Father Kelly, who has been stationed in Dungog for the past four years as assistant to the Rev. J. C. Meagher, and who has been transferred to Newcastle, was last night entertained at a farewell social by the parishioners of the Roman Catholic Church, and presented with an illuminated address and a purse of sovereigns.

GRAFTON, Friday.

The Bishop of Grafton dedicated the new Anglican church at Copmanhurst. It was erected at a cost of £1120.

WAUGOOLA'S BRIDGES.

COWRA, Friday.

An inquiry was held here by Mr. Mollison, of the Public Works Department, to determine the dispute between Waugoola Shire and the municipal council in respect to two bridges alleged to be common to both areas. The municipal council repudiated liability.

After hearing the evidence, a declaration was made that the bridges were boundary ones, and an arrangement was made that each council should pay half the cost of the repairs and construction.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

BATHURST, Friday.

At the Bathurst Quarter Sessions Judge Scholes passed the following sentences:—Francis W. Aubrey, for stealing a quantity of jewellery, at Sofala, 12 months' hard labour; David Simpson and Frederick Taillie, for robbing John Rodgers, a cab driver, of £20, at Lithgow, each 12 months' hard labour, sentence to be remitted to eight months on the repayment of £16 to Rodgers; John Lean, 18, robbery at Sofala, 12 months' hard labour.

GOULBURN, Friday.

At the Quarter Sessions yesterday, before Judge Rogers, Maurice Jeffrey pleaded guilty to stealing two cattle, the property of William Henry Hoare, at Wollondale. He was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour.

Henry Jackson pleaded not guilty to breaking and entering the shop of Henry Bodell, at Cullerin, and stealing groceries, etc. He was acquitted.

William Barnett pleaded not guilty to stealing a gold watch and chain and railway pass, the property of Walter Wicks, at Goulburn. He was found guilty.

MUNICIPAL.

JERILDERIE, Friday.

At Wannumurra Shire meeting an assessment at the rate of one penny in the £ upon the u.c.v. was fixed. It was further resolved that a temporary loan of £1366 be negotiated to carry on shire works. The Mayor of the town urged shire co-operation with his council to approach the Minister, to urge upon something being done in the water question for the town and district. It was decided that a public meeting of the five shires interested, the municipal council of Jerilderie, and all those residing along the creek frontages be called.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

A special meeting of Wollongong Council was held last night to consider the question. The matter was discussed in committee, and at the conclusion of the proceedings it was announced that it was decided to invite tenders for the supply of electricity to the council.

COAL TRADE.

LITHGOW, Friday.

The local coal trade is in about the same condition as for several weeks back. Two shifts worked have not been quite so bad at two or three of the collieries [illegible] a reduction of hands, and every [illegible] being made to provide full work for the men now employed. All departments of the works are exceedingly busy. Several shipments of fish-plates and spikes have been made during the week under both Victorian and trans-Australian contracts. Everything is going smoothly and well at the Small Arms Factory. The extensions at the [illegible] range are expected to be commenced in a day or two.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

The hospital board decided to proceed with the erection of a children's surgical ward and to ask the State Government for a further £1630 towards the expense.

DUNGOG, Friday.

The death occurred of Mr. Thomas [illegible]worth, of Fosterton, an old and highly respected resident of this district. Death was due to injuries received through becoming entangled in the cogs of a horse-power chaff-thrasher a few weeks ago. Deceased was 69 years of age, had resided in this locality the greater part of his life, and was one of the pioneers of the local branch of the G.U.O.F.

CAMDEN, Friday.

Mr. John Kemp, architect, who was previously in partnership with Mr. Morell as architect and consulting engineer, died at his sister's residence at Camden on Wednesday.

COOMA, Friday.

Mr. Frederick Blaxland, solicitor, sustained a fractured leg near the ankle as a result of a fall from a balcony. He was taken to Monaro Private Hospital.

An old resident of Cooma, William Blight, miner, 75, died this morning. He lived in the Monaro district about 58 years, and was well known in mining circles. He leaves a grown-up family of seven.

DUBBO, Friday.

Dr. Brophy, in announcing that a subscription list had been opened in aid of the Bathurst Orphanage, said that New South Wales was the only State of the Commonwealth in which the Government refused assistance towards the support of Roman Catholic charities. They helped the charities of another religious denomination, and even gave as far as to grant financial aid to a home for dogs.

WINDING-UP SALE.

In the Estates of EDWARD COXON and MARY ANN COXON, decd.

H. J. THOMSON, of Moruya, Auctioneer, has received instructions to submit for Sale by auction, at the ADELAIDE HOTEL, Moruya, on SATURDAY, FEB. 27, 1915, AT 2.30 P.M.,

The Well-known HOTEL known as the ADELAIDE HOTEL, situate in Vulcan-street, Moruya, facing the main street and the Moruya River, and very close to the I. and S. N. Company's Wharf.

Land comprises lots 1, 2, and 4 of section 1, containing 1 acre 1 rood. This Hotel business has been carried on by the late Edward Coxon and his son, the late Thomas Charles Coxon, for consecutive periods exceeding sixty years, and is one of the best established businesses on the South Coast. The auctioneer strongly recommends this as a SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY of securing a prosperous business and the leading position of the town for tourist and bar trade and general hotel accommodation. With the above will be offered the GOODWILL of the business of the late Thomas Charles Coxon in connection with the hotel, the FURNITURE at present in the hotel, the right to the UNEXPIRED PORTION of the LICENSE (expiring 30th June next), and STOCK-IN-TRADE, the latter at cost price, on day of sale. The whole will be submitted in one lot as a going concern.

Certain other TOWN LOTS will ALSO BE SUBMITTED on day of sale.

TERMS OF SALE: One-fourth on signing contract, balance on completion. Stock-in-trade, cash.

For further particulars apply to the Auctioneer; or E. A. H. SHEPHERD, Solicitor, Moruya.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10th,

3 O'CLOCK, AT THE ROOMS, WOLFE-STREET.

CITY OF NEWCASTLE FREEHOLD.

THE CENTRE OF THE COMMERCIAL AREA.

NEWCOMEN-STREET, BETWEEN HUNTER AND SCOTT STREETS.

The Land has a frontage of 100 links to Newcomen-street by a depth of 158 links.

For the erection of a Warehouse, Banking Premises, Offices, or a Terrace of Shops, this land has particular advantages.

A few feet from the busiest Thoroughfare in the City, and in close proximity to the Post-office, Wharfs, Railway Station, and principal Retail Business Houses.

Already Hunter-street cannot satisfy the demand for Retail Shops, and large premiums are offering for suitable tenancies. The site offers an opportunity for a sound investment.

CREER and BERKELEY have received instructions from the Commissioners, Government Savings Bank of New South Wales, to sell by auction on WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10th, at 3 o'clock—

THE ABOVE FREEHOLD.

PORT KEMBLA.
FIVE ISLANDS ESTATE
(near Wollongong),
into appropriate allotments of suitable frontages and depth. Apart from the delight of residence here, there cannot fail to be a prospective increment in values of land. It is impossible to forecast the development to occur at PORT KEMBLA, now in its infancy only. It may outstrip Wollongong in importance. Now is the time to buy land in the present subdivision, and secure the unearned increment later on. COACHES now run daily; a branch line of Railway is being agitated for, and is not improbable as development takes place.
LITHOGRAPHS OBTAINABLE FROM AUCTIONEERS.

AUCTION SALE ON THE GROUND,
NEXT SATURDAY.

TO-DAY'S SUBDIVISION AUCTION AT HORNSBY,
THE COMING JUNCTION CITY!

Those who want to make a huge profit during the next few years, secure a lot or two of the new and splendidly situated

METEOR ESTATE, HORNSBY.

During the past five years Hornsby has grown almost "terrifically"—over one hundred per cent. increase in the number of Houses, while the population has gone up three and four hundred per cent.
Land which was sold five years ago at from 15/ to 30/ a foot can't be had at £2/10/ to £5/10/ a foot. That's but one of the satisfactions you have in buying at our Auction Sales.

AUCTION
ON THE GROUND,
AT 3 P.M.
Free Conveyances for intending buyers will meet trains at Hornsby Station.

Now, you wouldn't mind a three or four hundred per cent. profit proposition, would you? Well, here it is. Hornsby, owing to its being the junction for the Hawkesbury and Newcastle line (tapping the traffic of the travelling public of the North Shore Suburbs and the Sydney-Strathfield - Hornsby centres)—will grow rapidly, and LAND VALUES MUST RISE QUICKLY, too.

EASIEST OF TERMS.
Only £1 down, and 10/ a month (which includes principal and interest at 5 per cent. per annum), for each £25 worth purchased.
TORRENS TITLE.

is an unusually attractively situated Residential Property—twenty minutes of Hornsby station, along a fine road, bordered with first-class houses. The whole Estate is practically level, well-grassed land, free of rock, stones, or rough ground, the soil being first rate for gardens, lawns, and vegetables. Splendidly-made roads and streets subdivide the property, and offers the Homeseeker or Investor an excellent opportunity for a healthy home site in a healthy and picturesque centre or an early profit winner.

HORNSBY is 594ft above sea level—the air delightfully fresh, clear, and pure—while the panoramic views cannot be excelled. LOTS, from 66ft x nearly 288ft and 70½ft x 155ft to 319ft. All first-class and good soil. Trains will leave Milson's Point Station TO-DAY at 1.34, 1.52, and 2.20 p.m.

THE SYSTEM BUSINESS COLLEGE.

Complete or partial course, including shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, and the standard office duties, by private or class instruction. Thorough instruction guaranteed. Positions arranged as qualifications develop. COACHING FOR EXAMINATIONS. Numbers of excellent persons have been discouraged in their commercial ambition by being carelessly, poorly, or only partly qualified to stand the test required in actual business. With us each pupil receives personal and individual tuition. Owing to present war conditions our new classes formed before March 15 will be granted specially reduced terms. It is believed that great developments will take place in Sydney at the close of the war, therefore now is the time to prepare. We undertake typewriting, or letters, etc., by dictation, at the shortest notice, at moderate charges.

J.S.W. HAIR FOOD.

The hair, like every other portion of the human body, requires to be fed and nourished, in order to keep it in a healthy condition, even when there is no apparent thinning or decay, and the application of John Strange Winter's Hair Food is most beneficial in every instance. It is well-known that the hair responds to the condition of the body—if you are not up to concert pitch, the hair has a dull, faded look, and although you might come right again in a few days it takes the hair much longer if left to itself, but a little of the John Strange Winter's Hair Food well rubbed in will cause it to become glossy and full of lustre. Price 2/6 bottle.

For hair that is naturally oily, the Non-oily Hair Food, twice 3/6 bottle, should be used. Obtainable together with all other J. S. Winter Preparations in our Toilet Department, Ground Floor, of the New King-street Building.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS.

LADIES,—It gives me pleasure to make known to you this wonderful treatment for destroying hair. I assure you that Lavinia will carry out all it promises, for I speak from experience that has covered a host of fashions. Lavinia has brought relief and happiness to innumerable women. Why not to you? The method for destroying the cyst and follicle is truly marvellous. The coarsest and heaviest growth removed entirely at first treatment without pain or injury to the skin, leaving the latter smooth and clear, without a sign of the former blemish. Lavinia Lotion and Cream makes the skin soft, clear, and white.

READ THIS.

A WRITTEN GUARANTEE

WILL BE GIVEN TO EVERY LADY who is treated by me for the removal of
SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS.

This GUARANTEE is to convince each Lady treated that I am willing to refund their fees if I fail to destroy the hair follicle. FURTHERMORE, I WILL FORFEIT to anyone who can prove I have failed. For fourteen years I have worked day after day, and for nearly ten years offered the above reward. So far it has not yet been claimed. This must convince each of the readers how successful my process is. I shall continue to give every satisfaction, and will be glad to demonstrate to any who are dubious the process of ELECTROLYSIS.

THIS PROCESS IS RECOGNISED BY THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AS PERMANENT. The Demonstration is given FREE OF CHARGE.
So come and have a few of your

removed. It will only take a few minutes, and I will also be only too glad to give you A FULL EXPLANATION,
showing you how different it is when the hair is removed permanently, and how easily the hair can grow again if the correct treatment is not given.
SO BE CONVINCED AND COME to the EXPERT OPERATOR OF SYDNEY, who has had constant practice, at 100 King-street.
NO OTHER ADDRESS FOR FOURTEEN YEARS.

One thing more—I would like everyone who reads this advertisement to understand that this treatment will not, and cannot, stimulate the growth of surrounding hairs, as the electric treatment used for the scalp is entirely different to the process used for ELECTROLYSIS.

FLESH MOLES AND MOLES
OF ANY KIND CAN BE REMOVED IN ONE TREATMENT. Do not stay away thinking it will be costly—that is not so. I GUARANTEE to remove a specified number of hairs for a certain fee, and you can take twelve months to have that number removed.

LOOK TO YOUR SKIN,

for if you have wrinkles, pimples, discolourations, or blackheads, I have found a cure that will not harm you. It will build up the muscles and restore the contour of a withering face, and give you the soft, fresh complexion you had thought was lost.

LADIES,

Why do you not attend to your skin a little more before retiring? The reply, I know, will be, "Oh, we are too tired." Now, if you gave FIVE MINUTES' ATTENTION AT NIGHT it will make you look years younger. The way is easy. Try a pot of

"NETTOYER"

FACE CREAM. It will clear and cleanse, and give new life to the skin tissue; also remove the secretions which collect through the dirt and defective germs that cause inflammatory skin lesions, such as Pimples and Blackheads, etc. SMALL POTS, 3/6; 6d EXTRA POSTAGE; LARGE SIZE, 6/, and POSTAGE 6d.

FRECKLES.

I can guarantee to remove for you by NETTOYER FRECKLE CREAM. Only one price, 5s per pot. 6d EXTRA FOR POSTAGE.

"JAEGER" IS ECONOMICAL.

Let it be understood once and for all that "Jaeger" is NOT really expensive.

As a matter of fact, when its great durability is taken into account, "Jaeger" is undoubtedly most economical to buy—even apart from its acknowledged value as a protection to health.

"Jaeger" pure undyed wool is recommended by medical men as THE fabric to wear next to one's skin.

The Jaeger Co. is BRITISH and under BRITISH Control.

Your Draper or Mercer can supply you with

THE ECONOMICAL "JAEGER"

DAY—AND NIGHT—WEAR.
